DRASTIC REVISION OF SECURITIES MEASURE MADE BY SENATE GROUP

Authority of U. S. Officials to Control Stock and Bond Sales Would Be Curtailed Sharply Under New Draft of Bill.

PRESIDENT CLEARS UP ONE POINT

Committee Informed That Roosevelt Favors Provision Giving Federal Trade Commission the Power to Revoke Registrations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8. — A wholesale revision of the administration securities control measure has been made by the Senate Banking Committee, and under it the power of the Government to block stock and bond sales would be curtailed sharply.

The new draft, made public by the committee right after it was informed officially that President Roosevelt supported the provision under which the Federal Trade Commission would have power to revoke registration of securities, reduced this power to apply only to cases of fraud or violation of the bill.

In addition, the committee definitely limited the bill's application to security issues marketed after the bill becomes law, exempting present issues of bona fide corporations that have been operating a year or more.

It greatly reduced the liability of directors for misstatements in the financial reports to be filed with the Trade Commission, requiring that only three-fourths of a corporation's directors be required to sign the reports.

Exemption on Signing.

Further, the new version provides:

"Any director of a corporation may, in the discretion of the commission and upon request before registration, for good cause shown, be excused from signing and swearing to the said statement."

Much opposition had been voiced to the original mandatory responsibility of every director for the truthfulness of the statements filed. The administration's spokesmen, however, had held this principle was vital to success of the act.

The new bill specifically excludes commercial paper, including notes, drafts, bills of exchange and bankers' acceptances with maturities not exceeding nine months.

It also exempts securities issued by mutual building and loan and mutual homestead associations.

It modifies the cause for revocation by eliminating the provision regarding unsound or insolvent conditions of the issuer, and the power to revoke when the commission decides this "is in th interest of the public welfare."

It retains force to revoke for violations of the provisions of the bill; if the issuer has been or is about to engage in fraudulent transactions, and for fraudulent misrepresentation in information filed.

Recovery of Money Paid.

The redraft retains the right of a security holder to recover the price paid if he has been defrauded, but eliminates his right to recover damages.

The regulation for foreign securities is altered to make requirements practically the same as those covering domestic stocks and bonds, except that the issuers and underwriters of the foreign loans would be obliged to file in addition:

"The terms of any collateral agreement, arrangement, or understanding, if any, between the underwriters or selling agent or any other person, and the borrower or any other officer or agent of the borrower, relating to the said loan."

Ollie M. Butler, an attorney of the Commerce Department, who had a hand in preparing the bill, and has been explaining it to the Congressional committees, told the Senators he was authorized to state the President's stand. Replying to widespread criticism of the clause which gives the Federal Trade Commission the right to revoke registration of securities in case of misrepresentation and for other causes, Butler said:

"I am authorized to say that the President is in favor of the idea of revocation as expressed in section 6, page 12, House Bill number 4314; that he did not attempt to or intend his message to Congress to cover any more than the general statement regarding the bill."

St. Louis Drinks Breweries Dry in Less Than 24 Hours After 3.2 Beer Is Legalized

Anheuser-Busch Initial Stock Exhausted and Customers Have to Await New Supply Falstaff Turns Away Orders.

With thousands flocking to St. Louis restaurants, soda fountains, hotel dining rooms and groceries yesterday for their first—or third or tenth—taste of 3.2 per cent beer, there wasn't enough of the brew to go round.

Many if not most of the places which obtained early supplies after Thursday midnight closed in the early morning hours only when the supply was exhausted. A few, changing bartenders, remained open continuously into the forenoon until they ran out.

They, and others obtaining new supplies for the forenoon, were thronged by patrons with such breakfast orders as "beer and toast." Many were out of beer two hours before lunch. And then, attempting to telephone rush orders, they found the brewery telephone exchanges swamped.

Many drove to the breweries but found they could not get their orders filled.

Brewery Supply Exhausted.

At the Anheuser-Busch and Falstaff plants, while 24-hour production went forward at top speed, the streets were congested with waiting trucks. The Falstaff brewery closed its doors in the afternoon, augmented its telephone facilities, and concentrated on filling old orders before accepting new ones. Retailers were told at Anhenser-Busch that the initial stock was exhausted, and they would have to wait for deliveries from new stock today.

Orders had been prorated. Many retailers had obtained only a small fraction of the supply ordered. Brewers said many were over-ordering in prospect of a not unlikely national shortage, and immediate deliveries were being reduced to the probable scale of immediate consumption. One brewery was reducing orders by two-thirds.

St. Louisans who sought a late breakfast found restaurant service difficult to obtain in the flood of beer orders. A waiter in a West End restaurant when a customer ordered coffee at 9:30 a. m. gazed ruefully at the swarm of beer drinkers at the "counter" and said, "You'll have to wait about 15 minutes for coffee, mister." The patron ordered beer and got it in much less than 15 minutes.

Drug Store Demand Big.

A beer house at Ninth and Pine streets remained open continuously from about 12:30 a. m. into the forenoon with 12 half-barrels and 75 cases hauled by the proprietor himself. At 10 a. m. it was exhausted, and all attempts failed to obtain more for noon and the sunny and thirsty-provoking afternoon.

At lunch-time restaurant patrons commonly looked or asked for beer before they sat down. In some restaurants every patron had a beer bottle before him. In one downtown hotel cafeteria, just two at an early lunch hour were without a bottle of the new brew.

Those fortunate places with adequate supply were thronged through the afternoon. A casual count at a drugstore fountain showed that, of nine customers, six of them women, five had beer, one a banana split, and three soft drinks. Fountains were deserted in some other stores which, failing to anticipate the demand, had opened at 8 a. m. with a few cases, exhausted in a few hours.

Sandwich Demand Large.

South St. Louis restaurants with beer were crowded all day. Eating went with the drinking. The proprietor of an inn famous for its mint juleps in other days declared he'd "never sold so many sandwiches before." His old garden, after a few years in the unaccustomed role of a miniature golf course, is to become a garden again.

A downtown night club offering music and dancing from noon through the evening was packed with afternoon family parties. The proprietor, whose standing before prohibition changed to wider fame under the slogan "Nothing worries Joe" when prohibition agents gave him plenty to worry about, commented that the return of beer had brought out evening crowds of a sort he hadn't seen since prohibition.

"Finest people in St. Louis," he insisted. "I hadn't seen some of them for 20 years."

"Count" Henry Hoffmann, presiding at a downtown hotel, up until 5 a. m. yesterday to serve a party, at work again after two hours' sleep and at his duties late last night, insisted he had nothing to do compared with the old days at McTague's.

"At New Year's then," he said, "I'd start at 6 o'clock in the evening and work through until maybe 4 the next afternoon, with 50—60 gallons of egg nogg to make. Filling steins—this is just toy stuff."

Country clubs are planning beer parties tonight. With the mercury up to 69 yesterday and with beer

JEWISH SEER WHO TOLD OF HITLER'S RISE TO POWER IS FOUND SLAIN IN BERLIN

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 8.

ERIK JAN STEINSCHNEIDER, alias Hanussen, who years ago predicted Adolf Hitler's accession to power, was found slain yesterday in a forest. Police say he is a Jew.

He built a tremendous following by means of his asserted clairvoyancy, beginnnig with the campaign of the Fourth Army in Bosnia, where he was assigned to the divining rod detachment.

After the war he lectured on telepathy. Police said he was appointed royal seer at the Dutch Court and subsequently traveled extensively in the United States. He published a journal on clairvoyancy.

Recently, police said, he was arrested in connection with his professional activities. There was no clew to the slayer.

DEDUCTING GIFTS FROM THE ENTIRE INCOME UPHELD

Ruling of Tax Appeals Board Saves Large Sums for John J. Raskob and Du Pont.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The Board of Tax Appeals decided today, in the case of Aaron Straus of Baltimore, that a taxpayer could deduct charitable contributions from his entire income, and not just from his ordinary income after excluding capital net gains. The old rule was that the contributions—limited by law to 15 per cent—be deducted only from ordinary income.

Immediate beneficiaries of the ruling were expected to include John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Pierre S. du Pont, industrialist. They have assessments of $15,977 and $164,477, respectively, pending against them.

In the Straus case, as in the Raskob and du Pont cases, the contributions exceeded the ordinary income and were deducted from the entire income, including capital net gains.

In 1930 Straus had an ordinary income of $43,079 and a capital net gain of $766,463. His contributions for the year were $144,695. He deducted for contributions 15 per cent of his total income, or $117,677.

The bureau disapproved this deduction and permitted him to deduct only 15 per cent of his ordinary income, or $6461.

The board in its decision in the Straus case overruled some previous decisions and held that Congress had intended that a taxpayer could deduct his contributions from his entire income and not just his ordinary income.

While the decision will affect contributions amounting to millions of dollars in 1928 and 1929 when large gains were reported from stock market transactions officials said it would not affect as much revenue in the later years of curtailed incomes.

U. S. AGENT'S WIFE FREED OF KILLING HIS SECRETARY

She Pleads Temporary Insanity in Shooting of Narcotics' Official's Aid.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 8.—Mrs. C. R. Frazier, wife of a former United States narcotics official, was free today of a charge of murdering her husband's secretary, Miss Manona Murrell.

Miss Murrell, 26-year-old divorce, was shot to death by Mrs. Frazier on the lawn of the Postoffice Building here Dec. 16. Mrs. Frazier charged the younger woman had urged the husband to get a divorce and marry her.

SHIP FINDS BODY OF ARMY OFFICER LOST ON AKRON

Lieut.-Col. A. F. Masury of Ordnance Reserve Was Guest on Navy Airship When It Fell in Sea.

70 MEN MISSING; SEARCH CONTINUES

Victim Chief Engineer of Truck Company — Made Dirigible Trip Without Telling Wife.

By the Associated Press.

U. S. S. PORTLAND AT SEA OFF NEW JERSEY COAST, April 8.—The body of Lieutenant-Colonel A. F. Masury, U. S. A. Ordnance Reserve, who was a guest officer aboard the airship Akron on its last voyage, was recovered from the sea today near the scene of the disaster.

Col. Masury's body was sighted by the tanker John D. Archbold. It was picked up by the Coast Guard patrol boat Galatea.

Identification was made from papers found in Masury's pockets. The body is being taken to the Brooklyn navy yard by the Galatea.

Finding of the body of Lieutenant-Colonel Masury brings to three the number of bodies recovered in the Akron disaster. Seventh men still are missing and their bodies are being sought.

The body of Lieutenant-Commander Harold E. MacLellan, third senior officer aboard the Akron, was recovered Tuesday, the day of the crash, and was buried yesterday in Arlington Cemetery. Robert W. Copeland, chief radio man, died aboard the German Tanker Phoebus early Tuesday after being rescued from the sea.

Col. Masury lived in New York and was chief engineer of the Mack Truck Co..

Friends said he boarded the Akron Monday night as a guest of Rear Admiral William A. Moffitt without telling his wife he was going, because he was afraid she would worry. She did not know he was aboard until she was informed by his secretary the next morning that he was among the missing.

Col. Masury had made several flights in dirigibles and was a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin in 1930 when it was caught in winds in the Rhone Valley and forced down in France at the start of a projected flight to the United States.

Col. Masury was 48 years old. He was born in Danvers, Mass., and was graduated from Brown University in 1909. During the World War he served with the Ordnance Corps with the rank of Major.

Besides his widow, he is survived by his 86-year-old mother, Mrs. Evelyn Masury of Danvers. Friends said he had written his mother that the Akron would be flying over Danvers this week and added: "Be sure to watch for me."

TEMPORARY WRIT AGAINST MISSOURI BEER SALE DENIED

Judge at Jefferson City Rules That Drys' Suit Must Take Ordinary Course—Setting in May.

STATE REFERENDUM ON MEASURE SOUGHT

Plans Are to Circulate Petitions and Halt Law's Operation Till Vote in November, 1934.

By BOYD F. CARROLL, Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—A temporary injunction restraining sale of 3.2 per cent beer in Missouri was denied by Judge Nike Sevier in Cole County Circuit Court today. He said the case would take its normal course without a temporary order. The case will be docketed for the May term.

The suit, filed late yesterday, on the first day the beer law was operative, is based on a contention the emergency clause placed in the act by the 1933 Legislature, to make it effective when it was signed by Gov. Park, is invalid and that the act could not legally become effective until 90 days after adjournment of the Legislature, which still is in session.

It is argued that no emergency existed legally calling for inclusion of the emergency clause.

This contention, if sustained, would give time for circulation of petitions to invoke the referendum provisions of the State Constitution and subject the law to a statewide vote on ratification. Filing of such petitions, if found to comply with constitutional requirements, automatically would suspend operation of the law until a referendum in the next general election in November, 1934.

Validity of the law also is questioned in the suit on the ground it is in violation of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, notwithstanding a recent act of Congress modifying Federal laws to authorize manufacture and sale of beer with an alcoholic content of 3.2 per cent by weight.

P. A. Tate of St. Louis, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Missouri, who was here in connection with filing of the suit, said "this and all other wet legislation will be referred to the people at the 1934 election."

The suit was filed in the name of Miss Fannie D. Robb of St. Louis, an officer of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, as a taxpayer. It is directed against State Pure Food and Drug Commissioner Manville, whose department has general charge of administration of the law; Attorney-General McKittrick, State Treasurer Nacy and State Auditor Smith, who perform various administrative duties in connection with the law.

Gus O. Nations of St. Louis, attorney for the Anti-Saloon League of Missouri, filed the suit as counsel for Miss Robb. Nations formerly was chief of the Federal prohibition enforcement field forces in Missouri.

The Brogan-Roberts bill was signed by Gov. Park March 15.

POWER OF THE NEW BEER REFLECTED IN POLICE COURT

One Man in Dock After two and a Half Bottles, He Says.

There were only four "drunk on the street" cases on the Police Court docket today, all of them in Court No. 1, covering the territory south of Washington avenue.

Desiring to find out something about the effect of the new 3.2 per cent beer, Judge Blaine called the defendants to the stand and questioned them.

The first man insisted his trouble with the police occurred after consuming only two and a half bottles of the new brew. The Court showed an inclination to doubt the estimate.

No. 2, an Irishman, said he had counted 12 bottles before becoming drunk. The third offender told the Court he had lost count before passing out. No. 4 said he drank "hard" liquor and has not experimented with 3.2 beer.

As none of the defendants had ever been arrested before, the Court discharged them with a warning.

New York Cuts Gasoline Tax.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 8.—The Assembly defeated a bill providing for the continuation of the 1-cent emergency tax yesterday. This reduces the State gasoline tax to 2 cents a gallon. The 1-cent emergency tax was added last year at the request of Gov. Roosevelt and was counted on by the fiscal leaders to raise $15,000,000 in revenue this year.

EX-PREMIER HERRIOT AGREES TO REPRESENT FRANCE AT WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

DAVIS INTERVIEWS HINDENBURG, HITLER

President to Seek Free Hand in Making Trade Agreements Before Beginning Conversations With Foreign Delegates.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 8.—Former Premier Edouard Herriot has accepted the Government's invitation to represent France in Washington at a meeting of representatives of the chief powers and President Roosevelt, preliminary to the World Economic Conference to be held in London. He will sail probably on the steamship Ile de France April 19. While the announcement of his acceptance said it was "virtual," the Government was confident he would go.

It was understood he hesitated only on account of the still outstanding divergence of opinion between him and the majority in the Chamber of Deputies over the war debt payment. The Chamber overthrew Herriot's cabinet last December because he demanded the payment of interest due be made.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 8.—Norman Davis, Special Ambassador representing President Roosevelt, arived here today from Paris and spent the morning confering with Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath. He is to meet President von Hindenburg at noon and Chancellor Hitler at 6 p. m. Davis is discussing plans for German representation at the forthcoming economic discussions in Washington.

It is reported that Hans Luther, the new Ambassador to the United States, will represent this country in the conferences at Washington.

INVITATIONS SENT TO CHIEF NATIONS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—President Roosevelt has taken the leadership in an organized effort against the depression, and the nations he has invited to participate are falling into line in response to his call to come here and talk over plans.

The United States has sent invitations to the conference to the "big four" of Europe—Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy; the "big three" of South America, the "ABC" Powers of Argentina, Brazil and Chile, and the two chief Oriental nations, Japan and China. Invitations to other Governments are expected to go out soon.

Today Canada and Mexico were invited to send personal representatives for economic conversations with President Roosevelt.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain plans to sail for Washington a week from today.

From foreign capitals came general expressions of satisfaction and indications of acceptance.

Seeks Success at London.

The President has chosen to assemble the statesmen in Washington for individual conversations far in advance of the convening of the world's monetary and economic conference this summer in London.

Definite word has been received in Washington that the world economic conference will be held in London about June 15. The personnel of the American delegation is already under consideration by President Roosevelt. The name of Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier, has been heard in some quarters as a possible member.

Statesmen feel that the world cannot afford a failure at London. But success will require patient preliminary moves designed to

The holdup men apparently escaped down the stairs. Bertram E. Davidson, manager of the company, was absent during the robbery.

STREET CAR SET AFIRE BY LIGHTNING; EIGHT HURT

Blaze Apparently Caused by Induction and Not by Direct Flash.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 8.—Ten Portland residents were injured, none of them seriously, when lightning set fire to a loaded street car today. They were treated at hospitals.

Witnesses said that apparently the lightning did not strike the car directly, but set it on fire by induction. Passengers said the flames suddenly leaped from the left side of the car and that the interior was immediately filled with smoke.

Practically every window in the car was broken, either by passengers or by passersby who attempted to rescue those inside. J. E. Hull, motorman, estimated that 20 passengers were aboard.

50 HURT IN WRECK ON THE BIG FOUR AT DANVILLE, IND.

Two St. Louis Women Among the Seven Persons Seriously Injured — Passenger Train Rammed.

By the Associated Press.

DANVILLE, Ind., April 8.—Seven persons were in an Indianapolis hospital today, the only ones requiring more than incidental treatment of nearly 50 who were injured when Big Four passenger train No. 40 rammed into the rear of passenger train No. 20 of the same line here last night.

Meanwhile, trainmen refused to place responsibility for the crash, which occurred when No. 20, eastbound from St. Louis to Cleveland, made an unscheduled stop to discharge a passenger. The other train, bound from St. Louis to New York, usually runs about five minutes behind No. 20.

One baggage car of train No. 20 was derailed, and traffic on the line was delayed several hours.

Those taken to the hospital and their injuries were: Miss Cora E. Wells, St. Louis, broken leg; Mrs. Lawrence Bertram, St. Louis, cut and bruised; Miss Edna Banes, Freeport, L. I., wrenched back; W. R. Bristow, Indianapolis, conductor on No. 20, cuts; J. R. Payne, Bargersville, Ind., brakeman on No. 20, cuts and bruises; E. M. Fullenwider, Indianapolis, baggage man on No. 20, cuts and bruises; Ray Thomas, Negro waiter, Buffalo, N. Y., broken nose.

Others who reported injuries included: H. D. Benedict, St. Louis, injured leg; Alphonse Peterson, Negro porter, St. Louis, cuts on head; A. B. Koho, St. Louis, mail clerk, shoulder bruise; Mrs. L. T. Clarke, St. Louis, slight concussion, and Miss Verna Filla, St. Louis, cuts and bruises.

Beer Souvenir on President's Desk.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—A big amber-colored goblet, with a white painted collar at the top, adorned the desk of President Roosevelt yesterday. The President received it in commemoration of the legalization of beer as the gift of a Pittsburgh glass company. When Senator Norris of Nebraska, an advocate of prohibition who voted for the beer bill, paid a White House call during the late afternoon, he walked off with the goblet as a gift of the President.

ROOSEVELT SAID TO BACK 100 PCT. BANK GUARANTEE

Steagall Declares His Measure to Insure Deposits With Reserve Members Has Tacit Approval.

FOR $2,000,000,000 CORPORATION

Sponsor Says His Bill "Is Not in Any Sense a Governmental Guarantee Plan," However.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Bearing tacit administration approval of its principle, a bank bill based on the Glass measure and providing for a $2,000,000,000 corporation to guarantee deposits of Federal Reserve member banks 100 per cent will be submitted to Congress next week.

Announcement of the proposal was made by Chairman Steagall of the House Banking Committee after a conference with President Roosevelt. As he spoke a Senate Banking Subcommittee was tentatively drafting the measure, which will be sponsored jointly by Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia and Steagall.

"You may say," Steagall said, "that the proposal's principle is understood to have the approval of the administration."

"This bill is not in any sense a Government guarantee plan," he added, saying that the $2,000,000,000 corporation would be formed with an initial capital of $500,000,000.

How Fund Would Be Raised.

As in the Steagall guarantee bank deposit bill that passed the House and failed in the Senate in the last Congress, the initial capital of $500,000,000 would be raised by requiring Federal Reserve banks to subscribe $150,000,000 of their surplus while the Treasury paid $150,000,000, representing a part of the earnings of the Federal Reserve banks paid in lieu of franchise taxes. The remaining $200,000,000 would come from a levy of one-fourth of 1 per cent on deposits in Federal Reserve banks.

Steagall explained that while he and Glass were agreed in principle on the proposal, there were many provisions still unsettled, particularly relating to branch banking. He indicated that the wishes of President Roosevelt would be sought before any final action is taken.

"Senator Glass and I have been in conference several weeks considering a banking bill, which has been agreed upon in principle, but in not all details," Steagall said. "I will embrace substantially the provisions of the Glass banking bill, as passed by the Senate in the last Congress and which failed to pass in the House.

"It will have regulatory provisions; separate affiliates from banks in about two years; and will separate investment banking from commercial banks. It will require a higher minimum capital for national banks, increasing it from $25,000 to $50,000. It will provide for dismissal of bank officers who for any cause are found unfit to serve."

100 Per Cent Deposit Guarantee.

Steagall said the measure would embrace a plan for the guarantee of bank deposits along the lines of his own earlier bill.

"The guarantee plan," he said, "sets up machinery along the lines of the provisions of the Glass bill establishing a corporation for liquidation of closed banks.

"The corporation will be authorized to expand by issuance of obligations, so as to create a potential sum of $2,000,000,000. It would pay its obligations to the public. It would be empowered to lend to closed banks and otherwise assist them.

"The plans contemplates a 100 per cent guarantee of all deposits subject to withdrawal when the bill takes effect.

"There has not been complete agreement on state banks to participate in benefits of guarantee. All Federal Reserve members would automatically belong.

"It is understood that Senator Glass does not favor admitting state banks on application for membership into the Federal Reserve without waiting for examination. I favor admission for all state banks and trust companies upon proper examination and certification of solvency of good banks."

Frequent Bank Examinations.

The measure would provide, he said, for frequent examination of banks and for their regulation, and would permit the corporation to "get rid of state banks at any time."

"The corporation will be empowered to invest its reserve funds to pay interest on borrowed money through the sale of obligations," he said.

Glass has reintroduced his bank bill as it passed the Senate in the last Congress, but which Steagall killed in the House Banking Committee. Steagall said it would be introduced by Glass Monday with the guarantee provision.

Many additions have been made to the Glass bill, including a prohibition against the payment of interest on demand deposits and a clause to prevent interlocking directorates between banks and industrial concerns.

The bill still retains the chief provisions of the Glass bill, to prevent seepage of Federal Reserve credit into speculative channels and to require divorce of security affiliates.

It does not require commercial banks to separate from their trust activities.

SENATE GROUP REVISES SECRET CODE BILL

Application Restricted to Diplomatic Information Obtained by Employes of Government.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The House secret code bill was completely revised today by a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee to restrict its application to diplomatic code secrets obtained by employes of the Government.

The text of the substitute measure follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

"That, whoever by virtue of his employment by the United States shall obtain from another having custody of or access to, or having had custody of or access to, any official diplomatic code or any matter prepared in any such code, or which purports to have been prepared in any such code, shall willfully, without authorization or competent authority, publish or furnish to another any such code or matter, or any matter which was obtained while in process of transmission between any foreign Government and its diplomatic mission in the United States, shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than 10 years, or both."

GOVERNOR AND LEGISLATORS AGREE ON NEW YORK BEER PLAN

Licensing to Be by State But County Boards Will Make Recommendations.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 8. — A plan for State control of beer in New York with a state board holding exclusive power to license brewers and wholesalers and retaining the final word on the granting of retailers licenses, was agreed upon today by Gov. Lehman and the leaders of the Legislature. The retailers' licenses, however, will be granted upon the recommendation of county boards.

The agreement was a compromise between Gov. Lehman's insistence that the licensing be done by a state control board and the views of Republican leaders that the licensing should be done by county boards.

The local boards are given power to recommend approval or disapproval of retailers applications for licenses, but the state board is not bound by the local boards, recommendations. The final rulings of the state board on licenses, however, are subject to review by the Supreme Court.

PRESIDENT DISCUSSES HOME MORTGAGE BILL

Expected to Send Refinancing Plan to Congress Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Details of the Roosevelt program for refinancing mortgages on small homes neared completion today at a conference between the President and Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York.

The plan is to allow refinancing of mortgages on homes up to $20,000 in present value.

A three-year moratorium on amortization is proposed.

Bond totaling about $2,000,000,000 probably will be required in exchanging present high interest rate mortgages for the new low-rate paper.

An interest rate of 4 or 4½ per cent is contemplated for the new mortgages.

It is expected this will put the approximately $9,000,000,000 in mortgages on a reduced scale. The refinancing probably will be conducted through the existing Home Loan Bank Board.

Mortgages probably will be allowed up to as high as 75 or 80 per cent of the value of the property.

In all likelihood the President will submit his proposal to Congress next week.

MAN CAUGHT IN CHASE SAYS HE IS ARCHDUKE LEOPOLD

Motorist Ordered to Go to Court to Answer Charge of Intoxication.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 8.—An automobile chase through the streets today ended in the arrest of a man who police said declared he was Archduke Leopold of Hapsburg, Chevalier of the Order of the Golden Fleece and former Hollywood extra.

Police obtained a summons for his appearance in court next Friday on a charge of driving when under the influence of liquor. The motorist, who insisted the police write "His Highness" with his name, assured officers he had been drinking nothing stronger than 3.2 per cent beer at a society function.

He produced credentials tending to establish that he was Archduke Leopold and police released him on his own recognizance. Archduke Leopold has been listed as a resident of Marblehead since the summer of 1932.

J. W. HARRIMAN ORDERED TO BE IN COURT MONDAY

Will Be Arraigned on Indictment for Alleged False Entries in Bank Books.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Joseph W. Harriman has been ordered to appear in Federal Court Monday for arraignment on 14 counts of making false entries in books of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Co. The founder and former chairman of the bank was indicted Thursday.

Judge Frank J. Coleman issued the order after consulting Dr. Howard F. Shattuck, the banker's physician, who said Harriman suffered an attack of coronary thrombosis, a serious heart disease, Dec. 3, but had recovered sufficiently to move about his Fifth avenue apartment.

"If he is able to get about the house," the Court said, "he is able to come to court."

CHARLES W. CLARK DIES AT 62

NEW YORK, April 8.—Charles W. Clark, 62 years old, president of the United Verde Copper Co. and son of the late United States Senator William Andrews Clark of Montana, died at his New York home at 2:30 a. m. today.

He was engaged for many years in extensive mining in Montana and Idaho.

in locker and dining rooms, most golfers paused first at the "nineteenth hole," and some of them never got around to the first tee.

County roadhouses, and particularly the old-time "groves"—counterparts of the "gardens" in town—had a busy afternoon and evening. In city and county, many "speakeasies" were turning to the legitimate beer trade. Many of the more "refined," like the clubs, are having "parties" tonight, as one which captioned its weekly card to patrons, "It's here—new beer—join bunch—free lunch."

The rush for Federal sale permits at the office of Collector of Internal Revenue Becker abated somewhat today, as Becker began to issue the A stamps from a new supply of 2000. The initial supply of 4000 was exhausted yesterday, and 300 temporary receipts were issued to allow the handling of beer before the stamps were received.

Kansas and Arkansas Residents Drink Missouri Beer.

A steram of beer flowing over the state from St. Louis and St. Joseph, the only Missouri cities with licensed breweries, was inadequate to quench the first-day thrist of Missourians and throngs from bordering bone-dry states.

Kansas City supplies were exhausted before noon as hundreds from Kansas City, Kan., crossed the state line to taste the new beverage. Rail travel from rural Missouri and Kansas on excursion rates to the city was the greatest of any day in months.

Joplin was a Mecca for the thirsty from adjacent parts of Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, where beer is forbidden. A supply of 42,000 bottles was exhausted. Jefferson City wholesalers obtained only 1900 cases, half their orders, and the supply was gone in two hours.

Five and one-half carloads of beer were sold yesterday in Springfield, where the thirstys including many from Arkansss, were waiting at daylight. First sales were made at 6:10 a. m. Two Springfield distributors went to Jefferson City by air in order to obtain permits for evening trade. A confectioner was arrested on complaint that he had failed to obtain a permit, which, according to a letter he exhibited, was in the mail.

Dunlin County and Arkansas people consumed 300 cases of beer in 3½ hours at Kennett, Mo. At Cardwell, eight miles from the Arkansas line, 75 cases went at the rate of one a minute.

A one-car special train took the first carload of beer to Hayti. When his beer failed to arrive at 8 a. m., the district distributor got into immediate and emphatic touch with St. Louis brewery and road-rail officials, with the result that the carload left St. Louis at noon and traveled the 213 miles to Hayti in less than five hours.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—A message from the King of Denmark to the State Department today said Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen would be acceptable as Minister to Denmark and suggested that she also be made envoy to Greenland, which belongs to Denmark.

When Mrs. Owen's appointment is announced by President Roosevelt and ratified by the Senate, this country will have its first woman envoy to another nation. She is the daughter of the late William J. Bryan.

G. O. P. SENATORS DRAW FARM BILL OF THEIR OWN

Measure Eliminates Grant of Broad Power to Secretary Wallace, but Includes Mortgage Plan.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—A substitute for the Democratic farm program, stripping away the proposed broad powers for Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, but including the administration mortgage relief plan, is being prepared today by a committee of Senate Republicans for presentation to a party conference on Monday.

The administration bill now is before the Senate, its passage expected next week.

The Republicans, not able to agree on a program before the measure was taken up yesterday, hope to present a united opposition by Monday.

In place of the Democratic provisions for sweeping authority for Wallace to raise farm prices, the Republican committee propose the bill of Senator Carey (Rep.), Wyoming, for leasing or renting a maximum of 50,000,000 acres, this to be financed by a 2 per cent tax on the sale price of the commodities.

The leasing would be applied to cotton and grains. This is in substance the program advocated in the closing days of the last Congress by former Secretary of Agriculture Hyde.

The Republican Committee bill incorporates the Smith cotton option pool plan, which is in the administration bill, and also carries the Roosevelt farm mortgage plan.

The so-called cost-of-production plan, written into the administration bill by the Senate Agriculture Committee, would be eliminated.

Republicans expect to line up almost solidly behind the substitute proposal, but Democratic leaders are confident their top-heavy majority will put the administration bill through.

Robinson Opens Debate.

Immediate approval of the Roosevelt farm program was asked of the Senate yesterday by Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, who opened debate on the farm bill.

Discussing the price-lifting sections of the bill, Robinson conceded they opened "an untrod path," but contended the broad powers for administrative action were necessary.

Chairman Smith (Dem.), of the Agriculture Committee, intimated his objections to the bill had not been satisfied.

Answering a request from Logan (Dem.), Kentucky, on whether he could explain the bill so Senators could understand it, Smith said: "No sir, but I can read the bill and attempt to explain what it makes an assault with intent to do."

Robinson, asserting his party had been authorized by the country to "relieve the existing national economic emergency by increasing agricultural purchasing power," said that was the purpose of the bill and that the first step in national restoration was to assist agriculture.

Tariff Adjustments Slow.

Tariff adjustments to reopen export markets were planned, he continued, but these would be too slow. For those who advocate letting nature take its course in the working out of economic problems, he said too many artificial barriers had been set up, adding:

"That is a comfortable point of view, unless you happen to be on the receiving end of the readjustment."

The heart of the bill, Robinson said, was the proposal to increase prices to the 1909-1914 levels.

Next to this in importance in the program, Robinson said, was the authority giving wide powers to the Secretary of Agriculture and President Roosevelt to act in dealing with various agricultural problems.

"The bill clearly understands that various methods are necessary at various times and under various condition," he added. "An administrator aware of these practical problems, aided by the experience of men intimately familiar with every phase of the industries involved, will provide us with high hopes for a large measure of success in this endeavor.

PARK VETOES BILL MAKING STAKE HOLDING MISDEMEANOR

Similar Measure Also Killed by Gov. Caulfield at Last Session.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—The bill to make stakeholding a misdemeanor instead of a felony was vetoed by Gov. Park today. A similar measure was vetoed at the last legislative session by Gov. Caulfield. Both were sponsored by State Senator Joseph Brogan of St. Louis.

In his veto message the Governor said: "I can see no good reason why this should be done. The argument that convictions can be more readily had under the proposed bill is unsound, in that the present section does not compel a penitentiary sentence."

The present section provides a penitentiary sentence of from two to five years, a jail term of not less than six months, nor more than one year, or a fine of not more than $500.

Secretary Hull Outlines President's Plan for World Economic Recovery Through International Conferences

Says Revival of International Trade Would "Put America's Millions of Unemployed Back to Work."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8. — In a painstaking description of efforts to be launched by President Roosevelt for world economic recovery, Secretary of State Cordell Hull today pictured the United States as about to lead the world out of a morass of economic nationalism.

During the last 10 or 12 years, he told reporters, the United States had been one of the nations chiefly responsible for "economic nationalism" in raising high tariffs and other barriers which have tended to strangle international trade.

The whole purpose of the program, he said, was to enable nations in a mutually profitable way to exchange their surpluses.

A revival of international trade would redound to the profit of farmers in this and other countries, he said, and put America's millions of unemployed back to work.

America's share of the world trade that had been lost in the last few years, Hull said, totaled about $6,000,000,000, a volume of business which might have meant the difference between depression and comparative prosperity.

Chief Aim of Conference.

In earnest fashion which recalled his anti-tariff addresses in his years on Capitol Hill, Secretary Hull asserted that it was high time that the United States should see its responsibility in halting this course and facing back in a sounder and more constructive direction.

This he emphasized as the great purpose of the preliminary economic conversations to which President Roosevelt has already invited the foremost statesmen of nine nations, with many others expected to be asked here also.

Asserting that there was nothing secret or mysterious about the purpose of the Government, Hull said the goal was a realization by the people, Parliaments, Cabinets, and chiefs of state of all nations that their countries were infinitely worse off than they were a decade or so ago and that the way out was to be found in abandoning the policy of extreme nationalism in which each sought to shut out the products of the rest of the world and all strove to sell but not to buy.

For Lowering of Tariffs.

If all nations, after a careful analysis of the economic happenings of the last few years, would reach a unanimous agreement to this effect, he said, their representatives should be able to agree that the unprecedented barriers to international commerce should be at least very much modified and that each nation in enlightened self interest should face in the opposite tariff direction.

Specific tariff rates would be left for the countries themselves to deal with, Hull said, explaining that if schedules were taken up now, there would not be time for the nations to sit down and agree on broad tariff policy.

Once the agreement on policy has been reached, said Hull, each country could in its own way, adjust its tariff rates.

He emphasized that the first object was the agreement upon a policy to be followed at the world economic conference, a policy of lowered trade barriers and unrestricted exchange of money based on the common belief that the present policy is narrowly nationalistic and suicidal.

Formulas to Be Worked Out.

Hull said that every nation had maintained virtually embargo tariffs for eight years, resulting in almost complete destruction of agriculture, manufacturing and mining on an international basis, and that miners, manufacturers and farmers now could be expected to open their eyes to the need for a more modernized economic scheme. In response to a question, Hull said that between now and the conference practical formulas would be worked out that might be agreed on as specific ways of approaching the problem of adjusting the economic world to a new day.

Among the objects of such a specific formula would be the attacking of embargoes, import quotas and exchange restrictions.

EX-PREMIER HERRIOT AGREES TO REPRESENT FRANCE AT PARLEY

bring the policies of Cabinet and Parliament into such conformity that the delegates when they meet at the British capital will not find their hands tied.

Almost a year of preparation among German, French and British statesmen, with the aid of American Ambassadors preceded the 1925 Locarno Conference, which has been described as the one postwar conference to come up to expectations.

Mr. Roosevelt's method of preparing for the part this Nation will play in London will be to ask Congress for a comparatively free hand in making reciprocal commercial agreements with other nations. Such a bill probably containing power to reduce such tariffs on a give and take basis, is to go to Congress soon.

Many of the nations, especially the smaller ones, are expected to have their regular diplomatic representatives serve as delegates to the Washington conference.

It is said authoritatively that war debts are not on the economic program which the United States will present in the Washington conversations, although the matter of revision of those controversial obligations, may be taken up incidentally with MacDonald, as the President has agreed to hear the British case.

Only Russia Omitted.

Indications have been given that every nation with which the United States has diplomatic relations will be welcomed at Washington to discuss the matters which will be taken up at the world monetary and economic conference at London this summer. Apparently the fact that the United States does not recognize Russia means that country will not be invited although it is to participate in the London conference.

In friendly and frank conversation at the White House and the State Department, President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull hope to reach understandings with the various nations which will insure prompt and decisive action when the formal conference convenes in the British capital.

The position of the United States as the greatest of all creditor nations to which 15 countries owe a total of nearly $12,000,000,000 makes it eminently qualified to take the leadership, officials feel, in a movement which may influence the economic future of the world.

Italy to Seek "Solid International Collaboration."

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 8.—The stand Italy will maintain at the world economic conference—and hence also at the preliminary discussions at Washington—is officially described as based on a policy of "solid international collaboration." At the same time, warning is given that payment of international debts, other than with merchandise and services, is "unthinkable."

Recently it has been the intention of Premier Mussolini to allow Ambassador Augusto Rosso, who is an economic expert, to represent Italy at the Washington discussions. But in view of the fact that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and perhaps Cabinet officials of other nations are going to the American capital, the Government may decide to send a delegate of higher rank. In such case, Finance Minister Guido Jung, who has accepted an invitation from MacDonald to confer with him in London in May, is mentioned as a possibility.

Chile and Argentina Expected to Send Representatives.

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 8.—It is understood the Government is pleased with the invitation from President Roosevelt to participate in economic discussions in Washington and will probably designate Benjamin Cohen, Chilean Charge d'Affaires, to represent it at Washington.

BUENOS AIRES, April 8.—Argentina undoubtedly will accept President Roosevelt's invitation to send a representative to Washington to discuss economic questions, it is learned on reliable authority.

COURT POSTPONES MADISON SCHOOL BOARD ELECTION

On Complaint of Two Candidates That They Were Omitted From Ballot Illegally.

An election to choose the president and two members of the Madison Board of Education, scheduled for this afternoon, has been postponed under an injunction granted by Circuit Judge Brown at Edwardsville this morning.

The injunction suit was filed by the School Economy party ticket, comprising William Hannebrink, candidate for president, and Charles Barnett and Oscar Martin, candidates for members. They allege their names had been omitted from the ballot illegally, in a dispute over the manner of filing candidacies. The Judge ordered the election should not be held until their names are on the ballot.

One other ticket is in the field. It comprises the incumbents, Fred Bonville, president, and Ernest Overby and Guy Trewett, members. The school directors do not receive salaries.

Andrew Kurrus has been removed as Postmaster of East St. Louis and will be succeeded by a Democrat to be designated for appointment by St. Clair County Democratic leaders, probably next week.

The East St. Louis Postoffice is in the first class and the salary of Postmaster is $4000 a year. Kurrus, an insurance agent, was appointed two years ago by the Republican administration.

WOODIN COMPLETES PLAN TO REOPEN STATE BANKS

Refuses to Give Details Pending Its Approval by States, But Thinks It Practical.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The Treasury today completed a program in conjunction with state authorities for reopening state banks, which Secretary Woodin thinks will permit them to be reopened rapidly.

The Secretary said he had appointed Walter J. Cummings of Chicago, vice-president of the Bell Corporation, as executive assistant directly in charge of the emergency banking program, and to handle the reopening of state banks.

The chief question at this time, the Secretary said, was to get money now tied up in the banks into the hands of the depositors. He praised the plan as fundamental and ready to operate, but said the details would not be announced until state authorities had approved it.

The Secretary also told reporters that the reopening of banks over the country was going along in a surprisingly good way and he hoped that the number of reopenings could be increased.

He declined to give specifications but declared the Government was giving full attention to the opening of state banks, and promised the program would be pushed to the utmost.

JURY GETS FIRST SCOTTSBORO CASE; MISTRIAL DENIED

Retrial of Heywood Patterson One of Seven Negroes Accused by White Woman Lasts Week.

'FRAME-UP' CHARGED BY BOTH SIDES

Motion for Mistrial, When Prosecutor Says 'Jew Money' Bought Witnesses, Denied.

By the Associated Press.

DECATUR, Ala., April 8.—The case of Heywood Patterson, first of seven Negroes indicted in the "Scottsboro Case" to face retrial was given to the jury at 12:45 p. m. today.

Judge James E. Horton in his charge told the jury that if convicted Patterson faced a penalty of death or imprisonment of not less than 10 years "in the discretion of the jury."

The charge brought to an end a trial begun Monday in which Patterson was charged with attacking Virginia Price on a Southern Railroad freight train near Scottsboro, Ala., two years ago.

The Judge charged the jury on consideration of the evidence particularly as to the testimony of Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates, the two alleged victims of the attack.

Judge Discusses Evidence.

"The law has a stern duty to perform," he said. He took up the two witnesses individually, describing them as one for the defense and one for the State.

"One is Ruby Bates," said Judge Horton, "who admitted on the stand that she perjured herself."

He then turned to Victoria Price. He said: "Evidence was introduced to show that she made false statements."

Judge Horton pointed out the evidence if Miss Bates and Lester Carter, which he said the State had not contradicted, that the girl had consorted in a tramps' "jungle" with Jack Tillery.

"It becomes the duty of you gentlemen," the Judge said, "to determine whether she swore falsely about material facts. You may discard part or all of either's testimony if you decide she has sworn falsely."

He told the jury they should disregard the side issues in the trial and reach a verdict on the law and evidence, for "we are not trying whether the defendant is white or black. We are not trying lawyers. We are not trying State lines."

Refers to Telegram Sent Him.

For the first time in his charge he referred to numerous telegrams he has received and described them as "baubles."

"The great thing the Court desires to see done, is justice in this case."

In conclusion, he told the jurors if the State had not convinced them beyond a reasonable doubt that Patterson had attacked Mrs. Price, it was their duty to acquit, but if the reasonable doubt had been removed, then a verdict of guilty should be returned and punishment fixed.

In concluding the State's arguments, Attorney-General Thomas E. Knight Jr., in a plea for a death sentence, accused the defense of "framing" its testimony. Samuel S. Leibowitz, chief of defense counsel, had called the whole case a "damnable 'frameup' by two irresponsible women."

History of Case.

Just two years ago tomorrow Patterson and seven other Negroes indicted with him were sentenced to death in Jackson Circuit Court on charges of attacking Mrs. Price and Ruby Bates. The jury failed to agree in the case of a ninth Negro accused, Roy Wright. The sentences of seven were set aside by the United States Supreme Court last November on the ground that the first trials were unfair. The State Supreme Court reversed the case of one defendant.

The International Labor Defense has interceded and supplied counsel for the Negroes.

Motion for Mistrial Denied.

A charge that defense witnesses in the Scottsboro case were "bought with Jew money" was on the record today as attorneys continued summing up speeches to the jury.

The accusation was made by Solicitor Wade Wright of Decatur. Wright called attention to the unexpected appearance of Ruby Bates, who testified at the first trials that she and Mrs. Victoria Price were attacked by nine Negroes when riding a freight train two years ago. Missing several weeks, she came into court dressed in a new spring outfit, and repudiated her earlier story.

"Are you going to stand for justice being bought?" Wright demanded. Leibowitz immediately entered motion for mistrial, but it was overruled. "I submit, your honor," Leibowitz returned, "that conviction in this case won't be worth a pinch of snuff." A moment later Wright referred to witnesses "bought with Jew money" and disparaged the testimony of Lester Carter, who was introduced by the defense in an attempt to discredit Mrs. Price. "Mr. Carterinsky, now," Wright called him. Leibowitz again moved for mistrial on the ground that prejudice was being created, but the motion again was overruled. The jury was instructed to disregard the lawyer's statements.

President Is Told "Lynch Mobs" Are Being Organized.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Charges that "Ku Klux Klan lynch mobs are being organized to murder the Scottsboro boys" were contained in a telegram to President Roosevelt sent yesterday by William L. Patterson, secretary of the International Labor Defense. Demonstrations in protest against these "lynch attempts" will be held, the organization says. The demonstrations also will demand "freedom and safety for Ruby Bates, who has been threatened with perjury because she had the courage of repudiate her framed testimony against the Scottsboro boys." Patterson's telegram to the President follows:

"Authentic information from Decatur, Ala., shows Ku Klux Klan lynch mobs are being organized to murder Scottsboro boys, their witnesses and defense lawyers, with protection of silence by State authorities who are informed of these moves and are assisting by incitement in court and by announced arrest of Ruby Bates, who has had the courage to repudiate her framed testimony of rape against these boys. In view of this, the International Labor Defense, representing 160,000 American members and affiliates, demand that you, as chief executive of the United States, guarantee the safety of these people in Alabama, where law enforcement is non-existent, so far as protection to Negroes or anyone interested in preventing murder of Negroes is concerned. We demand that you hold Gov. Miller responsible for lives and safety of these people."

30 Ships Searching Sea For Bodies From the Akron

Airplanes Called In—35,000 Square Miles Covered, and Hunt Continues Under Direction From Cruiser Portland.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. PORTLAND, at Sea off the New Jersey Coast, April 8.—Capt. Herbert Fairfax Leary, 29-year-old Commander of the Portland, the Navy's only cruiser in the North Atlantic, is directing the search for bodies and wreckage from the dirigible Akron. The Portland was ordered to this spot near which the Akron went down immediately after the disaster Tuesday. Only three of the 76 persons aboard survived and only three bodies have been recovered.

"We are continuing the search," Capt. Leary said today. "We cannot hold out hope that any of the missing still are alive, but we do hope to recover their bodies and allay in some degree at least the heartache of relatives."

Capt. Leary's desk is piled high with newly traced maps and other data, from which at a moment's notice, he can tell just where any one of the 30 searching vessels under his direction is operating. In two days he has conducted a search over 35,000 square miles of water and now operations are concentrated in an area of 500 square miles with its center 20 miles from Barnegat lightship.

The use of airplanes was discontinued today and three Coast Guard destroyers, three navy destroyers, four large Coast Guard patrol boats, 14 smaller patrol boats and four navy tugs continued the search.

Day and night, regardless of weather conditions, they are dragging the ocean bottom with grappling hooks.

Capt. Leary's maps show that 27 pieces of wreckage have been salvaged. His theory is that as the hull of the Akron breaks up, bodies will disentangle themselves and rise to the surface.

Nothing in the way of wreckage brought in by the salvage boats escaped his examination on deck yesterday. He examined a fragment of a small toy baloon found attached to a piece of kapok he and other officers agreed that some member of the Akron crew may have found the baloon in his pocket, inflated it and attached it to the wreckage, possibly with a note, just before he went under.

Among the largest pieces of wreckage picked up was a chest of signal flares from the Akron's control room and an unidentified flying suit.

The search continued despite overcast skies and the searchers arranged to put into the base ship, the Portland, occassionally with whatever bits of wreckage they could find.

Roosevelt to Attend Akron Memorial Service May 30.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—President Roosevelt plans to attend memorial services for the Akron dead at Arlington May 30.

Many churches will hold memorial services for the officers and men who lost their lives on the airship tomorrow, but the President thinks that the official service should be postponed until most of the bodies of the men have been found, or it is known that they will not be recovered. At the White House it was said no criticism of churches that hold memorial services tomorrow was implied, since it was fitting that they honor the men of their faith who went down with the airship.

OFFICIAL COUNT OF VOTE IN LAST TUESDAY'S ELECTION

Dickmann Elected Mayor by 15,560; Nolte Beat Madden by 38,016.

The official count of the vote in last Tuesday's election, announced by the Election Board today, shows no appreciable difference from the press tabulation published on Wednesday. It gives the plurality of Bernard F. Dickmann, Democrat elected Mayor, as 15,560 over his Republican opponent, President Neun of the Board of Aldermen.

The vote for Mayor: Dickmann, 156,512; Neun, 140,752; George E. Duemler, Socialist, 1735; George Benz, Workers' Communist nominee, 289; Tom K. Smith, president of Boatmen's National Bank, 1. Smith had been mentioned several months ago as a possible Democratic candidate. Someone wrote his name on a ballot.

In the contest for Comptroller, Louis Nolte, Republican re-elected, received a 38,018 plurality over William Stone Madden, Democrat.

The total vote was 299,289, or 77.7 per cent of the total registration.

Forty customers were in the bank when three robbers entered. A woman screamed. Apparently panic-stricken, the leader of the trio opened fire. One of the shots struck White in the throat and he was taken to a hospital. The robbers fled without loot.

Mrs. Clark told police the other car, driven by Walter Kendall, 35, 4243 Meramec street, cut in front of their machine. Kendall said the Clark automobile struck the left rear wheel of his automobile.

The number of motor vehicle fatalities in the city since Jan. 1 is now 45, as compared with 44 on the corresponding date last year. In a similar accident earlp yesterday William M. Ries, 24-year-old unemployed photographer, 1825 Schild avenue, was injured fatally. E. M. HOUSE LISTS WOMEN QUALIFIED TO BE PRESIDENT Woodrow Wilson's Adviser Puts Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt First.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Now comes E. M. House with a selection of American women having Cabinet or gubernatorial qualifications. In an article published in the May Cosmopolitan, House, who was adviser to President Wilson during the war, has selected a list of prominent women who, he declares, are able to govern Washington, from the office of President down to lesser posts.

He names: Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Ogden Reid, Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Fannie Hurst, Nellie Tayloe Ross, Mrs. Percy Pennypacker, Clara Driscoll Sevier, Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Miss Frances Perkins, Mrs. August Belmont, Esther Everett Lape, Mrs. Hattie Caraway, Isabella Greenway, Olga Samaroff, Mrs. Mary T. Norton and Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers.

Noting that women have served as United States Senator, as Representative and as State Governor, House declares: "This is a mere beginning. It is probable that during the next few years a Minister or an Ambassador may be added. Why not?"

House asserts the condition of the world today had been brought about by men — women could not have done worse. "Grant women the power and they will give the world peace, or come as near it as is humanly possible," he says.

POLICE TO START MAKING AUTO TAG ARRESTS APRIL 17

Motorists Who Do Not Have 1933 Licenses Will Be Required to Make Bond.

Arrests for failure to have 1933 automobile licenses will begin in St. Louis and St. Louis County on April 17, a week from next Monday.

Chief of Police Gerk announced that persons arrested for lack of State licenses would have to obtain common-law bonds. The police will apply for warrants against them at the Prosecuting Attorney's office. Prosecuting Attorney Rosecan said he would give consideration to individual defenses when the police seek warrants. One cause of consideration, he added, will be in case of persons whose money is in closed banks.

A motorist arrested for lack of a city license, who can establish identity, will be allowed to sign his own bond for appearance in Police Court. Suburban towns are expected to observe the April 17 deadline, which has been recognized for St. Louis County by Prosecuting Attorney Anderson. The State Highway Patrol has orders to start license arrests throughout the State on April 16, but probably will cooperate with St. Louis County authorities by deferring action there for a day.

DELINQUENT TAX COLLECTION BILL SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

Measure Designed to Simplify Work and Avoid Expense of Special Attorney.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—Senate bill 94, providing a method of quick, inexpensive tax collection and abolishing the duties of the delinquent tax attorney, was signed by the Governor today.

Under the law, when real etate taxes become delinquent, the Collector will sell a lien on the property at auction, for the amount of the taxes. The following year he will do so again. The owner of the property then will have a year from the date of the second lien sale in which to redeem his property from the purchaser for the amount of purchase price plus 8 per cent interest. If he does not do so, the real estate becomes the property of the purchaser. The sale of the liens, 11 months after the taxes first become delinquent, will bring funds into county treasuries quickly, proponents of the bill maintain.

Three Finish Tramp From Downtown to Forest Park in 63 Minutes; Other Drops Out.

Four business men yesterday revived a walking race from Tenth and Chestnut streets to the Lindell-Kingshighway entrance to Forest Park, in which they participated 25 years ago to the day.

Three of the contestants finished at the Blair statue in a dead heat, in total elapsed time of 63 minutes. They are: E. L. Klobasa, 54 years old, an insurance men; W. Edmin Corby, 59, secretary of a railway supply company, and James C. Espy, 60, former newspaper man and Police Department secretary. Hugh H. Two others who were in the race 25 years ago—Frank J. W. Masek and L. E. McCollum, real estate dealers—failed to arrive for the start. Corby and Espy were leading Klobasa by three blocks at Jefferson avenue, but he caught up with them in the 3000 block of Olive street and stayed with them. The race began at 3:18 o'clock and ended at 4:21. A revival of the race five years ago was won by Corby and Espy, who received a pot of $150 contributed by the entrants. ST. LOUIS IS ASSURED OF NEW U. S. BUILDING

There Had Been Fear Reforestation Program Might Delay Release of Funds.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Completion of the new Federal Building, Twelfth and Market streets, St. Louis, was assured by the release of funds yesterday by Budget Director Douglas.

During the last 10 days there had been fear that President Roosevelt's reforestation program would interfere with funds for the 10-story court and office structure in St. Louis. Douglas, however, told Congressman Cochran yesterday that the construction contract would be awarded as quickly as possible.

Bids for the building were received last Tuesday. The N. P. Severin Construction Co. of Chicago was low bidder, with an offer of $2,623,277. This does not include the foundations, which are being installed now under an earlier contract.

There had been a long controversy over the question of whether six or 10 stories should be provided in the building, followed by delays in assuring funds for carrying out the plan. Budget Director Douglas had told a congressional committee recently money for the reforestation program would be obtained, for the present, by holding up appropriations for Federal buildings. Congressman Cochran has led the effort to get the St. Louis work under way.

Another Federal construction undertaking in St. Louis—the new Postoffice at Eighteenth and Market streets—is in abeyance. Director Douglas told Cochran it has not been decided whether funds will be made available for it. The Government has acquired the large site and employed St. Louis architects to design the building.

E. J. Russell of Mauran, Russell & Crowell, architects for the Federal Building, said today the contract probably would be awarded the Severin company within 10 days. Work under it, should be started shortly thereafter and finished in 18 months to two years, he declared. Erection of the steel framework is expected to begin in about two months. Russell said the foundation contractor had virtually finished.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Would Investigate Economy League.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

CHARLES M. POLK, chairman, Missouri Branch, National Economy League, charges Senator Clark with merely aiding the wholly insincere suggestion of Commander Johnson of the American Legion for 25 per cent reduction of all veterans' benefits. May I, an ex-soldier who was wounded twice and decorated in France, be allowed equal opportunity through your columns of questioning in turn the sincerity of the organization of which Mr. Polk is chairman?

Will Mr. Polk please grant me the courtesy of a reply as to the National Economy League's interest in, and connection with, Malcolm M. Stewart's recent address to the Forum Committee of the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, in which that gentleman, replying to recent congressional opposition to the large amounts paid for the carrying of small quantities of mail, said: "The amount paid is not merely for mail, but for carrying American trade into the ports designated. A first-class nation, such as the United States is, without a friend in the world, needs a first-class navy and first-class merchant marine. We are headed for a great war, and we may be a long way from base"?

We who know and voted for Bennett Clark resent the charge of insincerity contained in Mr. Polk's letter. Most of us feel that we can more safely trust our future legislative matters in the hands of Bennett Clark than in the hands of the National Economy League.

However, inasmuch as the league is trying to influence legislation, it is only fair to the people of the United States, to Bennett Clark, whose past record was opened to the voters when he ran for public office, and to the National Economy League, itself, that the United States Senate be afforded an opportunity to look into the membership and backing of this league. For that reason, I am forwarding a copy of this letter to the Senator along with a request for such investigation. ELMER E. GRUPE.

Lincoln Steffens' Educational Experiment

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AFTER a long, futile muck-raking experience and the publication of a lengthy autobiography, Lincoln Steffens comes to the front again in his proposition to introduce radical changes in public school teaching. His plan is to teach children early in life the opposite of the "funny certainties" of their parents. Millions of older people fully realize that education from the lower grades up accomplishes this purpose in a degree; and thousands have long pondered the possibilities of some such method. The "funny certainties" of witchcraft, preparedness, racial supremacy, petit bourgeois democracy and heaven in the skies have all met successful disillusionment in many minds through public education. We should be thankful that we have come to the time when the "funny certainties" can't skin us alive or nail us to a cross, but we must not rest until they have been completely routed.

One method worth trying would be the organization everywhere of disillusionment clubs with such books as Pitkin's "Human Stupidities" and "Life Begins at 40" for text material. The community that first starts such a movement may achieve immortality.

Self-Help and the Farmer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WE of the farming districts note with some interest your editorial, "Beat the Farm Bill." Your sincerity is, no doubt, beyond question. However, we do seriously doubt the wisdom expressed therein.

The nicely pictured co-operative is in reality a blunt statement: Let the farmer help himself. Such an attitude harks back to the one repeatedly expressed during the past eight years and patiently suffered by farmers until last November. Now when the press of our own State harshly reminds us to raise ourselves out of distress by pulling our own bootstraps —well, hope suffers another setback.

I agree with you in part. The farm bill is not the best; Utopians would unqualifiedly reject it. However, I wonder if it is not a far better plan than self-help.

May I say in support of the above statements that an examination of the State and Federal statutes will reveal the fact that every aid has been given non-profit farm co-operatives? Their legal status is unique and, in my opinion, statutory changes, whether State or Federal, would be of small additional help. Therefore, the knowledge of such State and Federal statutes presumed on your part, your editorial boils down to the fact that all that can be done for the farmer has been done and that he must work out his own salvation.

In light of the above, I humbly suggest that your widely read and deeply appreciated newspaper examine the New Deal and inform us if there is a place reserved for the farmer. If, as your editorial hints, there is no place, what are you going to do with 50,000,000 farmers?

A FREER PEOPLE.

For many of us, the gaiety and jostle and wholesome carousal of early yesterday morning brought back the St. Louis of other days that we knew and loved. Our city did have a distinctive flavor before prohibition struck down its important brewing industry. Without any effort at all, we managed to get a lot of fun out of life. To use Whitman's familiar phrase, ours was a city where one could and did "loaf and invite his soul." Perhaps we did take things too easily. Certain it is our St. Louis of the old days had time to talk and sing and dine and dance. We were conspicuously free of the booster complex. Our thoughts were not geared to the vain and destructive assumption that every year had to surpass the year before. Not that the day's job was neglected, not that we were indifferent to the practical requirements. Let us put it this way: We had contrived, so to speak, a balanced ration of hustle and indolence. We knew how to play as well as how to work.

It was a lovable, friendly city, that old St. Louis. It had a genius for friendliness. That genius functioned notably, in numerous places, each with a quality peculiarly its own. There were restaurants, since become landmarks of legend: Faust's, of national celebrity; Koerner's, Nagel's, Caesar's, McTague's, and hotels like the Southern and Planters, where one saw the men of the hour, the political, professional and business leaders in delightful irresponsibility of relaxation—where one not only saw them but rubbed elbows with them and not infrequently found himself in the party.

All this was, we suppose, the democracy of a gay and festive comradeship. Whatever it was, it was charming. Anyhow, it was spontaneous. There was nothing studied about it. It was native to the soil. It was the flavor of old St. Louis.

The city that was, in many of its physical aspects and many of its mores, can never be resurrected. Our motorized civilization is another world. Yet we were adjusting ourselves to the swifter tempo of the gasoline engine when we were plunged into the unhappy experiment of constitutional prohibition, "noble in motive," as Mr. Hoover correctly said, but so dreadful in its consequences. We have never been a really normal people since that rash decision. The fine virtue of temperance which we were well toward attaining has been all but destroyed. Our manners by and large have been debauched. Our very speech has become tawdry, and courtesy and dignity have lost their prestige.

The blight is lifting. The legalization of beer is a historic event. It has come about, perhaps, through economic pressure. The Government's need of revenue possibly accounts for the modification of the Volstead Act at this time. And the economic significance of the revived brewing industry to St. Louis is obviously of major dimension. But it is in the intangibles that the great and lasting values are to be found.

Freedom. St. Louis is a freer city today than it was the day before yesterday, and the United States is a freer country. We are a freer people. A measure of personal liberty has been restored. An irksome moral yoke has been loosened. The splendid asset of moral and social competence is again ours.

The task is not finished. It must be finished. We must remove the eighteenth amendment from the Constitution and complete and perfect our second Declaration of Independence. We must recapture the privilege of walking the ways of self-respect.

Do not underestimate the legalization of beer. It is the beginning of a social renaissance. With the heads-up spirit of an old order retrieved, it may help point the way out of the economic bewilderment. And to the new St. Louis of the Municipal Opera, of the world renown of Shaw's Garden, of leagues of concrete and suburban magnificence, of the reign of our colorful Cardinals—to the new St. Louis of beauty and art in parks and plazas, the reassertion of our Bill of Rights may resurrect, perchance, the entrancing, easy, gentle impracticability of old St. Louis.

BRIEF FOR A DRIVERS' LICENSE LAW.

News item: "Wingie" Cox, one-armed Cuckoo gangster, was sentenced to six months in the Workhouse and fined $500 by Police Judge Blaine on a charge of careless driving, the fourth on which he has been convicted in the same court within the last eight months. The gangster took an appeal, so that he now has four appeals pending in Court of Criminal Correction.

CHARACTER—YOU CAN'T BEAT IT.

It is not a showy office that Louis Nolte has held all these years. Watching the city's money, scrutinizing accounts, shaking a head at proposed expenditures is prosaic work. There's nothing in it, seemingly, to capture the popular imagination. It is simply a useful, necessary job. To do it well, a man must have an uncommon supply of common sense, plenty of moral courage, a generous quota of old-fashioned honesty.

Mr. Nolte has done his job well; so well, indeed, as to have captured popular imagination. If he first got the place because he is a Republican, he has been continued in it in the latest test in spite of the fact that he is a Republican. That is a rare tribute. It was paid because, officially, he has not been a partisan but a public servant.

It has been said of Mr. Nolte that he could be elected on either ticket, and the truth of that statement has practically been demonstrated. It is something to think about—something for the officials-elect who are soon to assume responsibility, something for the hold-overs, something for us all to think about.

There is a text for a sermon in Louis Nolte's career. Sincerity, diligence, honesty—what a trinity they are! You can't beat them. Homespun virtues, of course, which the country had pretty well shoved aside during the hectic, speculative orgy when we were all more or less worshiping the god of Paper Profits. Those air castles of Gambleria are shabby ruins now, and real values have been dragged down in the crash of fictitious fortunes, and desolation stalks the land—and why? Largely because honesty was adjourned. The world went money mad, business leadership lost its sense of responsibility and political authority lacked the vision or courage to order a halt.

Suppose our Insulls and Mitchells, speaking of them as types rather than as individuals, had administered their trusts in the same spirit of integrity as Louis Nolte has administered his! Instead of expatriation and indictment, which is their portion today, they would command esteem, rejoice in finer possessions than they ever had and no such economic tragedy as now afflicts us would curse mankind.

There is no substitute for character. There is no formula, no ism, no phylactery, no dynastic plan that can serve humanity and maintain enduring standards of justice and equity unless honesty prevails in seats of the mighty.

Grover Cleveland said it long ago: "A public office is a public trust." The aphorism may be extended. Every office, in industry as in politics, is a public trust. Mr. Nolte has exemplified an eternal verity. St. Louis has honored him for it, and in so doing has honored itself.

A DANGEROUS PROPOSAL.

The official secrets bill, which has been rushed through the lower house of Congress by the State Department, is a dangerous proposal, and we are glad the Senate is being apprised of its perils.

The bill results from two unfortunate occurrences, in which official records have been made public. In one of these, code secrets of the State Department were revealed in a book by a former attache. In another, records of the Interior Department were sold to a newspaper. Neither publication was authorized by the proper authorities. Both were breaches of faith.

Now the State Department, learning that more of its code secrets are to come out in another book, asks Congress to make such offenses felonies. The House leaders acquiesced in a repressive measure prepared by the department, albeit members of the House expressed their misgivings. Some of them feared that so sweeping a measure might destroy the freedom of the press. They were particularly alarmed at this paragraph:

> Whoever shall willfully without authorization of competent authority publish . . . any matter obtained without authorization of competent authority from the custody of any officer or employe of the United States . . . shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than 10 years, or both.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, to which the bill has been referred, is now engaged in recasting the measure to meet the specific purpose which it has in view. Secretary Hull disavows any design upon the part of his department to impair the freedom of the press, and he moreover asserts that any trespass upon the rights of the press is contrary to the spirit of the administration of which he is a part. We are convinced that this is true, as we are confident that the more deliberate and more discriminating upper house of Congress will make the bill no more than it should be. Senator Borah's assurance that the bill will be so rewritten should be sufficient to quiet alarm. The bill should confine itself to the offending employe or former employe of the Government. The press should be left out of it. It cannot be included without endangering its most useful function.

The incident illustrates the chief danger of all hasty legislation. Any measure put through a legislative assembly under pressure is likely to say things the legislators do not intend.

CREDIT TO THE LEGISLATURE.

The record of the Missouri Legislature has been so uniformly unprogressive that it is distinctly gratifying to be able to record the passage of the Rollins bill to omit the names of the presidential electors from the ballot. As a result of this bill, the general ballot in presidential years henceforth will contain 15 names fewer than it did last November.

It is a reform so plainly in the interest of the voter that one is inclined to wonder how it managed to survive the fiery furnace at Jefferson City. Be that as it may, give credit where credit is due. Here is one instance in which it is due the Legislature, as well as to the League of Women Voters, at whose request Senator Rollins introduced the bill. The sooner Gov. Park signs, the quicker Missouri will join Illinois, Pennsylvania and a half dozen other states which have already taken this sensible step.

The Senate has again postponed voting on the resolution for the country's adherence to the World Court, which has been before it for 10 years. Uncle Sam, it seems, will enter that tribunal only over the Senate's dead body.

THE ANTI-NARCOTICS TREATY.

Failure of the international anti-narcotics treaty, which was feared only a few weeks ago, has happily been averted by the signing of more than enough nations to make it effective. The war on the dope traffic, both by individual and co-operating nations, has had a discouraging record. The new treaty, effective July 13, cannot solve the problem in itself, but its rigid enforcement by the signatories, including the chief manufacturing countries, should make it possible to curtail sharply an Oriental vice that has spread over the entire world.

This country's plan, as embodied in the Harrison Act, of trailing bootleggers, keeping physicians under surveillance and hounding addicts, has been unsuccessful. The new convention strikes at the producing and not the consuming end. By restricting manufacture to legitimate medical and scientific requirements, there will be, at least theoretically, no surplus for the dope peddlers to grow rich upon. Any other attack upon the problem is doomed to futility in advance, for drugs, being small of bulk, easy to handle and hard to detect, offer huge profits to the illicit vendors. It is not so easy to conceal a factory, but the signatory nations must be on the alert to prevent production over the quotas agreed upon. The drug lobby has played a large part in preventing regulation, and it is to the credit of the signatory nations that they have resisted the pressure of the smuggling interests. They can now prove their sincerity by an earnest effort at enforcement.

If Thomas R. Marshall were alive today, he would probably tell us that what this country needs is a lot of good 25-cent cigar smokers.

MRS. CUSTER.

The charge of the Light Brigade has its parallel in American history, the Custer massacre, and the same melancholy epitaph applies to both—"Someone had blundered." A contemporary link with that tragedy of the plains has just been removed with the death, at 91, of Gen. Custer's widow. She accompanied him on his campaigns, from their marriage in Civil War days until that summer of 1876 when, awaiting his return at Bismarck, N. D., from an expedition against the Sioux, she learned of the disaster on the Little Big Horn that made her a widow. Elizabeth Bacon Custer told her story well, in several volumes of high literary merit. She helped perpetuate for a quieter era the stories of covered wagon days and of how the West was won. Her life span saw the prairie transmuted from battlefield to agricultural homeland. Mrs. Custer's survival to 1933 from an already legendary past day reminds of how recently our pioneer epoch ended.

THE WATCH ON THE RHINE.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. MacDonald's Visit

IN such an invitation as Mr. Roosevelt has extended to Mr. MacDonald, there is ordinarily a considerable risk. The Prime Minister cannot travel except in a blaze of publicity, nor can he talk with the President and not have the world trying to listen at the keyhole.

The chief purpose of such meetings is to bring about a more intimate meeting of minds than can be achieved through diplomatic notes, or second-hand reports through ambassadors, or even telephonic conversations. When two responsible men are trying to work together, each needs to know not only what the other is willing to say but how he looks when he says it. More is said in a conversation than the words as such express, and so face-to-face diplomacy is very necessary in the delicate beginnings of a complicated negotiation.

Yet often in the past, the good which might result from such personal meetings has been more than offset by leaks and rumors and the distorting effects of an agitated public opinion. The two statesmen are made self-conscious by the enormous reverberation they have produced; they are beset by the suspicions of their opponents at home, and by the exaggerated expectations of their supporters. The very thing they met to achieve, an intimate understanding of their real difficulties and real purposes, is submerged in hullabaloo.

Yet the business of modern diplomacy requires just such meetings as Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Roosevelt have decided upon. Somehow a way must be found by which such meetings can take place without incurring the dangers. It can be done. In Europe, where the principal capitals are within a day's journey of Geneva, the personal contact of leading statesmen is now a commonplace. The Atlantic Ocean complicates the matter for American diplomacy. But the answer to the difficulty is essentially the same: to learn to look upon these meetings, not as producers of historic decisions and spectacular news, but as a normal part of routine diplomatic business.

A moment's reflection should convince those who make it their business to smell a rat whenever statesmen meet that sinister plots are not and cannot be hatched in meetings of this sort. If it were conceivable that Ramsay MacDonald and Franklin D. Roosevelt were intending to have, not a private talk, but a secret agreement of some sort, it should be obvious that the last thing they would do would be to call the whole world's attention to their meeting. A secret agreement, if such an absurdity were contemplated, would be arranged secretly, through private agents whose names would never appear in any newspaper; that is the way secret agreements are always arrived at.

Since it is certain that such a meeting can bring about no decision or agreement which will not become public before it is effective, it is greatly to be wished that Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Roosevelt be allowed to talk without being called upon to prove either that they have settled every question or that neither of them has sold out his country to the foreigner, or has been hornswoggled by the other.

The general intent of the meeting must be plain to anyone who has followed the course of recent events.

Ever since the summer of 1931, when the depression developed into an international financial crisis, the whole world has been subjected, not merely to the normal liquidation of inflated values, but to a vicious and uncontrolled deflation which has been ruining values that by any reasonable standard represent prudent and necessary investment.

This uncontrolled deflation has no natural end except universal bankruptcy. It has been more completely out of hand and much more nearly universal than any frenzied inflation which the world has witnessed in modern times. The consequences have been unemployment of fantastic dimensions, destitution on a scale beyond anything known in this era and the gradual destruction of faith and credit, of social order and communal feeling.

It has long been evident to clear-headed men in all parts of the world that no nation could by its own action alone arrest the deflation or insulate itself against its effects. It has been equally evident that no international action could possibly be taken effectively unless preceded and then accompanied by radical measures of domestic reorganization and adjustment. The quarrel as to whether salvation must be national or international has been an empty argument. For the truth has been that the two approaches to the problem are inextricably connected.

At no time has it been possible to resolve the crisis by any one measure. Balancing the budget would not do it, because the budget will not balance when deflation continues. Settling the war debts would not do it, because war debts are only one part of the debt burden that is deflationary. Great programs of public works would not do it, because no conceivable amount of domestic expenditure could increase employment as fast as the world deflation was destroying employment.

A genuine attack on the evil has, therefore, required concerted and simultaneous action in a whole range of matters. If you could balance the budget, and expand credit, and open the channels of trade, and initiate public works, and stabilize currencies, and control export surpluses, and do all of these things not merely in one country but in the principal commercial nations at about the same time, then a good result ought certainly to follow. The problem has been to make controlling public opinion see that the problem is not single but plural, that the remedy is in doing many organically related things together.

This understanding, at least for domestic affairs, the American people arrived at about a month ago. They made their understanding effective by a concentration of authority in the hands of Mr. Roosevelt, and today, I think, even those who were least favorable to the idea of such a concentration will admit that it has worked exceedingly well.

But it cannot work well enough to lift this country to a decent standard of life. Since the deflationary forces are international, it is necessary to deal with them also by international action. This means that essentially the same philosophy which we are applying at home has to be applied to that complex of issues which can be met only by the common action of the several leading nations.

It follows that the governments of Great Britain, France and the United States—since they represent the predominant financial power of the world—need to be armed by their people with authority to take simultaneous action on a multitude of separate questions.

The problem is not how to settle the debts. Or how to reduce tariffs. Or how to stabilize currencies. Or how to expand credit and promote capital investment. The problem is how to get all of these things, and many more besides, done together and promptly and in an atmosphere of confidence and good will.

This can be done only if there is an international public opinion convinced that they need to be done and prepared to support the governments in doing them. These questions that have to be settled together, since no one of them is worth settling alone, seem insuperably difficult only because men have fallen into the habit of thinking they are insoluble. They are no more difficult than it has been to abolish the veterans' extravagance or to bring prohibition to its end. An awakening of public opinion, leaders wise enough to be bold, and the thing can and will be done.

3.2 Per Cent Wine

Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes in the New York World-Telegram.

THE following table will give a good general idea of the alcoholic content of the more common wines:

Wine.	Alcoholic Content by Volume.
Claret	10.5
Rhine	10.5
Champagne	11.0
Sauterne	11.0
Burgundy	11.5
Sherry (natural)	16.0
Sherry (fortified)	20.0
Port (natural)	16.0
Port (fortified)	22.0
Marsala (natural)	16.0
Marsala (fortified)	20.0

It is obvious that a wine with an alcoholic content of 3.2 by weight or 4 per cent by volume would fall far short of even the lighter white wines, such as the Sauternes. It would not amount to much more than one-third the strength of the light wines or one-fourth that of the heavier wines.

We often look back with envy to the bacchanalian carousals of the Greeks and Romans, but it will surprise us, perhaps, to learn that these ancient peoples consumed little liquor except wines, and never took the latter straight in the best society. The most common mixture was three parts of water to two of wine.

This habit of mixing wine with water, charged or otherwise, is still common in Southern Europe. This would bring the alcoholic percentage of such classical mixtures, assuming a heavy wine comparable to our port, down to from 4 to 6 per cent of alcohol. If a milder wine were taken as the original basis for the mixture, the latter would not have run to more than 3 or 4 per cent of alcohol.

Therefore, while it is obvious that a normal pure wine would require from 10 to 15 per cent of alcoholic content, a beverage approximating that which stimulated the historic abandon of the age of Pericles and of Cicero could be obtained from a well-made wine embracing not more than 4 per cent of alcoholic content by volume.

ITLER EXTENDS DICTATORSHIP TO GERMAN STATES

Chancellor to Name Governors of Separate Units in Nation, and They Will Select Premiers.

ROJECT APPROVED BY CENTRAL CABINET

Under Judicial Reform Bill Candidates for Bar Must Take Courses in Racial Traditions.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 8.—Chancellor Hitler assumed dictatorial powers today over the Governmental machinery of the various republics and free states of Germany.

He will appoint Governors of the states who, in turn, will appoint State Prime Ministers and will rule independently of the State Legislatures.

Hitler becomes Governor of Prussia. Thus the appointment of a Prime Minister of that largest state, which was reported to have caused a deadlock between the National Socialists and their Nationalist allies last month, loses its importance.

Hitler has decided to name Hermann Goering, Minister without portfolio, the Prime Minister of Prussia. It was semi-officially intimated that Vice-Chancellor Von Papen himself renounced aspirations to the Prussian premiership because that post was subordinated to the Chancellorship. Von Papen is to be given "other important tasks on behalf of the Reich."

The Prussian Diet, which was to have elected the Premier under constitutional provision, adjourned indefinitely more than two weeks ago.

Von Papen to See Pope.

Von Papen started last night for Rome where he will consult Pope Pius on the relations between the National Socialists and the Catholic Church. Goering, admirer of Mussolini, also is going to Rome, leaving Monday by plane.

The law to place the state governments in closer contact with the central government was voted last night by the Cabinet. Although conflicting with the Constitution, the Cabinet was given power to pass such laws when the Reichstag approved the enabling act and then adjourned last month, leaving the Cabinet to rule alone.

The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine said that state legislatures will not be in position to vote nonconfidence in their governments. The Governors named by Hitler will control the state cambinets.

Judicial Reform Planned.

The next step advocated for the completion of the Nationalist revolution is a rebuilding of the system of jurisprudence "in the true Germanic spirit." A plan to accomplish this has been submitted to the National Department of Justice by Hans Frank, Bavarian Minister of Justice and chief legal adviser of Hitler.

The plan entails relegating Roman law to the background, although certain basic features may be retained. The study of Roman law no longer would be compulsory for students preparing for the bar. All students would be required to take cources on racial lore.

A general meeting of the Reichsbank adopted a report by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the new President, which said that unless Germany's export trade is improved the effects may be felt in the payment of private debts.

He emphasized that commercial obligations would be met conscientiously so the confidence of foreign nations might be retained. He intimated, however, that unfavorable elements in foreign trade ultimately would be felt.

Schacht said the turnover of the Reichsbank decreased 15.6 per cent in 1932 from 1931. The effects of the crisis of July, 1932, had not yet been overcome, he reported, and the bank situation was still grave. His figures on savings bank deposits showed they had increased materially and exceeded withdrawals.

Wolff's Telegraph Bureau reports that two men were killed and two injured in a political fight at Breslau, whereupon police assisted by National Socialist auxiliaries raided the workingmen's district and arrested 100 persons. Police reported arms were confiscated and said that the raid was "carried out with model discipline."

Civil Service Law.

One of the greatest upheavals in civil service known in modern times, involving the degradation of the Jew to a second-class citizen, is foreshadowed in the publication today of the Hitler Cabinet's civil service law.

Thousands of officials left over from the previous regime will be dismissed as a result and Jews will be barred in the future, although certain Jewish incumbents will be spared.

The law provides that all civil service officials who obtained office since 1918 on the basis of membership in a political party without necessary qualifications shall be discharged after the payment of three months.' salary.

Officials who possess the necessary technical qualifications, but who will not unreservedly support the new regime may also be dismissed.

Twenty-five hundred Jewish lawyers in Berlin, disqualified by the order which barred them from the courts, are waiting to hear which of them will be chosen as the 35 to whom permission to practice will be granted. Before the anti-Jewish order there were 3400 lawyers in Berlin, 900 of them Gentiles. It is expected Jewish war veterans and aged men will be preferred in selection of the 35.

At Munich an order was issued today forbidding Jews to matriculate as medical students in Bavarian universities. At Leipzig Jews will be barred from the university for 10 semesters.

The amount of Jewish blood which henceforth will serve to exclude Germans from official posts was defined today in a decree of the Cabinet. Twenty-five per cent Jewish blood will be sufficient to classify the possessor as a member of the Jewish race.

Consequently, if one grandparent of an officeholder was a Jew, the incumbent will be ousted as an undesirable.

The only Jews who will be allowed to remain in Government service are those who were employed before the war, who served at the front, or who lost fathers or sons in combat.

Socialists who entered the Government service after the November revolution of 1918 will be ousted automatically.

The new law applies to local and Federal Government posts.

SZIGETI RECITAL ENDS THE PRINCIPIA SEASON

Hungarian Violinist Plays Brahms and Mozart in Concert Here.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

THE Principia concert and lecture course came to a close last night with the recital given by Joseph Szigeti, the Hungarian violinist, in Howard Hall. Mr. Szigeti played a program that was agreeably free from cliches and mob reusers and that featured two of the finest numbers in the literature for the violin—the Sonata in D minor by Brahms and the Concerto in D major by Mozart.

He also played the Adagio and Fugue from Bach's Sonata in G minor, beloved of many violinists and generally considered as great music. But a fugue for unaccompanied violin is a little like a two-headed calf. One marvels at it but cannot help feeling that it is a violation of the natural order of things.

Mr. Szigeti commanded a warm tone and a style of bowing that seemed to be effortless despite the fact that his arm stayed in one position and the main propulsion for the bow came from below the elbow. His intonation was flawless, his phrasing—however arbitrary—was precise, and he was able to maintain an even texture of tone in all positions. Occasional squeaks came from his fiddle after a too emphatic attack and his long trill was virtually non-existent. Even so, his technique was formidable and his general style disclosed an affirmative and propulsive musical temperament.

Of his interpretations one can only say that they had a rather strong tincture of the tzigane. Oddities of tempo and rhythm and frequent dynamic fluctuations made it seem that the music proceeded more from his immediate and personal emotion than from any searching examination of the scores.

In the final block of short numbers, Mr. Szigeti substituted the "Fountains of Arethusa" by Szymanowski for "The Flight of the Bumble Bee," and played as encores as excerpt from "La Vida Breve" by Manuel de Falla and an arrangement of a Corelli Theme and Variations

It was announced during the concert that next season's artists would include Richard Crooks, American tenor; Jascha Heifetz, Greta Stuckgold, German soprano; Gregor Piatagorsky, the cellist, and the Don Cossack choir.

TODD TO BE PRESIDENT OF EDUCATION BOARD

He Has Been Agreed On, Members Say—Contest for Vice Presidency Possible.

Members of the Board of Education say it is agreed Dr. David C. Todd will be elected president of the board at its meeting next Tuesday night.

Dr. Todd, a physician, of 5669 Cabanne avenue, was re-elected to the board last Tuesday for a second six-year term. He has been vice president since last October. The board chooses its president and vice president annually, in October. Myrt A. Rollins, who has been president, did not seek re-election to the board and will retire from it on Tuesday.

An effort probably will be made to elect Dr. Solon Cameron, also a physician, to the unexpired term of vice president. His selection may not be satisfactory to Dr. Todd's supporters, who may back Howard G. Cook, patent lawyer, instead. Another possible candidate for the vice presidency is Henry P. Schroeder, who was elected to his second six-year term as a member last Tuesday. Dr. Cameron has been a member for two years and Cook for four.

Last October an unsuccessful effort was made to elect Cook president and, failing that, vice president.

Under the leadership of Rollins and his predecessor as president, Richard Murphy, the board has departed during the last year and a half from its former custom of holding executive sessions after virtually every public meeting. It used to be the practice to take up many subjects in executive sessions to avoid publicity concerning debates and differences of opinion and to defer publicity on action taken.

Executive sessions are considered necessary for the trial of teachers suspended under charges, or for the consideration of purchase of school sites. No teachers are under suspension now and the Board has no funds for buying sites. The last executive session, except for a teacher's trial, was held in May, 1932, in Murphy's term. There were 11 executive sessions under the preceding president, Emil J. Barth, but seven of these dealt with acquisition of property. Before that time such sessions were frequent.

"Executive sessions, if I become president, are going to be scarce," said Dr. Todd today, in response to inquiry by the Post-Dispatch. "There may be occasion for them sometimes but not on subjects of public interest."

The Board usually arrives at decisions on important questions in caucus preceding its formal meetings. Most of the members habitually attend meetings of all the Board's committees to keep informed of Board business and to determine how to vote.

At next Tuesday's meeting Dr. Todd and Schroeder and two new members will be installed. The new ones are, Dr. Francis C. Sullivan, dentist, and James J. Fitzgerald, undertaker. One member, Arthur S. Werremeyer, on the Board since 1927, was defeated for re-election.

48 TREES IN FOREST PARK DEDICATED AS WAR MEMORIALS

Ceremony Under Auspices of United Sons and Daughters of World War.

A grove of 48 trees east of Jefferson Memorial, in Forest Park, was dedicated today in remembrance of the service of the veterans of the World War.

The ceremony was under the auspices of the United Sons and Daughters of the World War. The program included an invocation by the Rev. Dr. Rufus D. S. Putney, addresses by Park Commissioner Pape, T. L. Anderson, and Mrs. Edward T. Smith, State Regent, Daughters of the American Colonists. The Sixth Infantry Band from Jefferson Barracks furnished music.

MINIMUM WAGE MEASURE VOTED IN NEW YORK STATE

Bill, Designed to Aid Women and Children, Sent to Gov. Lehman, Who Is Expected to Sign It.

PROVIDES BOARDS TO REGULATE PAY

Proposal Advocated 20 Years Ago by Group That Included Franklin D. Roosevelt and Smith.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 8.—A minimum wage bill intended chiefly to aid the women and children employed in sweat shops and loft factories of New York City was passed and sent to Gov. Lehman by the New York Legislature yesterday.

The bill, with which Lehman is in sympathy, sets up a wage director in the Labor Department and provides for boards to review conditions and recommend wages for women and children. Failure of manufacturers to avide by the minimum wage established makes them liable to fine and imprisonment.

More than 20 years ago three young Democratic legislators and a young woman social worker were trying to convince a Legislature that the minimum wage was a good idea. The four persons were President Roosevelt, then a State Senator; Alfred E. Smith, then a member of the Assembly; United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, then a State Senator from New York City, and Miss Frances Perkins, now Secretary of Labor.

Throughout the years Republicans and Democrats alike demanded minimum wage laws, but always a majority in one or both houses opposed them.

Miss Perkins and Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President, both have deplored in recent weeks the reports of sweat shop conditions. Mrs. Roosevelt urged American women to determine so far as possible whether the clothes they buy were made under such conditions, and to let merchants know they were making an effort to avoid such products.

Miss Perkins, in a hearing at Albany just before she resigned as State Industrial Commissioner to accept her Cabinet post, said that women who buy sweat shop-made clothes are contributing to the evil.

Under the minimum wage act 50 citizens may petition for a wage hearing. A board of nine, three employers, three employes and three disinterested persons would hear evidence. The board would submit its report to the wage director.

The bill calls a "fair wage," a "wage fairly and reasonably commensurate with the value of the service or class of service rendered."

An "oppressive and unreasonable wage" is defined as one that "is less than sufficient to meet the minimum cost of living necessary to health."

"Fair wages" may differ with localities and within industries."

MRS. MARGARET M. HALE, WIDOW OF PUBLISHER, DIES

Was Active in Work of D. A. R. and U. D. C.—"Mother Hale" to Soldiers During War.

Mrs. Margaret Miriam Hale, widow of Philip Henry Hale, former publisher of a livestock journal, died of infirmities yesterday at her home, 6645 University Drive, University City. She was 77 years old, a resident of St. Louis since 1890.

Mrs. Hale until recent years was active in affairs of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

During the World War, Mrs. Hale was an active social worker at Jefferson Barracks and other cantonments, known to many soldiers as "Mother Hale." She exchanged letters with many of the men during their service overseas and after the war.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m., Monday, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank C. Rand, 7100 Delmar boulevard. A son, Philip H. Hale of Webster Groves; seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren also survive.

AVIATRIX REACHES HAI-PHONG

Maryse Hiltz of France on Way to Tokio.

HONGKONG, April 8. — Maryse Hiltz, French aviatrix and claimant of the world altitude flight record for women, arrived today at Hai-Phong, seaport of French Indo-China, on a flight by stages from Paris to Tokio. JOFFEE IN APPEAL TO GOV. PARK TO VETO BUFORD BILL

Kansas City Senator Argues Utilities Measure Will Hurt Public and Democratic Party.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—Senator Jerome M. Joffee of Kansas City filed with Gov. Park yesterday an argument in support of his appeal to the Governor to veto the Buford bill, passed by the Legislature after an active campaign for it by electric and gas utilities.

"It is my sincere hope," Senator Joffee wrote to the Governor, "that you will see your way clear to veto it as promptly as possible so that the people may know in an unmistakable way that the public utilities do not control the government of this State."

Joffee fought the bill on the floor of the Senate, charging that it "was written by the utilities, in the selfish interest of the utilities, and contrary to the interests of the people of the State."

The bill, which was finally passed yesterday, probably will not reach the Governor's desk before Monday. It rewrites the entire public utility law of the State and consists of 190 printed pages. As the Legislature is expected to adjourn within 10 days, the Governor will have 30 days after adjournment to pass on it.

Two General Grounds.

Joffee urged a veto on two general grounds—the welfare of the State and the welfare of the Democratic administration.

He pointed out that the bill, which abolishes the Public Service Commission and substitutes a new commerce commissoin, was not needed by the party to get the more than 300 jobs which would be available to the administration if it should become a law. He directed attention to the fact that the Governor has before him another bill giving him power to remove any appointive official and that if it were only desired to get the jobs, that bill would accomplish the purpose.

He suggested that if the Governor did not desire to avail himself of the provisions of that bill, the way will be open within a few days for him to replace a Republican Commissioner with a Democrat, and thus have a commission of three Democrats and two Republicans. The term of Commissioner Almon Ing, Republican, expires April 15.

Joffee informed the Governor that the Public Service Commission has well under way valuations of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. in St. Louis, and the Empire District Electric Co. a Doherty subsidiary in Southwest Missouri, and that "it is reasonable to assume" the commission will order rate reductions.

"Obvious" Advantage to Utilities.

"It is obvious," Joffee wrote, "that even if the bill merely restated the law, the utilities could reasonably hope to benefit to the extent of untold sums of money by the appointment of a commission whose ideas on valuations would not be so critical as those of the present commission."

He followed this with a showing that the bill was not a mere restatement of the utility law, but that it materially changed the law in many places. He reviewed his argument in the Senate in which he pointed out many of these changes. The substance of this argument was published in the Post-Dispatch when the bill was before the Senate.

He said that the changes in the law affecting commission control over gas companies was in his opinion sufficient to "warrant the vetoing of the bill." This change was in the definition of gas plants which in the bill are described as plants which manufacture or distribute "gas for light and power." "The old law reads for light, heat and power." Joffee said that in his opinion, and in the opinion of others, this omission of the word "heat" would remove from the control of the commission all gas used for cooking and heating, which, he said, constituted about 95 per cent of the gas business.

Points Listed Line by Line.

The Joffee letter was a brief covering all the important points in the bill, citing section and line number of all the provisions he considered detrimental to the interests of the State.

"I need not call your attention to the political significance of this bill, and, if approved by you, its effect on the Democratic party," Juffee wrote preliminary to his concluding sentence in which he urged an immediate veto to show that "the public utilities do not control the government of this State."

WHY INDUSTRIES HERE ARE OPPOSED TO 30-HOUR WEEK

Manufacturers Say It Would Reduce Earnings of Persons Now Employed and Cut Buying Power.

HARMFUL WHERE LABOR IS SKILLED

Congressman Also Told Another Large Army of Federal Enforcement Officers Would Grow Up.

Objections of St. Louis industries to the 30-hour week bill, which has been passed by the Senate at Washington, were explained today by Noble H. Davis, manager of the Manufacturers' and Merchants' Association of St. Louis. The objections are all on practical grounds and do not go into the questions of public policy and the constitutionality of the bill.

The association's Board of Directors yesterday sent to Missouri Senators and members of the House of Representatives a resolution opposing the bill which would bar from interstate commerce, with few exceptions, the products of factories and plants where employes work longer than six hours a day five days a week.

The Main Objections.

The principal objections as brought out by the association's directors in their discussions and explained by Davis, in brief, are:

Compulsory reduction of working hours would necessarily reduce the earnings of persons now employed and thus decrease their purchasing power, without any assurance that it would cause additional employment in any substantial amount.

It would cause serious dislocation in industries where special skill and training of workers and continuous processes are important factors.

It would hamper industries of a seasonal nature where production has to be guaged to meet timely demands.

It would favor factories selling their products wholly within the state where produced and would discourage the free flow of commerce throughout the United States, perhaps leading to the abandonment of some large industries with consequent loss of jobs by workers.

Policing on a large scale by Federal officers would be necessary for enforcement, adding to the evils of the extensive Federal prohibition enforcement agencies.

Hourly Basis a Factor.

"One of the most serious effects, in the view of our directors," Davis said, elaborating on these points, "would be the reduction of earnings of workers now employed. Most industrial workers are paid on an hourly basis and the average wage, for all industries, is about 50 cents an hour, perhaps now slightly less. This would mean all those workers now putting in more than 30 hours a week would suffer a reduction of earnings. For instance, an employe now working 40 hours would have his wages cut about $5 a week, which naturally would lead to dissatisfaction among those affected.

"This might be disregarded if there were any certainty that additional employes would be put to work in proportion to the reduction in hours. We doubt this for several reasons. One is that many St. Louis industries are today keeping employes in excess of actual needs simply because of humanitarian considerations. Another is that this restrictive measure would encourage further mechanization of industry, especially where continuous processes are used, so as to reduce as much as possible the uncertainties from introducing another shift of workers.

Wages Lag Behind Prices.

"It is argued by supporters of the bill that basic wage rates would be increased so that workers would receive the same pay as now. Anyone who knows how the earnings of industries have been hit by the depression knows this is impossible. A study of statistics shows that wage rates respond rather slowly to price advances, actually lagging somewhat behind. If this bill is made a law we probably will have for quite a time millions of workers on reduced earnings struggling to get along in the face of advancing prices.

"Some industries can operate efficiently only when the process is continued over the 24 hours of the day. For these the bill would mean introduction of another shift of workers, or possibly merely a reassignment of present employes. In some industries where special skill and training are needed it is not an easy matter to find a complete new set of competent employes, even in these times. Even where operation is not continuous, it often is the case that investment in machinery and plant is such that operation for eight or more hours is necessary in order to pay overhead expenses and have a profit, but the introduction of another shift of workers under the circumstances might prove disastrous.

"Seasonal industries, particularly those in which skilled workers are required, frequently take care of peak demand by overtime work, which would not be permitted under this bill. In such cases it might be impossible to train workers for the temporary jobs, and use of workers not properly trained would result in an inferior product with much waste and loss of business."

Davis mentioned clothing as one of the seasonal industries with which St. Louis is much concerned. Production of steel also is largely seasonal, he said.

The competitive advantage that might be had by firms confining their business to their own state is a matter of concern to industrial executives, Davis said. He thought plants free of the 30-hour restriction because of keeping their business within a single state might bring about ultimate destruction of some of the larger firms with nation-wide sales. St. Louis would be particularly affected because of its large markets in adjoining Illinois.

Controlling Distribution.

He called attention also to the difficulty of controling distribution. A manufacturer might sell only to wholesalers or retailers in his own state, but these, in turn, might ship the product into another state, attaching the fear of law violation to the whole distributive process.

The view of the manufacturers is that they should not be restricted as to hours by Federal law, but should be free, as business recovers from the depression, to increase hours "up to the generally accepted and equitable standard," and so they would not favor the modified provision for a 36-hour week which was voted down in the Senate.

They take the position that exploiters of labor who work employes more than a reasonable number of hours should be handled by state laws.

34-Hour Average Here Now.

Davis said statements in the bill that employes were being required to work "12, 14 and even 16 hours" were ridiculous. He said a survey in St. Louis last November showed employes in industrial plants were working an average of 34 hours a week compared with 38 hours a year ago. The National Industrial Conference Board reported that in December the average working time of industrial employes throughout the United States was 35.4 hours a week.

The difficulties of enforcing such a Federal law are obvious, Davis said. There would be a tendency for irresponsible concerns to evade the law, perhaps bootlegging their products into other states, causing the creation of another army of Federal inspectors and police officers.

RUDY VALLEE'S WIFE SUED FOR ALIENATING AFFECTIONS

Woman Seeks $100,000 from Fay Webb, Accusing Her of Stealing Her Husband.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Fay Webb, wife of Rudy Vallee, was served with a summons in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit yesterday as she boarded a train for the West coast. Mrs. Kathleen Leon charges Mrs. Vallee with alienating the affections of her husband, Garfield Leon, a dancer.

The process server reached Mrs. Vallee at Harmon, N. Y., as she was about to board a train for her home in Santa Monica, Cal. Her father, Police Chief Clarence Webb of Santa Monica, was with her. They boarded the train and departed.

Vallee's lawyer announced recently that Vallee and his wife had definitely agreed to live apart, but that no decision on divorce had been made.

30-HOUR WEEK BILL HELD UP IN SENATE FOR ANOTHER VOTE

Motion to Reconsider Made by Trammell, Who Would Apply Law to Imported Articles.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The 30-hour work week bill has been held up in the Senate by a motion entered by Trammell (Dem.), Florida, to reconsider the vote by which it was passed.

Trammel made the motion which he said he would call up next Tuesday, at the same time as the bill's author, Black (Dem.), Alabama, offered another measure to establish a six-hour day, 42-hour week for railroads.

Trammel told newspaper men that he had several amendments to propose, one of which would extend to imports the bar against interstate shipments to industrial commodities produced by labor working more than 30 hours.

Democratic House leaders have put such legislation aside until after the emergency program has been passed.

A statement by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said: "Labor regards the passage of the Black bill by the United States Senate as an outstanding achievement."

"A Virtual Embargo."

A similar amendment to Trammel's proposal was offered Thursday by Senator Hatfield (Rep.), West Virgiina, and was defeated by one vote after Senator Bankhead (Dem.), Alabama, changed from "aye" to "no" to supply the slim margin.

Opponents of this amendment contended it would be a virtual embargo against foreign manufactured articles as hardly any foreign country employs the 30-hour week.

"I don't like the idea," Trammell said, "of a bill saying to the people at home they shall not be allowed to ship in interstate commerce under restrictions and then leave the door wide open to foreign-made goods without restriction."

Black's six-hour-day bill for railroad workers was referred to the Interstate Commerce Committee. It would repeal the existing eight-hour day law for the carriers and make the shorter day effective next July 1.

As to Wage Contracts.

Pending revision of existing labor contracts, the bill would prevent changing present basic rates of pay "except by writen agreement between the contracting parties." In the absence of such agreements the employes' wages could not be reduced below a "standard day's wage."

In revising the contracts or making new ones, it would be permissible to "agree upon a limitation of hours of service to an aggregate number of hours of standard service for either one day, or one week, or one month, with the respective limitations of either not more than six hours in one day, or not more than 42 hours in one week, or not more than 180 hours in one month."

Penalty for violation of the act would be not more than $1,000 fine, or imprisonment of not more than one year, or both.

Action Praised by Green.

President Green of the Federation of Labor said in a formal statement that Senate approval of the Black bill "can be properly interpreted as a blow at the vital spot of unemployment," he added:

"In operation it will create work opportunities for millions of idle working men and women. It represents the first real practical step on the part of the Government to constructively deal with the problem of unemployment.

"Labor regards the passage of the Black bill by the United States Senate as an outstanding achievement. Definite concentrated efforts will now be put forth to secure favorable action by the House of Representatives."

STEELS AND RAILS MOVE HIGHER LATE IN SESSION

Net Gains of Fractions to Around Point Recorded in Several Leading Issues in Generally Quiet Market

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Late buying of rails and steels gave the stock market an upward tilt toward the close of a quiet, listless session, today. Net gains ranged from fractions to around a point in several leading issues, but sales for the two-hour session were only about 400,000 shares.

Bullish activity in shares was held in check for a time by a reactionary tendency in grains in the early trading, but the tone of week-end business advices finally prompted enough short covering and new buying to pull the list a little higher.

In the rails, issues up about ½ to 1 point, included Santa Fe, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville, and Union Pacific, while Delaware & Hudson jumped 2.

Steel Stocks Rise.

Steels displayed the most pronounced group movement in some time, with a number of comparatively inactive issues joining in the rise. Issues up around a point, including United States Steel, Bethlehem, National Steel, A. M. Byers and American Rolling Mill, while Republic and Crucible advanced fractionally.

Miscellaneous issues up about a point included American Telephone, Allied Chemical, duPont, Liggett & Myers B, and Columbia Carbon. Oils and sugars lagged and the wet stocks appeared fully to have discounted to the new beer business. Farm implements and mail orders were slightly firm. Woolworth was heavy.

The total short interest was reported for April 1 at 1,464,874 shares, against 1,654,221 a month earlier, indicated some impairment of the technical position, although the current short interest was believed to be of fair proportions, in view of the small volume of trading.

Freight Car Movement.

The freight movement reported for last week showed a gain of 18,738 cars to a total of 494,588, which was only 9.2 per cent under the like week of last year, against a recession of 15.1 per cent in the previous week.

The General Motors sales report for March, appearing as the market closed, attracted attention. Sales to consumers in the United States were 47,436 cars and trucks, a gain over the total of 42,280 in February, and close to the 48,717 in March of last year. The showing was regarded as encouraging, in view of the banking holiday early in the month.

Wall street was keenly interested in the administration's proposed banking reform bill, providing, among other things, Federal insurance of bank deposits. The financial community has been traditionally opposed to bank deposit guaranty, but some quarters saw merit in the present proposal, in that it would tend to bring all banks into the reserve system.

Reports of the country's response to the legal brew did much to counteract in sentiment the poor statistics shown by the railroad industry for the month of February, when net operating income was 54½ per cent below February a year ago.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES UNCHANGED TO 3 POINTS UP

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Cotton futures opened steady, 2 higher to 2 lower on trade buying and liquidation.

Cotton futures closed steady, unchanged to 3 higher. May, 6.49-50c; July, 6.66c; Oct., 6.87c; Dec., 7.01c; Jan., 7.07c; March, 7.20c. Spot quiet; middling, 6.55c.

May opened at 6.48; July, 6.65; Oct., 6.88; Dec., 6.99; Jan., 7.07; March, 8.17. Business was moderately active at the start with orders evenly divided, but the disposition to take profits after the recent sharp advances was in evidence and prices eased slightly during the early trading. Little if any Southern selling was reported, but Liverpool again had some selling orders here and there was further May liquidation. The latter was absorbed by the trade against sales of later deliveries and there was some further commission house buying in the later months on the decline which carried May off to 6.44 and October to 6.83. The market showed net losses of 3 to 5 points before going far.

Liverpool cables reported a quiet, steady market with moderate selling by Bombay absorbed by fair buying from Alexandria. Cotton on shipboard at U. S. ports awaiting clearance at the weekend was estimated at 91,000 bales against 141,000 last year.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada continues the largest individual holder of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. shares, according to a record of the leading holders as of last March 14, just issued. The Canadian company's investment was unchanged at 126,650 shares.

The second largest holding was in the name of A. Iselin & Co., New York bankers, but at 78,696 shares their investment was about 16,000 shares less than a year ago. Most of the other major holders are nominees for investment trusts and individuals.

Some of these are Barnes & Co. with 73,726 shares, against 62,284 a year ago; Dumuer & Co., 58,400, against 58,443; Sigler & Co., 53,861, compared with 59,773.

Futures were a little easier with the market closing 1 to 2 points net lower. The more liberal offerings in the spot market seemed to check fresh buying, and after opening unchanged to 2 points lower the market showed little variation during the balance of the session with final prices at about the lowest.

The selling seemed to come through houses with producing connections, and this together with profit-taking was sufficient to ease prices.

Sales 14,450 tons. May closed 1.10, July 1.16, Sept. 1.18, Dec. and Jan. 1.21, Mar. 1.24. Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.20 for fine granulated. Withdrawals were moderate.

Consolidated Oil Corp. Report.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Consolidated Oil Corporation, for 11 months ended Dec. 31, last, reports net profit of $1,601,039. The company's pamphlet statement points out that the report does not provide a basis for comparison with figures in the last annual report which covered a period of 13 months ended Jan. 31, 1932.

The title of the present corporation was adopted early last year by the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation, when the properties of the Prairie Pipe Line Co. and Prairie Oil & Gas Co. were acquired.

The Consolidated organization for the 11 months showed gross operating earnings, exclusive of inter-company sales, inter-company transportation charges and U. S Federal and state gasoline and oil taxes, of $133,065,512. At the end of the year the company had current assets of $119,832,673, of which cash and marketable securities amounted to $44,745,326, against current liabilities of $17,909,106.

Rubber Consumption Off.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Rubber consumption in the United States declined in 1932 for the fourth successive year, on the basis of a survey by the Commerce Department.

Co-operating with manufactures, reclaimers, dealers and others who submitted reports, the department announced that the crude rubber consumption for the year dropped from 350,000 long tons in 1931 to 332,000 long tons last year, while the consumption of reclaimed rubber was 77,500 long tons as compared with 123,000 long tons in 1931.

The very sharp decline in the use of reclaimed rubber was mainly responsible for the relatively good maintenance of crude rubber consumption, the department said. The use of reclaimed rubber declined much more in 1932 than in the two previous years, amounting to 23.3 per cent of crude consumption and 18.9 per cent of total consumption, as compared with 35.1 per cent and 26 per cent, respectively, in 1931.

WHEAT MARKET LOWER IN TRADING AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Lessened attention that grain traders gave to currency inflation talk accompanied a sharp decrease of speculative buying today, and all cereals averaged lower in price.

Best rallies in wheat values followed report of new dust storms in Kansas. There was also unfavorable comment from Indiana, but upturns failed to hold.

Wheat closed weak, ⅜@¾c under yesterday's finish; corn ⅝@¾ down; oats ¼@½ off and provisions unchanged to a setback of 2 cents.

Downturns in grain prices early today resulted from lack of any vigorous buying support and from increased pressure to sell. Corn especially was weak. Opening unchanged to ⅝ cent off, wheat early afterward declined all around. Corn started at ⅜@⅞ cent down, and showed little power to rally early.

The fact that the Liverpool market was totally unresponsive to price advances on this side of the Atlantic, was among reasons which traders gave to explain reverse action of wheat values. Some selling of wheat was based on a forecast of possible rain or snow in drought districts west and southwest. In striking contrast with recent widespread purchasing for the general public, today's wheat business was mainly local much of the time and restricted to professional traders.

Tumbles of a cent a bushel in wheat prices and 1½ cents in corn were soon witnessed. Many buyers were reported to be awaiting developments at Washington, particularly regarding agricultural legislative progress. Comparative firmness of Winnipeg wheat quotations was also ignored.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Provisions averaged lower responsive to the course of hog values.

NARROW RANGES TO BONDS IN TRADING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Bonds were quiet and fairly steady today, prices generally milling about in an extremely narrow range. United States Government securities still maintained their leadership, although changes in this list were, for the most part, unimportant.

Small upward ranges were shown in some issues of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern, Erie, Illinois Central, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Frisco and Southern. There were a number of fractional downward ranges, however, scattered throughout this section.

Most of the utilities and industrials were content to mark time. Improvement was shown during session by some loans of American Telephone, American & Foreign Power, American Smelting, American I. G. Chemical, Hudson Coal, Texas Corporation, Consolidated Gas, Dodge Bros., Utilities Power & Light, Goodrich, Phillips Petroleum and Sinclair Oil.

German Government obligations displayed feeble rallying tendencies and minor upward ranges were registered by some corporation loans of the Reich. Japanese bonds again ranged forward and Austrian maturities ranged a trifle higher.

CURB RANGES HIGHER IN MODERATE TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The curb ... in advance in a moderately active ... market today, though net changes ... largely limited to fractions.

... of metal shares and a number of miscellaneous industrials was the feature of the session. Utilities again were quiet, but leading issues in that group finished mostly higher.

Newmont Mining was strong and active, finishing half a point higher. Lake Shore Mines gained a major fraction and Pioneer Gold climbed to a new high. New Jersey Zinc also rallied. Aluminum of America rose more than a point. In specialties, Great Atlantic & Pacific had a sharp run-up.

Electric Bond & Share and American Gas each gained about half a point net, but met some profit-taking, especially Gulf ... related ... Ohio Oil improved.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. Tabloid Summary of Business

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Tabloid review of business reported by Dun-Bradstreet in the four divisions of wholesale and jobbing, retail trade, manufacturing and industry and collections this week, compared with the corresponding period last year. Good (G) means above; fair (F) equal to; quiet (Q); slow (S) below last year.

Who. Det. Mfg. Col. —COMMENT ON TRADE—

ST. LOUIS ....G G F G General upswing in number of wholesale orders received for textiles, millinery, ready-to-wear clothing and shoes. Better demand from rural stores, due to price increases for many farm commodities. Chemical industries operating on good schedules. Flour trade has slackened somewhat.

BOSTON ....G G F G Further improvement in retail trade due mainly to more seasonal weather. Labor difficulties in most shoe manufacturing centers settled. Wool market firm, with current quotations about 10 per cent above last month's. Automobile sales increase.

BUFFALO ....F G F G Demand for Easter requirements stimulating retail trade, and requests for immediate shipments usually accompany orders to wholesalers. Some manufacturers being helped by activity of brewing industry. Paints, hardware and lumber moving in better volume.

PHILADELPHIA ....G F F G Manufacturers of silks, knit goods and full-fashioned hosiery operating on good schedules. Upholsteries and draperies moving well. Painting pledges for work to be performed in next six months total in excess of $1,750,000. Demand for oil and lumber gaining.

PITTSBURGH ......F F G S More seasonable weather has stimulated retail sales of dry goods and textile lines; men's and women's wearing apparel moving more freely. Production of beer bottles at the highest point in more than 14 years; increased demand for bar glassware. Steel schedules rise to 16½ per cent; decline in production of bituminous coal; crude oil production lower.

CHICAGO ....G G G G Furniture noticeably less active than last week, when consumers bought to avoid the new retail sales tax. Cash sales on the increase, particularly for expensive, or so-called luxury merchandise. Several thousand buyers in wholesale markets for midseason sales features. Wholesale dollar totals ahead of those for comparative week of 1932. Steel output up.

CLEVELAND ....F G F F Gains in retail distribution, chiefly in men's and women's wearing apparel and house furnishings. Wholesale buying still cautious, despite rising price trend. With some banks still operating on a restricted withdrawal basis, seasonal manufacturing has been hampered.

DETROIT ....F G F S Normal retail trade developing, as result of better banking facilities. More than 55 per cent of retail trade on cash basis during March. Automobile production being resumed on a careful basis. Electric power consumption increasing. Collections recovering slowly.

KANSAS CITY .....F G S F Movement of principal farm products fair, with prices continuing steady. Good spurt in wholesale buying of Easter merchandise. General level of retail trade higher than level reached immediately preceding the bank holiday. Credit conditions continue to improve.

MILWAUKEE ....G F G G Retail trade has quieted down somewhat, following the spurt of the last two weeks; bulk of Easter buying expected next week. New plants for breweries being rushed to completion; more men being employed daily by this new industry, which is speeding up production in all related lines.

ATLANTA ....G G F S Department store sales heavy; wholesale trade showing a marked upward trend. Construction work at best level in past year. Cotton cloth production in March somewhat lower than in February, when output gained 16.5 per cent over the January record.

BALTIMORE ....F F Q Q Reports from automotive industry more encouraging; brewers purchasing passenger automobiles and motor trucks. Slight improvement in shipbuilding industry. Warehouse stocks of tobacco substantially lower than at beginning of year; week's sales chiefly of 1931 crop at unchanged prices.

DALLAS ....G G Q F Sales in both the wholesale and retail divisions have increased steadily since the passing of the banking holiday. Rural merchants postpone buying, awaiting outcome of farm relief measures, which will affect this immediate section. Petroleum industry continues in a disorganized state.

SAN FRANCISCO ...G G F F Retail sales volume continues to gain. More manufacturing industries reporting increased activity. Many new stores being opened for the sale of beer. Livestock range conditions poor in most sections of California. Spring lamb kill expected to be about 80 per cent of normal. Employment increased in outdoor work and building trades.

ACTION AGAINST MANAGEMENT OF PHOENIX SECURITIES CO.

Removal Sought by Interests Affiliated With International Utilities Corporation.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Removal of the present management of Phoenix Securities Co., formerly the Prince & Whitely Trading Corporation, is sought by interests affiliated with the International Utilities Corporation, it was learned today. The latter is sponsored by Percy M. Chandler, New York and Philadelphia public utility financier.

Proxies to accomplish this purpose are being solicited by Burco, Inc., which purchased 100,000 shares of Phoenix Securities stock formerly held by the International company. Efforts to effect a merger of Burco and Phoenix proved unsuccessful, the Burco company alleges, due to the attitude of the Phoenix management. The Phoenix company more than a year ago took over the property of the Prince & Whitely Trading Corporation, which was formed to liquidate the assets of the bankrupt New York Stock Exchange firm of Prince & Whitely.

ALDERMEN PASS TWO PAVING BILLS AT FINAL SESSION

Provide for Completion of Work on Widened Morgan and Natural Bridge; Pass Other Measures.

COMMITTEE NAMED FOR INAUGURATION

Neun in Address Pays Tribute to Fellow Members Defeated at the Recent City Election.

In closing its annual session yesterday, the Board of Aldermen passed bills for paving widened Morgan street and a remaining section of widened Natural Bridge avenue and 65 minor improvement and relief bills.

A special committee was appointed by Acting President Kuhs to arrange for the inauguration on April 18 of Mayor-elect Dickmann, Democrat; Comptroller Nolte, Republican elected to a fifth four-year term, and the 14 new Democratic Aldermen. The new board will start the session for the next fiscal year on that day.

Kuhs, one of nine Republican Aldermen defeated for re-election, named on the committee Alderman Neumann, chairman, and Aldermen Ellers, Kralemann, Hennerich and Pahl. The latter two are Democrats, elected last November, and the others Republicans, all the committee members being among the Aldermen whose terms run until 1935. The new board will have a Democratic majority, for the first time in the 78-year history of this legislative body.

Walter J. G. Neun, Republican, president of the board, who was defeated for Mayor, delivered the customary address of the city's chief executive at the closing aldermanic session. He is acting mayor in Mayor Miller's absence and after Dickmann takes office Neun will remain as aldermanic president until 1935.

Neun Praises Aldermen.

"I want to pay tribute," he said, "to the members of the board who have worked hard and diligently for the good of the city. You worked hard in your committees day after day and have done everything any good citizen could expect of you. You have made a wonderful record. Your work should have been recognized and appreciated by our citizens. Things do happen at election time for which there is no explanation. I want all you members who are leaving to know you have made a wonderful record and we are sorry to see you leave us."

One of the bills passed appropriates $18,700 to reimburse 552 property owners for benefit taxes paid for the acquisition of a playground 600 feet square at the west end of the Arsenal street viaduct. This follows a practice some time ago of remitting benefits charged for playground sites. Alderman Pahl introduced the bill.

A committee was appointed to consider abatement or regulation of roller skating on the streets by children. It consists of Alderman Waldman, who offered the resolution calling for the committee, and Aldermen Wetzel and Bergmann. This group will advise with the Safety Council, Police Department, Street Department and Board of Education. It will consider the practicability of setting aside little-used streets near schools for exclusive use of skaters during certain hours.

Paving of widened Morgan street is to be done in six sections, the appropriations for which total $281,100. The work will extend between Third and Fourteenth streets and between Jefferson and Spring avenues, with cutoffs at Spring to Delmar boulevard and Enright avenue. Morgan was widened to the 80-foot width between Fourteenth and Jefferson a number of years ago.

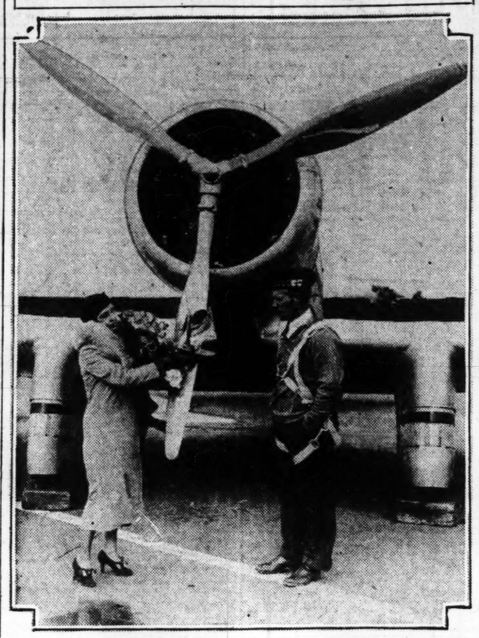

Trees to Be Removed.

The section of Natural Bridge to be paved is between Garrison and Fair avenues, all but one block lying beside Fairground Park. This section was delayed last year because of a controversy over saving 246 trees in a strip of ground along the edge of the park. A single 76-foot roadway plan was adopted and the trees will be removed. The Natural Bridge paving will be in two contracts, appropriations aggregating $169,600.

In the case of Morgan street, $98,312 of the paving cost will be paid with bond funds and the balance, $182,788, assessed against abutting property. The city will pay $67,840 of the cost of the Natural Bridge work with bond funds and, for the portion adjoining the park, $65,000 from municipal revenue, while $36,760 will be charged against abutting property.

Entire membership of the Board of Aldermen was present yesterday. This included the eight Republicans besides Kuhs who were defeated for re-election, two Republicans defeated for renomination, John Neu Jr., Thirteenth Ward, who made an unsuccessful attempt to win the Republican nomination for Mayor, and Harry P. Riefling, Fifteenth Ward, who did not seek re-election. All of these were present for the last time.

HELEN KELLER STORY DENIED BY G. B. SHAW

Asserts He Did Not Say Before Her All Americans Were Deaf, Dumb and Blind.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, April 8.—George Bernard Shaw arrived early this morning and set out on a sightseeing tour. Once again he denied that he ever had said in the presence of Helen Keller that all Americans are deaf, dumb and blind. "The American is a funny animal," said he, "tell him he has a nose on his face and two eyes, and immediately he is insulted. The Italians and the Russians are not so dumb, so deaf, so blind, because they are tackling their problems in a new way."

"Isn't Cuba independent?" he asked. "But I suppose the United States is the manager. That's logical. If the Cubans can't run the country themselves, they get an American to manage it.

"Why is there so much interest in Hitler I wonder? Nobody knows what he's driving at. His persecution of the Jews puts him outside consideration.

"Japan? Japan joined the League of nations like the others, without knowing what it was. No real question ever is referred to the League. It was Japan's brilliant idea not to declare war but merely to attack. The nation which formally declares war in the future will be blown to bits before the ink is dry.

"Those Englishmen accused of sabotage in Russia—they will get a fairer trial there than they would in other countries."

Helen Keller's Secretary Contradicts Shaw's Statement.

COLUMBUS, O., April 8.—George Bernard Shaw's statement that he did not criticise all Americans as "blind and deaf—and dumb" in the presence of Helen Keller, was contradicted today by Miss Polly Thomson, Miss Keller's secretary.

Commenting on the meeting of the playwright with Miss Keller in the home of Lady Astor, Miss Thomson said: "I was standing next to Lady Astor and Miss Keller with her teacher, Mrs. Mason, when Mr. Shaw made the remark. Mrs. Mason immediately spelled out Mr. Shaw's statement to Miss Keller. Most decidedly the statement was made in her presence."

Shaw was quoted in a wireless message to the Brooklyn Eagle yesterday as saying: "I shall repeat the remark at greater length on the eleventh, but I never made it in the presence of my friend, Miss Keller." He is scheduled to arrive in New York on April 11.

Miss Keller, accompanied by Miss Thomson and Charles Hayes, president of the American Federation for the Blind, arrived here this morning to attend a general session of the Ohio Educational Conference.

MISSOURI HOUSE CUTS LAWYERS' FEE TO $2500

P. H. Cullen and C. H. Moore Sought $7500 for Handling Auto License Plate Suit.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8. — A proposed fee of $7500 to be paid by the State to P. H. Cullen, and Charles H. Moore, St. Louis attorneys, for representing former Secretary of State C. U. Becker, in a suit to compel Becker to award the contract for manufacturing the 1932 State automobile license plates to the Missouri prison, at a price lower than his award to a private firm, was reduced to $2500 yesterday by the House.

Lawyer members of the House, headed by Representative McCawley of Jasper County and Munger of Scott County, urged the payment of the $7500 which had been recommended by the House Appropriations Committee, but were voted down, 57 to 12, on the adoption of an amendment cutting the fee to $2500.

The State Penal Board filed a mandamus suit to compel Becker to award the prison the 1932 contract, under a provision of the automobile registration law requiring the Secretary of State to award the contract to the prison, when it was equipped and offered to manufacture the plates at a price equal to or less than the best bid by a private manufacturer. Becker awarded the contract to the S. G. Adams Co. of St. Louis, contending the prison was not properly equipped. The prison bid would have been approximately $30,000 less than the bid of the Adams Co., based on the plate requirements for 1932.

The Supreme Court did not pass on the merits of the controversy, but held for Becker, and dismissed the suit, on a technical point that the title of the automobile registration law did not cover the provision of the law relating to an award of the contract to the prison, and therefore that provision was invalid.

Moore is a member of the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners having been appointed by Gov. Park.

GLOBE & RUTGERS OFFICERS TO OPPOSE LIQUIDATION

Fire Insurance Firm to Present Arguments at Hearing Tuesday.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Executives of the Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance Co. announced yesterday they would oppose the appointment of a liquidator, asked for by State Superintendent of Insurance George S. Van Schaick. Arguments on the petition of the Insurance Department will be heard in Supreme Court Tuesday.

Edwin C. Jameson, president of the insurance company, announced that published reports of the petition "may be misleading in giving the impression that efforts to rehabilitate the company through a plan of readjustment would consequently have to be abandoned.

"On the contrary," he said, "plans for reorganization on a basis which will give the maximum protection to the creditors of the company and should permit the company in due course to reopen for business on a strong basis will be pushed forward with every confidence in their success.

CHINESE, JAPANESE BULLETS HIT U. S. SOLDIERS' CAMP

Small Detachment There Now, Because 800 Men Are Guarding Railroad in Treaty Area.

CAPTURE OF LARGE SEAPORT REPORTED

Manchukuo Troops Said to Have Occupied Chinwangtao, Which Has Important Foreign Interests.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, April 8.—The United States legation was informed today that bullets from fighting about Chinwang-tao were falling in the summer camp of the Fifteenth Infantry regiment, United States Army.

A small detachment is at the camp now. About 800 members of the regiment are stationed along the railway leading from that region to Peiping.

A Japanese report said Chinwangtao, important Chinese seaport in the railway treaty area which has large foreign interests, was occupied today by Manchukuon troops. It could not be confirmed here.

No Casualties Reported.

There were no reports of American casualties.

Reports of the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency said Manchukuon troops had occupied the seaport and disarmed the Chinese garrison there.

The reports said, too, that the Japanese had demanded the evacuation by the Chinese of the entire area south of the Great Wall as far as the Lwan River.

British Minister Lampson denied British marines had landed at Chinwangtao (which is 10 miles southwest of Shanhaikwan) yesterday to protect British interests there.

He called the attention of the Japanese, however, to these interests.

Japanese Regret Bombing.

Charge D'Affaires Nakayama of the Japanese legation called on the United States legation to express regret that American lives were endangered and their property damaged in the bombing on March 24 of Taitowying, a Chinese city south of the Great Wall.

He said Japanese aviators were exerting utmost efforts to avoid endangering foreign property but that the flyers in the Taitowying incident had difficulty in distinguishing the American mission property there as the American flag was flying from a pole instead of being spread out. The spreading of flags on the ground was done at some missions in the fighting area in the north.

Several Chinese civilians were killed when Taitowying was bombed and considerable damage was caused to the American mission. The misisonary was the Rev. Charles Oscar Kautte of Redlands, Cal. Mrs. Kautte was with him.

STOCKHOLDER SUES UTILITY, OIL FIRMS FOR $41,000,000

Waste of Funds of Two Columbia Concerns Is Charged to 21 Directors.

CINCINNATI, April 8.—Recovery of $41,816,177 from the Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation, the Columbia Oil & Gasoline Corporation and 21 of their directors was sought today in a suit filed by Samuel J. Wiechelman of Covington, Ky., holder of 70 shares.

He asks for an accounting of the affairs of Columbia Gas & Electric and determination of the alleged loss and the liability of each of the defenadnt directors, and asks that the court order the amount repaid to the stockholders of the two corporations.

Alleged instances of mismanagement, waste and dissipation of funds are set forth. In one, Wiechelman charged the directors with transferring from the funds of Columbia Gas & Electric to Columbia Oil & Gasoline $28,627,652.24 in 1930 and $6,788,818.20 in 1932.

Wiechelman charges the assets of Columbia Gas & Electric were wasted in the payment of $2,870,706.70 for 1,441,173 shares of stock in American Fuel & Power Co., a holding corporation.

Payment of $1,455,000 to "unknown persons" for $1,596,600 face value 6½ per cent gold bonds of the Inland Gas Corporation is charged with an assertion that the Inland Corporation was insolvent and its issues worthless.

NAZI PRESSURE FOR RETURN OF SLESVIG TO GERMANY

Danish Newspapers Say Agitation Is Growing Under Pressure from Berlin.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 8.—German agitation in Danish Slesvig (Schleswig) for the return of that bit of territory to Germany is becoming more intense, Danish newspapers assert, under pressure by the National Socialist rulers.

Several newspapers said yesterday that German emissaries had entered Slesvig to form Nazi groups with German residents as nuclei.

A German daily published in Danish Slesvig said: "Are we ready? We demand from Germany, when conditions are ripe, that our northern frontier be moved back to the line fixed by the history of the race and by economic conditions, with the Swastika banner as a symbol of better times to come."

A Nazi, speaking at a public meeting, declared: "Ye want no war, no new plebiscite, but the return of North Slesvig to Germany through negotiations between Copenhagen and Berlin."

OPPOSES NEW MOONEY TRIAL

Attorney Says Court Overlooked Double Jeopardy Feature.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—Appearing as a citizen, John A. O'Gara, attorney, protested to Superior Judge Louis H. Ward yesterday against a new trial for Tom Mooney, convicted Preparedness Day bomber, as in violation of the defendant's constitutional right not to be placed in double jeopardy.

O'Gara contended the court overlooked this angle in granting Mooney a trial April 26 on a heretofore unused murder indictment growing out of the bombing, in which 10 persons were killed and 40 injured. Mooney sought the new trial in the hope that an acquittal under the one remaining indictment would influence Gov. James Rolph Jr., to grant him a pardon in the murder case for which he is serving a life sentence.

FORESTRY CORPS BEGINS TRAINING AT ARMY CAMPS

25,000 Men, Comprising First Contingent, Arrive for Two Weeks' Conditioning.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Army camps in the East bustled with activity today as recruit after recruit for the Forestry Conservation Corps arrived to begin two weeks of conditioning.

The first contingent of 25,000 men, 18 to 25 years old, has been selected from 17 large cities. All were due in the army camps by nightfall. After two weeks they will go into the forests to work for for $1 a day and board.

The Labor Department is rushing plans for selecting the second contingent, which will be taken from Western states. In all 250,000 men are to be enrolled and put to work by July 1.

The forest and park services have outlined forest projects which will require more than 1,000,000 men months of labor to complete. The first projects will be approved next week by Robert Fechner, director of the program.

Proposed Park Projects.

One of the first park projects will be in the new Shenandoah National Park area in Virginia, now being acquired by the Federal Government. Another early project proposed is in the Great Smoky Mountain Park in North Carolina and Tennessee. The sites for these and other camps remain to be selected by Fechner.

Other park projects are to be undertaken at Yorktown, Va., Acadia Park in Maine, Hot Springs, Ark.; Black Hills National Park, the Yellowstone, Glacier and Mount Rainier Parks, the Rocky Mountain Park in Colorado, and the parks established in Pacific Coast states for the preservation of virgin stands of timber.

Both the park and forest services have field men at work spotting likely camp sites which are available to roads and trails, to water and supplies and at the same time within easy walking distance of the work.

Work for Jobless Indians.

The Interior Department also proposes to establish camps in some instances on Indian lands and the public domain. It will seek to have unemployed Indians chosen for work on Indian lands. These projects will include erosion work on the Gila River in Arizona. A timber region in the public domain situated in Oregon is likely to be the site of another camp.

The Labor Department indicated that the workers being selected—unemployed, unmarried men between 18 and 25, who are willing to assign from $22 to $25 of their $30 monthly pay to dependents—were showing great eagerness to enroll.

They are certified, after selection, to army recruiting offices and there given physical examinations. The physical standard used is not so strict as required for army enlistments. When accepted the men are sent to the conditioning camps.

Fechner announced that the War Department had made certain army posts and depots available as conditioning centers. These include:

Corps Area 6.—Fort Sheridan, Ill.; Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Corps Area 8.—Fort Sill, Ok.; Fort Bliss, Tex.; Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Raid on Socialists in Vienna.

VIENNA, April 8.—An explosion in front of the Socialist party headquarters last night caused no damage but led to rumors that explosives had been transported by Socialists to new hiding places. Police found in the headquarters and nearby Socialist sporting grounds four machine guns, 52 rifles and 30 bayonets. The police arrested 200 members of the dissolved Socialist Defense Organization on charges of circulating illegal propaganda.

Caught With Companion After Kicking Out Panel of Door —Nothing Stolen.

Two men, one a former convict, were arrested last night at the D. Horne Wall Paper Co., 3178 Easton avenue, after police had been notified of an attempted burglary there.

As the officers arrived, a man who had been on the sidewalk started to run. Captured, he said he was Michael Waters, 25-year-old bottler. Going to the back door the officers found a panel broken out and saw a man's leg coming out of the hole. They dragged the man out. He said he was William Ahlert, 25, former burglary convict. Nothing had been stolen from the building.

Two Negro women residing on the second floor of the building, who had called police, said they had seen Ahlert kick the panel out of the door and hear Waters say to him, "Keep it up! Nobody's coming!"

The home of Joseph Singer, 2849 Meramec street, was entered by burglars who forced open a back door yesterday afternoon. The burglars stole $450 and jewelry valued at $75. A watch and two rings were stolen from the home of Mrs. Mary Eberlein, on the floor below the Singer flat. Singer said the money represented collections on real estate.

Savoldi Claims Title After Beating Londos In a One-Fall Match

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Jumping Joe Savoldi, who used to shatter football lines for Notre Dame with his massive hulk, had one big area of the profession wrestling world rocking with claims and de- is today.

Wray's Column

"I'm So Lonely!"

IF PHIL BALL, owner of the Browns, felt an urge to burst into song he might appropriately start off with "I'm so lonely." Mr. Ball owns the only club in either major league that has not won a pennant.

That's nothing to Mr. Ball's discredit. Other clubs were in existence longer than the Browns before fortune and a good ball club enabled them to graduate. The Browns are only 31 years old and Mr. Ball has been the owner of the outfit for a mere bagatelle of 18 years.

Still, on the record, it stands as something of a blot that the club has not been able to get its name up among the winners. In 1902 the club came close; in 1908, it looked like the winner, up to late in August; in 1922 it should have won and lost to the Yanks by the margin of a single game.

But close doesn't count. Victories are all that fans remember.

Good, Not Great.

THE Browns' chance of winning this year is not generally regarded as first class. The 1933 Browns are a livewire bunch—good catchers, a great infield, an outfield that will hold its own and two or three good pitchers.

We are told that its weakness is insufficiency of pitchers, and reserves. But after all no team can carry more than 23 men after May 15 and the Browns have that many.

The team plays a lively style of ball and is a crowd pleaser. Down South enthusiasts who followed the club's development, while not naming it to win the American League pennant, voiced the opinion that in the National League the Browns might have a chance.

And perhaps that's not so much of a laugh, although it still would seem to lack pitching.

If the team finishes in the American League first division it probably will have done its bit.

And yet, every now and then the unexpected happened. A jam of misfits clicks, each man giving 100 per cent of his ability. It's about Phil Ball's turn to get the break. He's one owner that did not go into the game for money and has never taken any money out of it.

Contrasts in Champions.

JACK SHARKEY is hardly a popular champion. They booed him in a recent Canadian exhibition, whereupon Jack stepped to the ropes and offered a job as his sparring partner to any unemployed booer!

His boasting conversation preceding some of his bouts, has caused the fans to turn against him.

Jack Dempsey, on the contrary, has always spoken with becoming modesty. He recently told Cartoonist Ed Hughes of the Brooklyn Eagle that he thought John L. Sullivan probably could have knocked him out; that Corbett would have outboxed him; that Fitzsimmons must have been very dangerous; that big Jim Jeffries probably would have been too tough for him; that he would have had a terrible time getting through Jack Johnson's defense; and that he "guessed" Sam Langford might have knocked him out.

That's Dempsey—never knew him to be boastful or prideful or even certain about what was going to happen. His pre-fight utterances have always been guarded, his estimate of his own ability modest; and his efforts have always been 100 per cent of all he had to give.

However, not all champions can be Dempseys. And there's no law against a referee now and then mistaking the winner of a fight and crowning a second rater.

What! Another Sidestep!

SHARKEY recently was quoted as saying that he would fight only one bout this year—that against Primo Carnera in June. The proposal to pit him against the winner of the Baer-Schmeling fight will therefore be rejected and the championship be worn by Sharkey for another year.

Sharkey's advisers believe the Savoldi.

Regarded as just another setup, Joe strode into the Chicago stadium ring last night to tackle Jim Londos, the Grecian Adonis and claimant of the wrestling championship.

To the amazement of 3000 customers, he walked out of the ring with a one-fall victory after 20 minutes and 26 seconds of tugging.

The claims and denials then started to pop and today "all was chaos."

First, Ed White, manager of Londos, claimed that the match, limited to one fall with a 90-minute time limit, was not a championship affair simply because of a ruling by the old Illinois State Athletic Commission that all wrestling matches were merely "exhibitions." The spectators howled White down.

Then Londos issued a statement in which he denied that Savoldi had thrown him. Blaming Referee Bob Managoff for everything that happened.

"It was not a fall," Londos said. "I had a Japanese scissors on Savoldi from an underneath position. I was partly on my side and on my shoulder. Savoldi's feet were tangled in the ropes. Referee Managoff tapped me on the shoulder with orders to break. I understood from that we were to start wrestling all over again from a standing position because Savoldi's feet were tangled in the ropes. I let go and the next instant, the referee tapped Savoldi in token of victory. I repeat, it was not a fall."

Referee Managoff could not be found for a statement but Joe Triner, new chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, said he would take the entire matter up at the regular commission meeting Monday.

At Friars Point, Miss., Harry J. Landry, president of the National Wrestling Association, announced that Savoldi would not be recognized as champion of the Association because the match was held outside of "association territory" and because the fall awarded Savoldi was "not completed."

Savoldi and his followers, however, were overjoyed. The big Italian youth claimed the "title" and everything with it.

"I won, didn't I?" shouted Savoldi. "That's enough for me!"

The match, which attracted a gate of approximately $12,000, was a rough-and-tumble affair until Savoldi pinned Londos.

In the nearly three years he has been claiming the title, Londos has been thrown four times before tonight, but each match was a two-out-of-three fall affair, each of which Londos ultimately won. Ray Steele of Glendale, Cal.; Jim McMillen of Chicago, and George Zaharias of Pueblo were the throwers and losers. Steele gained a fall in each of two matches.

The Londos-Savoldi match last night was advertised as a "world's championship" match, but on the tickets it was advertised as a "national wrestling association championship."

There wasn't anything unusual about it until Referee Managoff tapped Savoldi on the shoulder as winner. The "fall" was accomplished with a standing crotch hold.

The Rough Riders got off to a good start by scoring twice in the first inning. After Hausman was called out on strikes, Calcaterra was safe on Norath's fumble. ARMY POSTS START BASEBALL TRAINING

NEW YORK, April 8.—Practically every post in the United States Army is now starting its 1933 baseball training, and a move is on to decide some Army championships this year.

In the Third Corps Area, perhaps the most active in sports, four leagues will be run this year. The winners in each group then will get together in a series to decide the championship.

15,000 Attend Chicago's City Series Opener

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 8. — Chicago's rehabilitated Cubs and White Sox starring Al Simmons and Babe Herman, were up for inspection in the first game of a pre-season series this afternoon at Comiskey Park.

Zippy weather greeted the 15,000 fans who took this opportunity to appraise the merits of the clubs that will go their separate ways next Wednesday when the championship season gets under way. The White Sox were of special interest to the clientele as they perrused Simmons, Mule Haas and Jimmy Dykes in Chicago uniforms for the first time.

It was something of a gala occasion for the fans, who found an added incentive to baseball interest in the form of 3.2 per cent beer under the grandstand. The series will wind up tomorrow. In two games on the coast the Chicago clubs broke even.

Babe Herman was the major concern of Manager Charley Grimm as he led his Cubs against their traditional rivals. Herman visited the club physician this morning to see about his injured left ankle. The ankle was twisted yesterday when The Babe slid into the plate in Kansas City. There was some doubt as to whether he would play a full game this afternoon.

Rangers Play Toronto in Second Hockey Title Contest Tonight

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, April 8.—The Toronto Maple Leafs, refreshed by a four-day rest and full of confidence were ready today to step out against the New York Rangers in the second game of the final playoff series for the Stanley cup and the world's professional hockey championship here tonight.

The Leafs had to start their home stand one game down after the 5-1 beating they took at New York last Tuesday in the opening contest of the three-out-of-five-game series, but they were agreed that they could "count that one out."

Toronto came to New York to start the finals the day after they finished a five-game duel with the Boston Bruins for the National Hockey League championship. Four of the games were overtime affairs, the last going to the record length of 164 minutes. They didn't have a chance, and knew it, but they figure conditions will be altered. The Rangers, also realizing the difference, were expecting a hard game tonight, although they, too, felt sure of a victory.

The Leafs can point to two important factors in their favor that point to victory. Last year, when the same teams met in the finals, Toronto won by the "tennis" scores of 6—4, 6—2 and 6—4, in games played at New York, Boston and Toronto. Few changes have been made in either team since then. During the past National League season the Rangers failed to win one game on Toronto ice.

Capacity crowds of 14,500 for tonight's game and for the third contest, next Tuesday, were assured several days ago, when a complete sell-out was announced. The fourth and fifth games, if necessary, also will be played here.

M'KINLEY NINE HANDS SOLDAN 15-0 DRUBBING

By Harold Tuthill.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS STADIUM, April 8.—McKinley's boast that it would be a championship contender in the City High School League baseball race was given a firm foundation as the Gold Bugs opened their campaign with a 15 to 0 victory over Soldan in the first game of the double-header here this afternoon. The attendance was about 800.

Pete Chulick, McKinley's 1932 "iron man," was in fine fettle. He limited Soldan to four hits, struck out nine and was in trouble only twice during the contest.

While Pete was shutting out Soldan his mates gave him a commanding lead with seven runs in the third. Three more were scored in the fourth and fifth and the last two came in the seventh.

Tony Defilio led the Gold Bugs with a home run and three singles in four official times at bat. Johnny Krifka also hit safely three times.

FENCERS' CLUB WINS SABER CHAMPIONSHIP OF MISSOURI VALLEY

The Fencers' Club won the saber championship of the Missouri Valley Fencing Association in a four-team tourney held last night at Francis Gymnasium, Washington University. To gain the victory the club defeated the Bears' No. 2 team, 5—0, and then downed the Imperial Fencers' Club, 5—2, which in a preceding match had beaten Washington's No. 1 team, 5—2.

Lon Hocker was outstanding for the winners, not losing one of his five bouts. Eddie Brigham, a teammate, won three out of four bouts as did Walter Vesper and A. J. Ward, the other member of the team, won the only bout in which he participated.

The association's three-weapon meet has been scheduled for April 30 at Rock Springs Turner Hall.

DUNLAP DEFEATS TOOMER, 7 AND 5, FOR GOLF TITLE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 8.—Jack Toomer, golf champion of Florida, failed to stop the rush of George T. Dunlap Jr., yesterday, and the Walker cup star won his second North and South Amateur Golf Championship, 7 and 5, in a thirty-six hole match.

Three-putting the first two greens of the morning round cost Toomer these holes and he never got them back. At the ninth hole he was three down and at the thirteenth, six down, but he rallied and was four behind as they went to lunch, Dunlap with a par 71 under his belt and Toomer a 75.

The victor cut loose in the afternoon, shooting the first nine in 33, three under par, to go seven up. Toomer was out in 36 and after Halving the next two holes, dropped a fifteen footer for a birdie to prolong the contest, but a hooked iron on the thirty-first cost him a 5 and the match.

Dunlap had special success during the tournament with the third hole, having six birdie 3's there in eight rounds. Four of them were in his last trips.

SCHAREIN DRIVES IN THREE RUNS WITH SINGLE AND DOUBLE

By J. Roy Stockton.

SPORTSMAN' PARK, April 8.—The 1933 Cardinals and Browns made their first bow of the season before the home fans this afternoon when they met in the first game of the annual abbreviated spring series.

The weather was threatening and probably accounted in part for the small attendance. Not more than 4500 persons were present at game time, with the bleachers containing at least 2000 of the customers.

Tex Carleton for the Cardinals and Lloyd Brown for the Browns were the starting pitchers.

Thte Cardinals were the at home team and appeared in their white uniforms, while the Browns were garbed in their traveling gray.

Each team showed some new talent. Sam West and Carl Reynolds, obtained during the winter from the Senators, were in Bill Killefer's Brownie outfield and Art Scharein, the young infielder who joined the St. Louis Americans last summer was at third base.

Joe Medwick was in left field for the Cardinals and Gordon Slade at short, were the other newcomers.

The game was described by grand stand wags as a contest between the "wets and drys" as the Browns will sell beer at counters under the stands when they are in charge, but this afternoon the counters were bare, the Cardinals not being ready to dispense the newly legalized 3.2 beverage.

A sprinkling rain was falling as the flunkeys prepared the field for the contest.

The umpires were Johnston and Ormsby.

The game:

FIRST INNING—BROWNS — Scharein walked. Schraein stoled second. West hit to Carleton and Scharein was run down, Carleton to Adams to Slade. Reynolds walked. Campbell doubled to right center, scoring West and Reynolds. Watkins made a good running catch of Burns' lined drive. Melillo flied to Medwick. TWO RUNS.

CARDINALS — Levey threw out Adams. Watkins grounded to Melillo. Frisch doubled to center. Frisch went to third on a wild pitch. Frisch scored on a wild pitch. Collins lined to Reynolds— ONE RUN.

SECOND—BROWNS — Medwick misjudged Levey's pop fly and it fell out of his reach for a double. Ferrell flied to Medwick. Brown flied to Watkins, Levey moving to third. Scharein singled to right, scoring Levey. Scharein stole second. West flied to Watkins. ONE RUN.

CARDINALS — Medwick struck out. Levey threw out Orsatti. Slade was safe when Scharein missed his grounder. Wilson forced Slade, Scharein to Melillo.

THIRD, BROWNS—Slade threw out Reynolds. Campbell walked. Burns' grounder bounced off Carleton's glove to Slade, who stepped on second and threw to Collins for a double play.

CARDINALS—Carleton doubled against the right field screen. Adam sflied to West, Carleton going to third. Watkins doubled against the wall in right center, scoring Carleton. Frisch walked. Collins popped to Levey. Medwick forced Frisch, Levey to Melillo. ONE RUN.

FOURTH — BROWNS — Melillo popped a single to center. Levey flied to Orsatti. Ferrell singled to right, sending Melillo to third. Brown struck out. Scharein's short fly fell just out of Medwick's reach for a double, scoring Melillo and Ferrell. West beat out a grounder to Frisch but Carleton, covering first, relayed to Wilson in time to retire Scharein at the plate. TWO RUNS.

CARDINALS—Orsatti bunted and was thrown out by Scharein. Reynolds made a diving catch of Slade's drive. Wilson singled through short. Carleton struck out.

FIFTH—BROWNS—Slade threw out Reynolds. Campbell walked. Burns fouled to Wilson. Melillo lined to Slade.

SCHMELING AND BAER FIGHT IS SET FOR JUNE 8

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Max Baer and Max Schmeling on June 8, Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera early in July—that appeared today to be the most probable lineup for metropolitan New York's two big outdoor boxing shows this summer.

Winning every round of his promotorial battle with Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden, Jack Dempsey received permission from the New York State Athletic Commission yesterday to shift the Baer-Schmeling match from June 1 to June 8.

The effect of that move was to all but force the Garden to delay the Sharkey-Carnera heavyweight championship bout until early in July. Under a recent commission ruling, 20 days must elapse between major bouts. The Garden thus could put on the Sharkey-Carnera battle in May but only at the price of a terrific gamble with the weather.

With a May date too risky and Dempsey getting first crack at the customers' pocketbooks, Johnston probably will prefer to delay the title bout for at least a month after Schmeling and Baer have fought. Experts figure he will need at least that long to "build up" the match to the point where fans in paying numbers can be attracted.

MAX SCHMELING SAILS FOR UNITED STATES

BERLIN, April 8.—Max Schmeling, German boxer, quietly slipped out of Germany today, sailing aboard the Bremen for the United States.

GAME TOMORROW WILL BE STARTED AT 2:30

Vice-President L. C. McEvoy of the Browns this morning announced that the second game of the spring series, scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, with the Browns being the "home" team, will be started at 2:30 instead of 3 o'clock.

12 "Y" SWIMMERS QUALIFY FOR WESTERN A. A. U. FINALS

NINE MEMBERS OF WASHINGTON SQUAD COMPETE IN TITLE RACE

The Downtown "Y" swimming team, winner of the Western A. A. U. meet last year, led the qualifiers with 12 men in the preliminaries of the title competition last night at Wilson Pool, Washington University. The Bears' squad was second, nine men qualifying. Finals will be held tonight, starting at 8 o'clock.

Most of the times made in the heats last night were much above the records set in last year's meet, the first held here in more than 10 years. In the 50-yard free style for men, however, Schaller tied the mark of 24.8, set by J. C. Ridge of Oklahoma Aggies last year, and must win tonight to have the record stand.

The only record lowered was in the women's 50-yard free style. Lillian Saunders of Y. W. C. A. paddled the distance in 33 seconds, seven-tenths of a second better than her own mark set last year. This event was the only preliminary held for the women.

George Ernst, Iowa University swimmer, who is entered unattached, was one of the leading qualifiers. He won his heats in the 150-yard backstroke, the "fifty" free style, and the 220-yard free style. His best mark, in comparison with last year's records, was 25.5 in the short dash, but it was nearly a second below Schaller's record-tying time.

Even though off form, "Whitey" Wolfe, former Washington U. swimmer now unattached, won the diving with 105.3 points, slightly ahead of Bill Rawdon, Downtown "Y" who had 103.56.

Admission tonight will be 35 cents.

Derby Odds on Flying Cadet Have Been Reduced by Half

No. 3—Derby Candidates.

Flying Cadet, Kentucky bred, probably will be well-backed by the "hard boots" if he starts in the Kentucky Derby, May 6, at Churchill Downs. Money already sent by Kentuckians to Tom Kearney, the local betting commissioner, has reduced the odds on the Laffoon and Yelser entry from 60 to 30 to 1, and the $50,000 race is still three weeks off.

The Cadet, a good looking chestnut gelding by Busy American, with his stablemate, Shepherd Boy, already is at Churchill Downs and training for the Blue Grass classic. Although not far advanced in training, he recently reeled off a mile in 1:48 3-5. He is being trained by Roscoe Goose, a retired jockey, who rode Donerall to victory in the 1913 Derby.

Flying Cadet ran eight races as a two-year-old and was out of the money only twice. He was not sent to the post until July 28 at Latonia, in a five and one-half furlong overnight allowance race, and finished second, two lengths behind Codeta. Four days later he ran third to Kilmore in a six-furlong race, finishing a length and a half back of the winner. He won his first race July 30 at the same track, beating Chuck B. by one length in a $4000 claiming race.

He was rested until Sept. 6 when he ran third, Miss Brilliant, the winner, being six and one-half lengths in front at the finish. Nine days later he defeated Hueu, a Derby eligible, by a nose at Lincoln Fields in a six-furlong allowance race, overtaking Hueu in the final stride. Third in his next out, Sept. 24, he could not overtake Isaiah and Ballygran at five and one-half furlongs.

Ballygran defeated him by a length and a half, but he atoned for this defeat by winning the Marquette Handicap Oct. 8, finishing a length in front of Ballygran. Friend Charley and Spicson, named for the Derby, were third and fourth. The race was at seven furlongs.

In all his races as a juvenile, Flying Cadet raced wide and was a slow starter, but a fast finisher.

interval between fights would be too short. But it will still be only a week or two shorter interval than the winner of the Schmeling-Baer bout would have. Two months and one-half ought to be rest enough for any fighter.

The only way out of the situation, apparently, is for Primo Carnera to beat Sharkey. Even then it is doubtful if the new champion would be rushed right back into risking his title before he had had the usual kale harvesting period.

There is one thing to be said for the managers of Carnera—they have never run out of a proposed match and have usually been willing to fight anybody on percentage.

Unfortunately, Sharkey seems to be too good for Carnera. The chances are the big fellow will take another beating and the title will then go into hibernation for another year, still the property of Sharkey.

Goes Stagg One Better.

AMOS ALONZO STAGG, coaching football at 70, is interesting. But, as an example of prolonged athletic activity he will have to retire to the rear while Tom Burrows of Sydney, Australia, monopolizes the spotlight.

Burrows is very close to 70 years old. But despite his years he is still performing an athletic act on the vaudeville circuit that he began 45 years ago, after he had won the club swinging championship. His name still is in the record book as winner of the championship first at Melbourne, Australia, and later at Crystal Palace, London, where he established a record of 107 hours for continuous club swinging.

Not long ago old Tom broke into competitive action again. He swung the clubs for thirty consecutive hours at Grafton, Australia. A week later he increased the time to 48 consecutive hours; and at the Casino, Sydney, he was matched against a jazz band to see whether his club swinging or the band's music could be maintained the longer.

Tom was still swinging when the band ran out of wind, four hours later.

COULDN'T BE BOTHERED.

BOSTON, April 8.—Heavyweight Champion Jack Sharkey has such an extensive "stable" of high-priced automobiles, the 16-cylinder variety, that he couldn't be bothered when someone recently swiped his little "town" car.

DISCOVERS NEW WAY TO STIR UP INTEREST IN TRACK MEETS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8. — All theories notwithstanding, practice is proving that the games of the ancient Greeks cannot be successfully eliminated from the college sports roster at Washington and Jefferson.

A recent ruling of the W. & J. athletic council struck track and field activities from the list of varsity endeavor. The chief reason was that of flagging student interest and inability to make ends meet financially.

Now Manager Pete Henry spies a remarkable reaction, caused, possibly, by the well-known ratio between non-availability and desirability.

For the last few years, he explains, track coaches have had to comb the field for candidates and coax out of apathetic hiding the spirit and hard work necessary to make a presentable showing.

Now it's different. The undergrads, themselves, have come forward and asked permission to form a varsity track and field team.

Keeping an ace up his sleeve, Manager Henry had not canceled the five-match schedule that was prepared tentatively for the 1933 season before the council made its ruling.

CALIFORNIA EIGHT OPPOSES WASHINGTON IN TITLE RACE TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—That stirring test of courage, stamina and oarsmanship, the Pacific Coast three-mile rowing championship, will be settled on the narrow lanes of the Oakland estuary this afternoon.

At the turn of the tide, the racing eights of Washington and California will go booming down the waterway in the twenty-ninth renewal of a rivalry which is one of the major events of rowing.

Veteran watermen say it will be a thriller, with the world's championship Golden Bears slight favorites.

CHANCE IS STAR AS MAPLEWOOD DEFEATS C. B. C.

In a fine effort which saved the relay race for Maplewood, Lamar Chance, successor to Jimmy Owen, cut down a 15-yard lead held by Casey of Christian Brothers' College, and went on to win by five yards, thereby practically winning the senior track and field meet held between these two schools yesterday afternoon at Maplewood. The score was Maplewood, 64 1-3, Christian Brothers College, 57 2-3.

Chance also won the 100-and-220-yard dashes and placed second in the broad jump for a total of 14¼ points, leading scorer of the day.

The meet was close throughout, the two teams holding the lead almost alternately until the last three events, when Maplewood pulled ahead of its rivals by virtue of a clean sweep of the places in the broad jump, and then clinched victory through the relay. C. B. C. then took first and third in the javelin, but it was too late to overcome Maplewood's lead.

BEN EASTMAN PULLS MUSCLE IN HIS LEG IN TRACK PRACTICE

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., April 8.—Ben Eastman, Stanford's world's quarter-mile record holder, pulled a muscle in his left leg yesterday during an intra-team meet and may be lost to competition for both the California track meet a week from Saturday and the Southern California classic April 22.

He was taken to the Palo Alto Hospital for examination.

Eastman suffered the injury during a quarter-mile run. He was off to a poor start and at the 50-yard mark did not have his usual long lead. As a result he started to bear down and suddenly developed the injury in a severe cramp.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Primo Carnera Is Now Heavyweight Champion of Italy

ROME, April 8.

THE Italian Boxing Federation confered the heavyweight championship of Italy upon Primo Carnera yesterday after deposing Innocente Baigues, who now is in the United States, for fighting there without permission of the Federation.

It was explained that the title was given to Carnera to allow him to oppose Jack Sharkey for the World's Championship this summer. Carnera, in accepting the hogor, promised to do his utmost to bring Italy its first world championship.

BOXING TITLES WON BY HAFELI AND RAY HOBBS

Johnson City's athletic combination of Dwight Hafeli and Ray Hobbs, outstanding freshman stars at Washington University, yesterday captured the university heavyweight and light heavyweight boxing titles. These two titles climax a long string of intramural victories for the two men, rated as the greatest athletes to enter Washington in many years, and already selected by head football coach Jimmy Conzelman as regulars on next year's football team.

Not satisfied with gaining regular end positions on Washington's freshman football team this year, Hobbs and Hafeli won regular births on the freshman basketball squad. Then they entered the annual Washington intramurals, in which nearly thirty different University groups were represented.

Hafeli broke the intramural pole vault record, crossing the bar at 11 ft. 4 inches, and then tossed the discuss 112 feet for another new intramural record. Hobbs was one of the three best shot putters, besting Hafeli by only a narrow margin, and he showed great form on the track.

In capturing the boxing championships yesterday, Hafeli and Hobbs garnered two highly prized crowns at the University. Hobbs scored the only technical knockout of the intramural contests.

Coach Conzelman, who has watched these two six footers perform in the intramurals, said yesterday that they are two of the best all-around athletes he has ever seen at Washington. Conzelman has used both men as ends on the freshman football squad this year but after watching Hafeli, the larger and heavier of the two, on the basketball court later in the season he decided to shift him to the backfield for next year. In spring practice he used Hafeli at fullback and Hobbs at left end. In Conzelman's estimation both men are excellent prospects for All-Missouri Valley positions next year.

HARVARD AND ARMY PLAY IN POLO FINAL

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—A struggle between Harvard and Army for the first national indoor polo championship of the year heads a five-game program of play at two New York armories tonight. Harvard is a slight favorite over the well-balanced cadet trio in their final game for the national intercollegiate indoor title.

NEW YORK STAR TOTALS 771 IN A. B. C. TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 8.—There'll be a new American Bowling Congress team champion this year.

A mediocre 2796 score in the late shift last night tossed the Sohio Ethyls of Dayton for out of the chase. The squad, which won the 1932 title as the Jefferson Clothiers, tacked together an 850, 964, 982 series in contrast to the 3108 total that won at Detroit.

Fifty-six expert teams from all sections of the country tonight will attempt to better the 3021 score that has placed Flaigs of Covington, Ky., in the lead for a week. As many more will compete tomorrow when the curtain will be rung down on the five-man event.

Three changes were recorded among the high 10 leaders yesterday. Congressman Auf der Heide of West New York, N. J., scored 2993 to take third position in the team event; Al Brandt and Eddie Dates of Lockport, N. Y., totaled 1353 for third place in the doubles event, while Brandt rode into second place in the all-events on a 2024 total.

In scoring a 771 total in the doubles competition, Brandt missed the A. B. C. all-time high three-game series record of 774, scored by Larry Shotwell of Covington, Ky., by three pins.

Roosevelt Track Team Wins From Webster's Squad

Roosevelt High School's senior and junior track teams gained a 139½-to-77½-point victory over Webster squads in a dual meet on the Webster field this morning. The Rough Riders won the senior competition by only two points, but ran rough-shod over the county representatives, 82 to 22, in the junior competition.

One of the features of the meet was the feat of George Hancock, Roosevelt junior, who ran the 440 in 55 seconds, the same time as made in the senior event. Wellhausen and Hoffman in the juniors and De Salme, Hellmich, Whittall and Wright in the seniors were the high point men.

The summaries:

Okay, Gambrinus!

"WHAT makes the people shout and cheer?"
Said Pilsner-on-Parade.
"They're hailing the return of beer,
The Pretzel Bender said.
"They're feeling happy, it appears,"
Said Pilsner-on-Parade.
"It's been away for thirteen years,"
The Pretzel Bender said.
"For the real McCoy they're yearning, and they do not care a hoot
For heimgemacht or needled-beer, or any substitute;
While the alcoholic content is a matter of dispute,
They can tell you more about it in the morning'."

"Will 3 and 2 intoxicate?"
Said Pilsner-on-Parade.
"Well, I am not prepared to state."
The Pretzel Bender said.
"On it I'd like to get a line,"
Said Pilsner-on-Parade.
"Suppose you join me in a stein,"
The Pretzel Bender said.
"For, the proof is in the eating of the pudding so we hear,
And the same applies to drinking as to quality of beer;
If you wake up bright and early and you find the noodle's clear,
You won't need your mornin's mornin' on the mornin'."

Happy New Era!

The welcome to beer at 12:01 Friday morning has all the earmarks of a New Era celebration.

"New Beer Wins First Court Test." Old Gambrinus still has a punch.

Fair Enough.

The Browns and beer are back again, the Browns with a mark of 11-3 and beer 3-2. Looks like first division.

Gambrinus checked in a little ahead of the Browns but they were both welcomed with keys to the city.

Don Hurst has accepted terms with the Phillies. After being well on his way back to Hollywood in his automobile, Don changed his tires and his mind and turned around and started right back again.

The old holdout game isn't what it used to be by several thousand iron men

The Browns wound up their practice tour by spanking Little Rock, 6 to 4. Indicating that the boys are going to leave no stone unturned to get to Pennantville.

"Dizzy" Dean wound up a very successful training trip by straining a tendon in his right arm while fanning one of Branch Rickey's farm hands at Springfield, Mo. That's Dizzy all over.

The man in the swivel chair says that while only one filly has ever won the Kentucky Derby, it might be Swivel's turn to take a whirl at precedent and turn the tables.

"Four Fined $50 Each on Liquor Charges."
Lest we forget.

The Governor of Michigan said to the Governor of Wisconsin: "It's a long time between drinks." So they started to do something about it.

Not knocking bank receivers or anything, but the depositors wouldn't mind being on the receiving end once in a while.

Atcheson Meets Baltimore Ace in Handball Final

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 8.—After six years of defeat in the semifinals, Al Hobelmann of Baltimore, had his big chance for the national amateur singles handball championship today.

The six feet four inch giant of the handball courts faced Sam Atcheson of Memphis, National Y. M. C. A. champion for the past three years, in the final of the 1933 tournament at the Lake Shore Athletic Club.

Hobelmann, eliminated six successive years in the semifinals of the national tournament, finally routed his jinx last night by dethroning the defending champion, Angelo Trulio, New York, 21—6, 21—6. Trulio, one foot shorter than his conqueror, didn't have a chance against the low, hard volleys of the Baltimore star, who was all over the court.

Atcheson romped into the finals with an easy victory over Richard Bruck, New York, 21—14, 21—9 and was the favorite to win the championship.

It was Chicago against Cleveland in the doubles final — Dr. William Serritella and Maurice McCarthy, Chicago, vs. Jack Endsvick and Goudreau of Cleveland. The Chicago duo defeated Trulio and Mayhard Laswell, 21—17, 11—21, 21—12, and the Clevelanders eliminated Bathey and Lemmer, Detroit, 13—21, 21—6, 21—9, yesterday.

Millers Obtain Baecht.

LOS ANGELES, April 8.—Ed Baecht, big right-handed pitcher, was traded by Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League to Minneapolis of the American Association yesterday for Hughie McMullen, catcher. No cash was involved.

NATIONAL TITLE SOCCER CONTEST MAY BE PLAYED AT BROWNS PARK

W. E. Barker, one of the two Western cup commissioners of the United States Football Association, wired Chairman Joseph Barisha of New York last night recommending that the New York Americans and the U. S. F. A. give their immediate approval to the plan whereby the first game of the national challenge soccer cup final may be played in conjunction with the Browns-Cleveland baseball game at Sportsman's Park here Sunday, April 16. The finalists are the Stix, Baer & Fuller club of St. Louis and the New York Americans.

"I heartily recommend the arrangement," said Barker today. "Had the Eastern clubs completed their competition as early as we did in the West we would not have been forced to compete with major league baseball in playing our national final. But, bad weather forced several cancellations in the East and we found ourselves running into the baseball season. If we were forced to play the first game of the final on April 16 in direct conflict with the Browns and Cleveland we would have suffered a loss of many thousands of fans and the baseball people also would have suffered. To combine both attractions on the same program is a happy and logical solution of an embarrassing situation and I believe the New York Americans and the United States Football Association will readily approve the arrangement."

Play Baseball Game First.

The proposed doubleheader in which the baseball game will be played first, starting at 1:30 p. m., and the soccer game immediately thereafter, will be offered at the regular major league baseball scale of prices, which will be a boon to the soccer fans who are in the habit of paying $1 minimum charge for the divisional and national cup finals.

In order to expedite the program the soccer field will be marked off lightly before the start of the baseball game and all that will be necessary in the way of preparation between games will be the erection of the goal posts which are set in stationary boxes. This should require not more than 10 or 12 minutes. The soccer game should be under way not later than 3:45 p. m., allowing plenty of daylight for the completion of a game of ordinary duration. The soccer field encroaches upon the baseball diamond for only a limited area near second base, the field lying in the outfield, running almost due east and west.

Stix to Play Spaniards.

Manager Tate Brady of the Stix team has scheduled a practice match with the Spanish Sport Club to be played at Hemen Park, University City, tomorrow afternoon. There will be no admission charge.

CENTRAL WINS FROM BEAUMONT, 9 TO 6, IN HIGH SCHOOL GAME

Beaumont High last to Central, 9 to 6, yesterday afternoon at the Stadium. Four pitchers were used by Coach Victor Kirk and they were pounded by the Central batters for 15 hits, two of them doubles.

Beaumont had two big innings, the first and third, when it scored three times in the first and twice in the third. The sixth run was counted in the sixth inning. The big rallies put Beaumont out in front, 5 to 3, but Marvin Quante, who was on the mound at the time couldn't hold Central. The result was that the mid-city nine scored at least once in the last four rounds.

Carl Wolfsberger was the winning pitcher. He held the opposition to six hits and if it hadn't been for his liberality of eight walks and his hitting John Bacher twice with a pitched ball the Beaumont scoring would not have been as great as it was.

Queer Incidents.

Several oddities occurred in the game. Charley Mueller, Beaumont's left fielder, was up to bat four times, doubled once and walked his last three times to the plate. He also scored three runs. Mueller's teammate, Godfried Rau, was not as successful, as he struck out four times in as many trips.

Alan Hug and Richard Douglas led the Central hitters, each getting three. Tusinski, Serb and Sandwek evenly divided six more hits.

RACING BILL PASSED BY NEW YORK ASSEMBLY

ALBANY, N. Y., April 8.—A measure permitting open betting at racetracks in New York State was passed by the State Assembly yesterday. For 25 years, only oral betting has been permitted on the New York tracks.

The measure was transmitted to the Senate for concurrence. Gov. Lehman has announced his support of legalized betting as a revenue measure.

The Wallace bill would establish an 8 per cent tax on gross receipts at race meetings. It is estimated this would net a yearly $500,000 to the State.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Daniel Lamont, assistant at the University of Washington last year, has been signed to coach football at St. Rita, a member of the Chicago Catholic High School Football League.

REPAID'S DERBY ODDS ARE DOWN TO 12-1 AFTER FINE WORKOUT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—James F. Johnson's Repaid today was waiting only for the bugle call that will send him to the post in the first of two conditioning races before starting in the fifty-ninth running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, May 6.

Following a sensational workout over a muddy track at Aqueduct, when he stepped the mile and one-quarter in 2:14, the big son of Kai Sang was pronounced ready by his owner and trainer, Eddie Phalen.

The brilliant performance, following his five furlongs at 1:02, eased up, a few days ago, sent the future book odds on the speedy Johnson colt down to 12 to 1. He is the second choice only to W. R. Coe's Ladysman, the champion juvenile of 1932, which is being held at 10 to 1.

With Pete Walls in the saddle, Phelan gave orders to work the colt a mile in about 1:48. There was no holding him, however, as he splashed through the slop and mud to set the clockers and other trainers talking.

Today Johnson announced he planned to start his colt in one race before the renewal of the Wood Memorial at Jamaica or the Chesapeake Stakes at Havre de Grace. Whether he goes to the post in the Wood or the Chesapeake, both mile races, depends upon the fixing of the New York dates.

"I see no use shipping him to Maryland for a tightener if the Wood Memorial is run a week before the Derby," said Johnson.

University City And Webster Win In County Games

Webster Groves and University City high school baseball teams were the first to gain victories in the suburban division of the County League, the Statesmen taking Clayton, 10 to 2, and the Indians beating out Kirkwood, 6 to 5, in the circuit openers yesterday.

In the county division Jennings defeated Brentwood, 6-2; Bayless trounced Riverview Gardens, 20-4, and Hancock trimmed Fairview, 11-7.

Kirkwood took an early lead against University City, counting three runs in the first inning on singles by Thurman, Paubel and Baumstark, but the Indians came back with two in their turn at bat and then took a one-run lead when Drummond tripled to score Boain and then crossed on Harlan's outfield fly.

Slow to score in the opening innings, Webster Groves pounded the Clayton pitchers heavily for four runs in each the third and fourth frames. Heidinger, with a home run, and Brockman and Anderson with doubles, led the bombardment.

EFFORT IN PROGRESS TO MAKE POSTOFFICE PAY ITS WAY

President Discusses Measures to Wipe Out Deficit; 2-Cent Postage Considered.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Measures to convert the customary deficit in the Postoffice Department into a surplus are under discussion in a series of conferences participated in by President Roosevelt, Postmaster-General Farley and Lewis Douglas, Director of the Budget.

In the fiscal year ended last June 30 the department's deficit was $205,550,611. Indications are it will be $126,500,000 this year, and, on the basis of present conditions $72,000,000 next year.

An investigation is under way to determine whether the two-cent postage rate for first-class mail should be re-established instead of the present three-cent rate, which went into effect last July. If the lower rate should prove impracticable generally, there is a possibility it may be employed for what is known as local mail, that which does not go outside of the city in which it is mailed.

During the present fiscal year ending next June 30, the gross expenditures of the department are estimated at $707,500,000 and the revenue at $581,000,000, leaving a gross deficiency of $126,500,000. However, this includes non-postal items such as $41,758,000 for shipping and aviation subsidies and $13,500,000 for mail handled free or at nominal rates. Deducting these, there would be a net deficiency of $71,242,000.

In only nine years, since 1837 has the department reported a surplus. The last was $73,734,851 in 1919.

HOMICIDE VERDICT IN DEATH OF WOMAN KILLED BY ROBBER

Mrs. Nellie Schacklette Slain at Hands of Unknown Man, Jury Decides.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide at the hands of unknown persons was returned today in the death of Mrs. Nellie Crozier Shacklette, mortally wounded by one of two armed men who invaded the Shacklette home at 32 Aberdeen place, Clayton, on the evening of March 31. Mrs. Shacklette died last Sunday afternoon at Central Hospital of an abdominal bullet wound.

C. D. Shacklette, the husband, Charles Shacklette, son, and Viola Murphy, Negro maid, repeated their accounts of the shooting, as told previously to police and reporters. The men, who appeared to be drunk, brushed past the maid when she opened the front door, and went to the second floor. One of them waved a revolver at the elder Shacklette, who was dressing to go out with his wife. Charles Shacklette grappled with the second man and, when Mrs. Shacklette ran to her son's assistance, she was shot by the man who had been threatening her husband. The intruders then ran out fo the house, and drove away in a gray Plymouth coach.

Herbert N. Straus

What Is Temperance?

A 30-Hour Week

Swearing Both Ways

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1933.)

THE death of Herbert N. Straus, youngest son of the late Isidor and Ida Straus who were lost on the Titanic, is a severe blow to many friends, and to American philanthropic and business life.

Mr. Straus, a brilliant business man, and a musician of unusual talent, did much to encourage musicians less fortunate than himself in worldly goods. He was only 51, a man of kind, generous heart, who made many friends and lost none.

Mrs. Ella Boole, sincere head of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, deplores beer, saying "Temperance is total abstinence from intoxicating liquors, and beer is intoxicating."

She invites the public to survey the effects of beer and to pass judgment.

For some years past, the public has "surveyed the effects of prohibition," the crime wave, bootlegging, racketeering, kidnaping, etc., and has passed judgment.

Temperance is not "total abstinence." That is the temperance of the weak, unable to control themselves. Entire nations have lived temperately, without total abstinence.

Nineteen states drank legal beer yesterday. Others continued to drink bootleg beer, whisky, gin and so on.

Crowds in New York gathered at a brewery at 6 in the morning to celebrate the first beer delivery. The brewers wisely had refused to deliver beer at midnight, as they might have done, to avoid unseemly demonstrations and celebrations.

Of the crowd that gathered at 6 to cheer beer, some, perhaps, would not have got up so early to look for a job. Such is the nature of man.

When bee was coming back, its return certain, there was much discussion of the question "where and how will beer be sold?"

With beer's return you learn that it is to be sold EVERWHERE and ANYHOW.

The drug store in former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's Empire State Building sold beer as early as 7 o'clock Friday morning. It is sold by delicatessen shops, and shops of every conceivable kind. Perhaps the old time, much-dreaded beer saloon will stay away because it would not be able to stand the competition.

The Senate votes for a working week with five days of work, six hours to the day, only 30 hours a week for work, and the week's other 138 hours for "do as you please."

That is, on the surface, an improvement on the old union labor cry, "eight hours for work, eight hours for sleep, eight hours for what we will."

How the 30-hour week will work remains to be seen. Eventually, doubtless, when man's hardest work will be pushing a button and letting machines do everything else, the work day will be extremely short. But a sudden drop to 30 hours is, perhaps, premature. Time will tell about that as about other things in these days of "doing ANYTHING is better than doing nothing."

Ruby Bates and another woman accused seven Negroes of a crime that means death in Alabama, where the charge was made, and the Negroes were all sentenced to death.

The Supreme Court of the United States gave them another trial, and Ruby Bates, having talked to the Rev. Mr. Fosdik in New York, now returns to Alabama and swears that her testimony, and that of a woman with her, was false.

She swears that she and the other woman agreed to accuse the Negroes in order that they might save themselves from going to jail for traveling from one state to another with white men.

The outcome of this trial, with one woman swearing against the Negroes, and another swearing in their favor, "after her conscience was aroused," is important and interesting.

Chancellor Hitler, Germany's dictator, is proud of his "almost bloodless" revolution. Only 300 were slain, says he, in the "rebirth of the German Empire." Forty thousand were wounded, and 100,000 suffered economic distress. Forty thousand are in prison, a few were shot, trying to escape."

Chancellor Hitler rules that if Christ returned to earth he would lead Hitler's Nazis against all communists. This belief will cost Germany real money. Russia, offended by Hitler's statement has just given

GOOD TASTE

By EMILY POST

Sheep

IF I were to make the statement that we American women are "sheep" in all the things we wear or buy or do, how many would rise to protest? I wonder? Just where the following of fashion becomes sheep-like and where it becomes unavoidable — because we are given no other choice, and just where refusing to follow the lead of the latest craze becomes dowdiness—is a rather elusive question. But there is something to be said about the lack of individuality and even of common sense in the way that the great majority of us are just rubber stamps of one another.

Our idea of keeping up with the Jonses is to copy everything they have and do, in exactly the way they have it and do it, without so much as thinking whether Mrs. Jones is our type, or Mr. Jones our husband's type, or whether what is becoming to the Jonses' house is also becoming to our own. And yet we know that the woman of greatest taste is she who, whether choosing things for her house or for herself, chooses that which according to her own judgment is suitable to the purpose for which it is intended.

Among the "sheep," then, I would list all those who trot blindly and senselessly after the latest thing that the saleswoman or the salesman tells them "they" are wearing, or "they" are using, and with never a thought apparently as to whether the object in question is even pleasing. The sheep trot blindly after whatever it may be. At the moment it is an all white living room. And for sheep with golden fleece it may be quite satisfactory as well as alluring. But unhappily golden fleece is growing very scarce and white satin upholstering is not exactly serviceable — especially in sooty cities.

Last summer, if you remember, heavy fox fur trimmings were put on gossamer summer silks. On a hot day, no one with any awareness of temperature could have endured the fur, and on a cold day one would have perished in all the between sections not fur covered. Other evidences of sheep-like following is the bland unthinkingness of those who take to the extreme undress of evening clothes and bathing suits, without consideration either of propriety, which is perhaps negligible, or of beauty, which is very actual.

A slip of a girl with a slim boyish outline can be lovely to look at and not at all vulgar. But our sheep aged 40—and very likely more—dancing around in a skirt and a bib, or cavorting on the beach in trunks and fragment of jersey, either of which would test the refinement of 18-shingle thin at that!—does not suggest sensibility nor even a latent sense of beauty.

To have the furnishings of one's house suitable to surroundings and to use; to have one's clothes suitable to one's figure and to one's type and to one's age, are after all the fundamental principles of good taste.

When I was thinking about this article, a certain New York woman came at once to mind. She is somewhere on the hither side of 50 and exceedingly slight and young looking, and might easily wear clothes as youthful as those of her daughters. She gets the latest models but she always has them modified enough to give just that distinction to her appearance that the general flock of sheep lack. Apparently she wears the same "model" dresses that other women do, yet hers have an air of belonging to her, she belonged to her clothes. Her house proclaims her personality. In fact you are aware that she has chosen everything for herself and that any labels they may have, are those of her own appraisal. In short she is not one of the sheep.

How would you know the sheep? You cannot miss them; they are everywhere! Watch them at the dressmaker's, the milliner's, the fashion parades, the retail department stores. The hallmark of the true sheep is the inability to have an opinion of her own. She is told how her table is to be set, she is told what fashion has decided she is to wear, she is told how the new idea is put on, even the expression that goes with it.

After all, it doesn't very much matter—or at least it did not matter—during the years America was rich, and the wives of the successful might buy new clothes constantly, redecorate their houses impulsively and entertain unceasingly; fashions could be foolishly sheep-like because they lasted only for the moment. By the time the last of them had copied the leaders, the leaders were launching something new. But now that we've got to think about the things we buy from the point of view of durability, sheep tactics are not practical.

Repetitions will become unbearable, but what we can do about it is not very clear. How can we know that our favorite milliner is making 20 copies of the hat we choose—or that the Smart Dress Shop is turning out copies of Model A by the dozen?

For that matter, if each of us insists on having the latest importations, what else can the milliner or the dress shop do but turn out a duplicate model for the old and the young, the fat or the thin? Suitable to a few, unsuitable to many, there will be two or three at every bridge party, four or five in church, and half a dozen bowing to each other on the street. Nothing is more sheep-like than worship of the labels of prominent Paris houses, which results in rubber stamp duplication by the thousand.

The other side of the question is the inability of those who care something about their own individuality to keep from being tagged Model X, 1932, Model A, 1933. Whether the present mania for rubber-stamp production is brought upon us by the importers, the manufacturers, the publishers, the radio or motion picture directors, or whether it is we, the public, who clamor for "an exact copy of this" and "and another one just like that," I don't know, but certainly one or the other—or both—bring to mind a vision of sheep.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1.—Character readers have made extravagant claims that blondes are "always and everywhere," "driving," "dynamic" and "positive" and make better salespersons than brunettes, who are, they claim, "slow," "imitative," "submissive," etc. Dr. Donald Paterson and Katherine Ludgate of the University of Minnesota had ninety-four people carefully judge the traits of 187 blondes and 187 brunettes. The results were a ludicrous disproof of all such bosh. The two types ran neck and neck. Dr. H. G. Kenagy of Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, had forty sales managers select their best salesmen. The brunet men slightly outbid the blonds as highpower salesmen. The entire doctrine is pure moonshine. Skin color, real or artificial, has nothing to do with mental qualities.

2.—Yes, decidedly. In rural and backward mountain districts especially, it has bettered the manners as well as the houses, furniture and social habits of the people. Practically all motion pictures uphold the customs of polite and cultivated social intercourse and condemn any infraction of good manners. Good manners have their psychological background in good morals. In fact, they are based on the Golden Rule.

3.—Prof. Harry Overstreet, philosopher of the New York City College, in outlining the ideal qualities for husbands and wives has three definite standards; first, they should be physically and emotionally healthy and stable; second, they should be intelligent, and, third, they should be good sports. The Institute of Family Affairs at New Haven, Conn., which has brought large numbers of wrangling married couples together happily and prevented many divorces, places good sportsmanship as the very first essential of a happy marriage. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said recently that she considered it as one of the great essentials. Three high authorities all in agreement.

MY Beauty Hint

By MARJORIE RAMBEAU.
(Screen Actress.)

MAJORIE RAMBEAU

I BELIEVE peace of mind is the best beauty recipe.

Relaxation is invaluable. I often find it in sewing, taking a bit of embroidery, or some such thing, along on a drive in the country, and sewing in the open air and sunshine.

I try, as much as possible, to keep my mind on bright, cheerful things, and that, too, is an aid to good appearance.

Tomatoes are delicious hollowed out, stuffed with minced cooked ham and then baked.

EVERYDAY RELIGION

By THE REV. JOSEPH FORT NEWTON

SHADOW-BOXING

YEARS ago a theater owner in my town asked me to bring my church choir and conduct a brief service in his playhouse on a Thanksgiving day. Just before going on the stage, which was arranged to represent a church, he introduced me to a tall, finely-formed, handsome man. He was the late James J. Corbett, who was to appear as the first number after the service. Naturally I stayed to see Corbett play, and the three of us went out together for a chat and a bite to eat.

"By the way," I said to Corbett, after telling him how thrilled I was as a boy when he knocked out Sullivan, "do you realize that the Bible knows a good deal about boxing? St. Paul was not built to be a boxer, as you are—he was a tiny, featherweight man—but he had evidently seen a real boxing match in his time."

"Unfortunately," said Corbett, who deserved his title of "Gentleman Jim," "I do not know the Bible very well, though I read it sometimes. But I did not know that it had anything about boxing in it. Give me the chapter and verse, and let me look it up."

"Here it is," I replied, "in the 9th chapter of First Corinthians. St. Paul is talking about the fight he had with his lower nature—as if two men were boxing inside his heart—and he puts it, literally, in this fashion: 'In this way I punch, not doing shadow-boxing; but I strike my body under the eye and master it, lest having preached to others, I should myself be knocked out, or disqualified by the umpire.'"

"Fine," said Corbett, "all of us know what that fight means, and it's a real fight—a right swing to the jaw. But he could have done it better if he had given his body a solar-plexus, as old Fitz did me when he put me down and out on the mat."

Yes, every man has a fight with himself, and mere shadow-boxing is not enough; it must be a knockout. He must roll up his sleeves, as St. Paul did, and land a blow which will settle the contest. We shall never get rid of evil passion by sparring with it, much less by giving a little playful tap. There must be a set-to and a knock-out.

Ten articles, specially selected by Doctor Newton as being the most outstanding so far published in this series, have been reprinted in an attractive booklet.

This booklet will be sent without cost to interested readers. Requests should be addressed to Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

an order for 18,000 tons of steel to French plants in Lorraine. French blast furnaces, closed for some time, have been re-opened.

Chancellor Hitler may feel the need of some divinity to lead Nazis against the French blast furnaces.

In England the House of Lords is considering a bill to keep all Russian goods out of Britain, because Russia has locked up some English subjects. This may also be good news for French factories.

Shortly after midnight yesterday somebody sent a wagonload of beer to the White House. Later President Roosevelt sent the beer to the Washington Press Club, perhaps in recognition of the fact that so many newspapers had been moaning, groaning and yelling for beer.

The beer would have been welcome in some hospital for soldiers, and the newspaper men could afford to buy beer.

Sanitary Cups

Children at play often become thirsty when only a public drinking cup or one of questionable cleanliness is available. A collapsible drinking cup carried in its case does not take up much room in the school bag or coat pocket, or flat paper cups of the sort found at many public drinking fountains may be bought and carried in an envelope.

Keep It a While

Don't greet the person returning from a hard day's work with all the tiny annoyances of the day. Granted it gives relief to the person who has experienced them, but it is such a selfish thing to do to the breadwinner, who has no doubt had plenty himself to think about. At least give poor old Dad a decent meal first.

LISTEN, WORLD!

by Elsie Robinson

Give Me the Works

I'M 50 years old this month.
What does one want,
What does one feel,
When there's so little time
To go?
I don't fear
Death, at the worst,
Is only lasting sleep;
And, at the best,
May mean another chance.
And so
It's not the thought
Of dying that I dread,
But that far greater risk
Of losing Life
While yet I live!

ELSIE ROBINSON

"How can that be?" you say.
"If one is living,
"How can one lose Life?"

So easily!
For Life is more
That just an existence.
Life is not measured
By its span of years;
By things one has or does.
Life is a thing that happens
In a man's own soul.
It is that soul's reaction
To experience,
And is as tall,
Or trivial,
As the man himself.

A man may breathe
Through three score years and ten,
May work and play,
Eat, sleep,
Make love and mate,
Go places,
Gather riches,
Fame and power,
Yet never really know
What living means;
And "lose his Life,"
As sure as if
He'd died at birth.
To me,
That's worse than death.
I'd rather spend
My days in agony
And learn, at least,
How people feel in pain,
Than drowse
Through stupid years
Like some contented cow.

I want to live!
Live all the life there is!
Hear all the songs,
Taste all the hidden tears,
And set my feet
On every secret trail!

And yet, I know
It all depends on me,
How much I live,
Or if I live at all.
For this
I long since learned—
A man may have
As much of life
As he dare take;
But for each thing he takes
There is a price!

Not punishment,
Or penalty;
Just price—
The price of Growth.

Growth costs.
It spoils our comfort,
Hurts our laziness
And makes us risk
The danger of a change;
And change seems dreadful
To our timid souls,
So dreadful that, at times,
We'd rather die
Than change.
And so we die,
Though still we seem
To live!

FATE DOES NOT STINT OUR LIVES.
WE STINT OUR LIVES, OURSELVES,
BECAUSE WE GRUDGE THE PRICE.
SO I MAY HAVE
AS MUCH OF LIFE
AS I DARE TAKE;
BUT, DO I CARE ENOUGH
FOR LIFE TO PAY THAT PRICE?

I DO!
Oh, yes; I know
I'll whine
When payment's due,
For I'm that way.
I'll lie, and cheat,
And try to duck the bill;
But, for this second,
While I still am brave,
This is my will—
I WANT TO LIVE!
LIVE ALL THE LIFE THERE IS,
NO MATTER WHAT IT COSTS!
AND SO,
IF THERE'S A GOD
WHO CAN HEAR PRAYERS
LIKE MINE,
I HOPE
HE LETS ME HAVE THE WORKS
BEFORE I GO.

Clean Velvet

If your velvet garments are beginning to show that a whole winter season is behind, your friend in need is the bath tub.

Run it full of steaming hot water and hang the garments near enough to get the benefit of the steam but not so close that they get an actual bath.

Then rub a silk cloth over the material, stroking it the way of the pile. The stroking will restore the sheen and erase the "rubbed" spots.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

TRUE or not about the Lindys house-hunting in England—the London Herald so stated in an interview with Anne Morrow's sister Liz on Monday—so, voom-voom! . . . And I see by the papers that Mrs. Vallee's pappy is hastening from California to New York. . . . I think I'll have a cry because Alice Joyce was secretly married to Clarence Brown and didn't remember me with the first tip. . . . Her letters all these years telling of her appreciation "for the many nice compliments" aren't enough. . . . My racket is getting a news-beat—and that's one way those who like me can make me merrier.

Things worth paragraphing about: That deadly parallel dealing with the trailer and the movie of "Child of Manhattan." . . . The advance trailer reveals Nancy Carroll saying to Buck Jones: "You don't want to marry me, I'm a courtesan." . . . And Jones jests: "Aw, your religion don't mean nothing to me!" . . . An old quip, anyway. . . . But the censors scissored it so that the repartee was revised without the words—"I'm a courtesan." . . . The senseless censors scissored it, that is, in the movie—but not in the trailer, which ballyhoos the flicker a week in advance! . . . The dopes.

Never cared about meeting an actress or an actor I've panned. . . . Nor have I cared about encountering those I've enjoyed on the pretending platforms. One of those very competent players, however, pleased with a recent "rave"—called on me recently. . . . It was refreshing meeting the professional make-believer—because there was nothing counterfeit about the person. . . . "I presume," the conversation began, "that you've heard plenty about me." . . . "I have," I said, "and the hell with it." . . . "But," was the retort, "I assure you it's all true!" . . . Now, what can you do with a fast-thinker like that? . . . The subject died right there. . . . Long ago—I learned—that "yes" ends it. . . . It's when you say "no" that the argument or long-winded conversation starts.

SEEN IN THE STORES

By SYLVIA

THERE'S such a demand for tailored blouses that you almost have to get in line in order to buy one before the supply runs out. A new shipment contains some clever blouses of waffle pique. They have mannish vest fronts with formal stud-like buttons. A scarf which ties in Ascot fashion covers the upper ones, but that is perfectly proper since scarfs or tailored bow ties are essential to the smartness of all pique blouses this season.

• • •

It is the ambition of every well dressed woman to have luxuriant shoulders. That is the reason so many new shoulder decorations are sold as separate items. Quite the most elegant of the methods of dressing up the shoulders is the use of a double swirl of genuine blue fox. This may be worn as a cape with the two swirls over the shoulders, or it may be worn as a little jacket with the lower swirl under the arms. Either makes a grand appearance.

• • •

Not all the clips that are seen in the stores are for our dollish clothes. Some of them look very tailored, crying for a slick wool frock or even a knitted number. Those of white composition with metal frames are the sort of thing I mean. They are rather long and narrow, reserving only enough space for initials or monogram.

If a sailor is on the list of things you can't do without this spring, by all means take a glimpse at the sailors of that new wide braided straw. Jumbo is the name which this striking hat material has been given, and justly so since it is big and broad. Sailors of this new stuff look rather heavy, but the gentlest breeze would blow them away unless they fit securely. Brown and navy are the colors women like best.

• • •

No matter what bugaboo you wish to drive away, you can get a charm designed for the purpose. These little novelties are to be worn on a watch or key chain. To mention all of the different ones I've seen recently would take too much space but owls, old shoes, anchors, camels, pigs and even canoes are among the lucky pieces jewelry counters have on display.

• • •

Any one looking for favors for a children's Easter party must see the jig saw rabbit puzzles. They are simple enough for a small child to solve and when they are finished they reveal a pretty Easter toy. Each one comes wrapped in cellophane so that it looks very gifty.

The newest evening jackets of white organdie have some novel decorations. Besides being tucked from beginning to end, the sleeves imitate butterflies. Two puffs very full and therefore very perky give this suggestion of airy wings. The jackets fasten with one button at the waistline and not one of them goes an inch below the belt.

With Lenten days almost over and a gay social life in the offing, a sudden demand has developed for more formal accessories. Handbags, for example, are selling now in afternoon types. Silks represent the preference of the smartest women, some of them wanting their silks tucked, some wanting them smocked and some wanting them pleated. Pouch styles with handsome frames match the color schemes of frocks.

• • •

When the featherweight cigarette cases were placed on the market it was thought they would create only a feminine demand. But the men seem to like them, too. Why load a pocket with a heavy case when these are satisfactory, they argue. So the mannish cases in black enamel are selling along with those bright with color. A triangle marks the spot for the tailored sort of monogram.

Colorful Pansy Quilt Pattern

AFTER the first few warm days have passed, bright flowers start nodding in the breeze, bringing forth the beauty of nature. You will find in the Pansy Quilt, No. 303, an ideal way of recreating the lovely colors that Mother Nature uses so profusely during the spring and summer months.

The Pansy Quilt can be made up in a variety of color combinations, and as it is a patchwork quilt, is very easy to piece. Each block measures nine inches in size. We recommend the use of quilting design No. 528-Q, nine-inch size, and border No. 517 for completing this quilt.

A special combination, No. C-303, of the book, patchwork pattern, quilting design and quilting border pattern, is given for 40 cents.

Our Colonial Quilt Book of 32 pages, showing in beautiful colors some 200 designs, is available to readers. ANY ONE patchwork pattern will be sent free with the book, which is 25 cents. Single patchwork, of stamped quilting patterns, are 10 cents each, or three for 25 cents.

Inclose clippings of designs wanted when ordering. Send letter and coin to St. Louis Post-Dispatch Needleart Department, 909 South Paulina street, Chicago, Ill.

Corded Taffeta Now Appears in Coats and Suits

NEW YORK.

CORDED taffeta, which was introduced in smart new turbans this spring, now appears in coats, suits and dresses. And very effective it is, too. It is usually in navy blue, brown or black, and you may have it in either wide or narrow wale.

It's all an outgrowth of the popularity of pique and corduroy, no doubt, but whatever its source, there's no doubt that the new fabric has its points.

Corded white taffeta evening gowns are being introduced also for summer wear, fitting in with the new trend toward crisp formal fabrics. A navy blue suit of corded taffeta has been seen about town, looking very new and knowing. It has a fitted hip-bone length jacket with a modified sailor collar and a belt. It buttons up the front and has loose sleeves. The skirt is slim and narrow, with a scarcely perceptible flare, and the whole is worn with a blouse of chalky white crepe, with a little navy blue bow tie. Wear it with one of the new white taffeta sailors, banded in navy blue, add a navy bag, white gloves and navy kidskin pumps, and there you are.

A coat of black corded taffeta, in a wide wale, has caused a sensation about town. It is three-quarter length, and is worn with a print frock with a black ground. The coat is fitted, belted, and has a high neck almost like the turtle neck of sweater fame. Otherwise it is cut in bias bands above the belt, the rib of the silk alternating in horizontal and vertical placing.

Some Grand Slam Situations

Hts. A 10 x	Cl. A K Q x x
Sp. K x	Di. A J x

OPENER bids a no trump. Partner's response is three spades. Now plainly big things are in sight; there is no real doubt that we are going to make a small slam. The important thing is to handle the bidding so that the grand-slam prospects are brought to light. The opening bidder must, therefore, incorporate in his next bid the fact that the responder need not sign off because he only has one ace. By bidding four clubs, he knows he can only evoke a sign-off response. This would mean a solid concealed club suit and two aces. Partner is marked with five or six spades to A Q, and 1½ primary tricks in the red suits—Q J x and K Q x or perhaps K Q x of both. Again, he may have enough club support to make that suit solid. Opener's proper bid over three spades is five clubs. This positively announces three aces and a solid concealed long club suit. If responder's hand is

HAL SIMS

Sp. A Q x x x	Di. K Q x
Hts. Q J x	Cl. x x

his bid is five no trumps, denying club support or a six-card holding in spades or three primary tricks plus in the hand. With K Q x in each red suit, his bid is six no trumps, showing a reserve value in high cards only. With A Q J x x in spades and the hand otherwise as given above, or with A Q x x x x, the response of five spades will say that this suit is presumably solid if partner has one of the top three honors as the opening bid and subsequent slam try positively indicate. Opener now bids five no trumps, feeling that the clubs may not break, and there may be a red finesse to take. Now if responder has instead of the hand assumed so far,

Sp. A Q J x x	Di. K x x
Hts. K Q x	Cl. x x

his response to five no trumps should be six no trumps on account of his three clear primary tricks in terms of A Q K Q K, and the spade solidity. With

Sp. A Q x x x x	Di. K x x
Hts. K Q x	Cl. x

his bid is six spades, which opener could raise to seven if holding K J x in support. With

Sp. A Q x x x	Di. K x
Hts. K Q x	Cl. J x x or
Sp. A Q x x x	Di. K x
Hts. K Q	Cl. x x x x

the responder must make the decision which is plainly up to him. In either case he should bid seven clubs. The only risk is that all the outstanding clubs are bunched in one hand. With Sp. A Q J x x in either of the above hands, responder, knowing no spade trick need be lost, should bid seven no trumps over the five-club bid, which has empowered him to make this decision.

With Two Aces Each.

Opener holds

Sp. K x x	Di. A J
Hts. K J x	Cl. A K Q x x

and his partner has

Sp. A Q J x x	Di. K x x
Hts. A x x	Cl. x x

the bidding is—one no trump, three spades, four clubs (confirming two aces by accepting the slam try), five no trumps (showing a second ace), six spades (showing at least K x x and confirming the four primary-trick content of the hand and its soundness in respect of all bids made so far, but alleging no distinct rebid values in excess of those shown by the four-club bid). Now, by virtue of his knowledge that both black suits are beyond reasonable doubt quite solid, accounting of 10 tricks, plus the two red aces and his diamond king, responding hand bids seven no trumps. Why slam in either black suit when there might be a first-round ruff of which ever one is not trumps?

Monday—More on slam bidding.

Dress Pattern for Children
Suggestions From Mrs. Carr

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION
By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:

A FEW weeks ago I was hostess at a little informal party at my home, at which a guest suffered the loss of some money. She insists that the money was removed from her purse by one of my guests. Am I, as hostess, responsible? And should I make restitution? Is this just cause for her to cease calling at my home? Should I see her and offer some sort of consolation? This matter has me up in the air, as I feel I am unjustly being slighted by a few more friends, who were guests that night and who, from all appearances, feel that it is my duty to recover the money. I would highly appreciate your opinion.

SEE EM.

This kind of thing happens once in a while, and is most unfortunate for the hostess. There are sometimes thieves, of course, and again there are women who are really kleptomaniacs. The latter are regarded by their friends as afflicted people and where they are known, temptation is as far as possible put away. It would be only justice to yourself to ask this friend to give you the particulars as she sees them, and try to help you think of anyone who may have left the room alone to go to the place where wraps and purses were left. You should ask, too, if she has any suspicions as to who might have been guilty and otherwise pin her down to facts. Of course you could not accuse anyone. But you could let them see that you were trying to trace the loss as well as you could.

With some persons offer to make restitution, without going into the facts as far as you can, and fearlessly, might be an acknowledgement of your own guilt. And this attitude would be wholly unfair and unjustified. After you have tried to sift the matter down and your friends know of your effort, you might say to all of them that, while you do not feel that you should be held responsible for the, you are willing, as hostess, to make up the loss in some way.

If you will wait a little after this the one who took the money will repeat the theft at the home of someone else and this may clear up the whole situation. If the woman was mistaken, and she finally remembers what she did with the money—that will be the solution.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I RECEIVED one letter from you yesterday and one today. You cannot imagine how much better it makes me feel, when I see how hard you try to help me and my wife. You don't know us, but still you take the trouble and interest in our welfare. When I wrote you three weeks ago, explaining what the depression had done to us, you answered with a nice letter stating that you would allow my letter in the column and keep my address. Well, I thought this would be like many other cases, it would be the last I would hear from you. But I was surprised to see a letter from you Tuesday evening when I got home and another Thursday.

Mrs. Carr, I don't know how I can thank you. Will you please put this in your column. I would like for more people to know what good work you do and how we, at least, appreciate the same. I will pray for you to God to bless you.

F. W. H.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MY problem, self-consciousness, has suddenly sprung from nowhere. It all happened after I lost my job. Suddenly, after looking about two months, I found I had not even the courage to go any more and was even afraid to ask for work. I want to bend my head and I cross the street to keep from speaking to people.

My clothes are fairly good and I keep them neat, but still I feel ashamed of something—I don't know what. And I've given up going anywhere.

I am a boy, 22 years old, and would appreciate any suggestions you can make to help me out of my difficulty.

C. C. C.

This is not a new experience for those who have become discouraged. You will have to keep up your own morale, though, if it kills you trying. And you can only do this by remembering that the times are unusual and, if the loss of your job did not come about through any serious fault of your own, to keep your eyes straight ahead on the future. Keep your pride and hope and let no one know of the conflict going on. How do you know but some day you may be doing a lift to the very ones who now seem fortunate and light-hearted. Don't feel sorry for yourself, either. That is devastating in its effect.

Give your tie an extra twist, set your hat on lightly and step out determinedly in the direction of your friends. Do not speak of your hard luck and avoid the word "depression" as you would the plague.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

I am sure you must have, if you read the papers, other topics of conversation (though I must say that many otherwise intelligent people seem to have "run out") than the hard times and the "blue devils." Then go to your work of looking for a job—and look hard.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

PERHAPS you can help me as you have helped others. Late in 1930 my daddy died. Sixteen months later my brother, who was then mother's main support, was instantly killed in an accident, neither leaving any insurance. On my brother's death the duty of supporting mother and little Sis was left to another brother, then 16 years old.

They lived on a farm and my brother did well, until he began running with a rough bunch of boys. Early last June they got into trouble and the Judge sent my brother to a boys' industrial reform school. He has a good record there and the Parole Board in that state will allow him to go to another state if he has a job to go to.

Mrs. Carr he has written me to get him a job, but I don't know how to go about it. But I hope someone will see this and give him a change to come back and be a man. He has had all kinds of chances to run away, but he wants to change, I know. He weighs 186 pounds, can drive or farm or work in a garage. If anyone is willing to help, please let me know.

HIS ANXIOUS SISTER.

I believe a place can be provided for him and I already have one in mind; but will wait to see if someone else has a suggestion about his case. As soon as I hear will let you know.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

I READ your column every night an would like your opinion. I am in love with a girl who said she could never love me, because she is in love with somebody she can't have; he is married. But she still wants to be companions and pals, but when we go out on a date, she acts bored and terrible. I try to talk to her and tell her she is making life miserable for both of us. Then she apologizes and is really sorry, but the next time it is the same thing over. What do you think I should do? I love her very much and would do anything to get her.

JACK K.

Of course. Since you know she wants someone else and treats you as abominably as possible, you are crazy about her. It's the same old story. The reasons she holds on to you, of course, is for convenience. She wants to be sure of somebody to go out with. You ought to be smart enough to know that you might win her by using the same tactics. Why not act crazy about someone else and find it inconvenient sometimes to go when she wants to?

• • •

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM a constant reader of your column and I appreciate the wonderful advice you give to those seeking your help. I am coming to you for the first time seeking personal advice. Please help me.

For the past six months I have been dating a beautiful and popular girl attending a West End high school. I graduated in June from a boys' prep school, and have never had much contact with girls. I have a fairly good position and I am confident that in a few years I shall be able properly to support her. Here is the problem. She is a tempermental red head and very fickle. She refuses to return my affections in a serious manner. Often when I date her she deserts me for the evening, centering her attention upon someone more sophisticated. Don't say that I should forget her, I love her too deeply for that. Please tell me how to cure her of this fickleness and win her true affection.

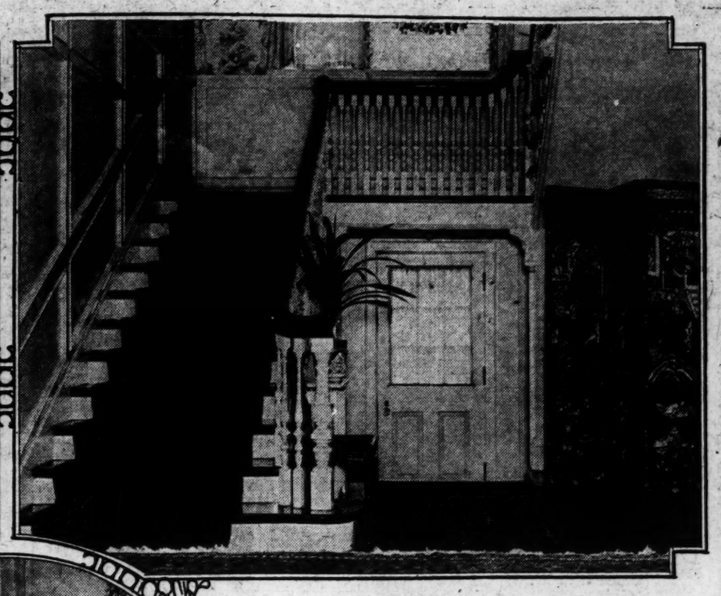

GENE O.

Don't try. If you did cure her and she had eyes only for you, you would not want her. That is history.

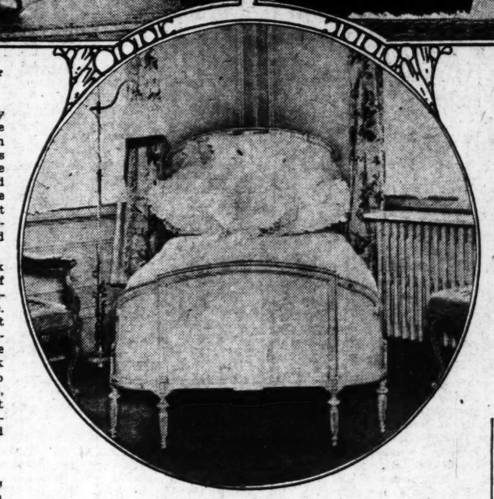

INTERESTING INTERIORS of Attractive ST. LOUIS HOMES

Two windows made into little conservatories in the living room of the Wight home.

The classic simplicity of the Colonial stairway gives an informal air to the hallway.

A corner of Mrs. Wight's bedroom, charmingly done in tones of cream and blue.

By JOSEPHINE WALTER.

TO find a house which has stood serene among the passing fads and fancies of the various "period" styles is an experience all too rarely encountered today. In the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wight at 42 Westmoreland place, one finds the tranquil atmosphere of a house long and well lived in.

This is the type of house where one expects to and does find a fireplace in every room, where books are present in profusion and where plants and flowers seem an integral part of the household. The furniture? Colonial, yes; or more truly composite American. The color schemes? So blended with the spirit of the rooms that they have no separate existence. A house, in fact, which has succeeded in retaining its calm repose in the face of the many changes wrought by the twentieth century.

The dignified and yet hospitable hallway is done in the restrained manner characteristic of the rest of the house. Here simply panelled white walls prove an excellent foil to the well-designed stairway which mounts to a landing containing a group of windows hung with silk glass curtains on either side and a scenic window shade in the middle. From here on up to the second floor the walls are papered in a classic paper in tones of gray, white and tan. Under the stairway is a door leading on to a terrace and a tiny alcove which has been made into a powder room. This little room, with a mirrored niche to contain the dressing table and a tropical paper in tones of blue and peach on the walls, proves that this house has not remained stiltedly traditional but has accepted certain modern conveniences.

The living room with its book lined walls is primarily a place of comfort; equally suited for gracious entertaining or hours of ease. A massive wooden chimney breast reaches to the ceiling, above a simple stone fireplace opening and the walls which do not contain book cases are paneled in wood. To dissipate any feeling of heaviness, two of the windows have been built out with glass to form small conservatories filled with ferns and plants.

THE chairs and couches in this room have been selected from the viewpoint of comfort rather than of any prevailing period. Duncan Phyfe pieces hob-nob in perfect ease and content with Victorian and present-day lounging types, the only apparent rule being that each shall have a lamp for reading purposes. The colors of the upholstery fabrics are the reds and blues which would harmonize with the fine Orientals and the deep wine color of the velvet drapes.

In the dining room, again, one has the feeling that either a formal dinner party or a family gathering would be equally at home. The walls are done in a scenic tapestry above a paneled wood dado; a background with weight enough to carry the massiveness of the furniture. Chairs upholstered in gold damask and velvet curtains in the same shade give a light touch which is augmented by the fine old family silver to be found on sideboard and serving tables. A small alcove built right into the room contains a smaller table, suitable for breakfast and informal lunches.

Upstairs, too, one finds bed and sitting rooms which have gone on for years, unaffected by prevailing modes, with a feeling of peace and security. In Mrs. Wright's bedroom, in particular, one finds with what charm a room having a sense of permanency may be endowed. Here the walls and most of the furniture have been tinted in an ivory tone with a soft blue shade introduced in hangings and upholstery. Ivory linen, patterned in blue and rose, and edged with blue taffeta ruffles, fashions the curtains which are simply draped over embroidered net glass curtains, and also upholsters one of the painted ivory chairs. Other chairs are covered in blue needle point with flower designs while the chaise longue is done in blue satin with a tiny design in cream. The bed, which stands in one corner between two windows, is covered with a blue spread and banked high with cream-colored lace and satin pillows.

Here, in the final analysis, is a house to keep, a house to live in forever. Not an antique in any sense of the word, not a storehouse for treasured rarities but a house which is above all a home.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts. Edited by Dr. Iago Galdston, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Facial Paralysis

FACIAL paralysis may result from a large number of conditions affecting the ear, brain or the facial nerve.

The most common cause, however, is thought to be exposure to cold, producing what is commonly called Bell's palsy.

This type of palsy may be seen in patients of various ages; it is quite frequently seen in those between the ages of 6 and 15.

Sudden drafts of cold air are considered to be the most frequent cause of Bell's palsy. The side of the face exposed to the draft is generally the one that is paralyzed.

In recent years herpes zoster, commonly called fever blister, has also been suspected of a possible causative association with facial paralysis.

The disease zoster is thought to be due to a filtrable virus, and the facial paralysis is believed to be due to an involvement of the facial nerve by the same virus.

It is not uncommon to find a patient giving a history of shingles or fever blisters, followed by the development of facial paralysis. At times the blisters proper are developed in the region of the ear.

The virus nature of zoster is indirectly demonstrated by the prevalence of immunizing substances in the blood of its victims. This suggests a possible method for the treatment of facial paralysis believed to be due to the zoster virus with immune serum.

The prognosis in Bell's palsy or facial paralysis due to either cold exposure or to zoster infection, varies according to the severity of the disease.

Treatment is not well defined. Mild cases tend to recover without treatment. In the more chronic cases heat, counter-irritants and electrical stimulation of the muscles and nerve sometimes prove of value.

PARENTS

Confidential Talks With Mothers and Fathers.

by Alice Judson Peale

Your Child's Reading

KNOWING what your child reads is desirable for better reasons than one of censorship, which is both unnecessary and useless.

Such knowledge on the part of the parent aids in directing the child's mental eagerness along channels that will bring the greatest returns in intellectual development and a discriminating pleasure in good literature.

Do you find him coming home with trashy adventure stories? Then don't simply ignore the fact, but go to the trouble of getting him plenty of adventure stories that you know to be good. If you yourself don't know what ones are good get his teacher to help you.

Whether your child is feeding upon poor adventure stories, poor romance or the badly written sentimental stuff still gotten out in such quantities for young children, it is up to you to know about it and to feed his chosen line of interest with good reading.

You cannot do this unless you take the trouble to read the books your child brings home (without criticising his taste), and to know the contents and style of every book you give him.

This really is not an unpleasant task. Books written for children, and books which, though not written expressly for them, are yet appropriate for them to read, have a charm for the adult as well.

A book that cannot stand the test of adult reading probably is not a good one. What strikes the adult as false, cheap, sensational and sentimental cannot be good for the young.

If a book seems to you good, even though a little over the head of an immature mind, you may feel safe in suggesting it to your child.

Waldorf Salad in Aspic.

Two apples cut into cubes, one cup celery cut the same size as the apples, ¾ cup chopped English walnuts, salt, pepper, one tablespoon lemon juice, one tablespoon sugar. Soak one tablespoon gelatine in a little cold water and dissolve in two cups boiling water. Let cool. Arrange salad in small molds and when the gelatine cools pour over them. Place in refrigerator until firm. Unmold on beds of lettuce and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Apple jelly flavored with mint is very appetizing to serve with roast lamb.

When baking apples, fill the hole left by the core with honey and broken pecan meats.

Broccoli should be cooked in salted water until tender, then drained. If allowed to remain in the water in which it is cooked it will lose its color.

Arrow Heads

RIP, the dog, Jelly Bear and Top Notch, the Rooster, had not been at Mrs. Quacko Duck's party. They had thought they would be in the way when the whole shop was taken up with spider webs.

Rip knew he would upset the webs and had gone off for a romp and Jelly Bear had said that a Bear at a spider web party would be more in the way than a bull in a china shop.

"Where did you hear that expression?" Willy Nilly asked. "That's an old saying."

"I picked up a lot of sayings when I lived the life of a tame cub and they all seemed O. K. to me."

But now the party was all over. Mrs. Quacko had gone back to the pond to rest, and Rip had just returned from his romp. "Did you have a good time?" Rip barked.

"Fine," said Willy Nilly, as he stroked one of his side whiskers. "Did Jelly Bear come back with you? And where is Top Notch? The Ducks have all gone back to the pond. Now that the nice weather is here they'll spend most of their time down there."

"I passed Top Notch on my way home," said Rip. "He was just finishing setting his store to rights. But I don't know where Jelly Bear is now. He said he was going to look for some roots to eat, and would be home early."

All of a sudden Jelly Bear appeared at the door. He was walking on his hind legs and he held something, tightly clutched, in each of his two front paws.

"I have found some Indian arrow heads," he growled delightedly.

BEHIND THE SCREENS
By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 7.

IT'S still worthy of Hollywood comment when a screen bogeyman throws off his ghostly wraps and steps out as a comedian.

Bela Lugosi was an actor of parts before he became "Dracula," but he has been the "vampire" ever since, and most of his screen roles have been only variations of his first major hit in pictures.

But for "International House," he has been cast in a strictly comedy part, as one of Peggy Hopkins Joyce's several ex-husbands. It's character comedy and hot slapstick, but for once he doesn't have to stalk around, frighten women and children and make himself generally a terror.

"Eddie Sutherland, the director, seems to be the first to have considered me an actor instead of just 'Dracula,'" Lugosi remarks with a smile.

"I always was an actor. I played all kinds of parts before I played 'Dracula,' and I still am an actor.

"Nevertheless, I was surprised when Sutherland asked me about the role, because usually I don't get called for a picture unless it has a devil or a monster in it."

LUGOSI is content to leave horror roles to other players who may want them, and hopes this departure is the beginning of a new career for him in which he can qualify (in studio eyes as well as his own) for variety in roles.

In Hungary, where he was born, he points out, acting is a profession for which one is trained and acting is his profession. Acting confined within the limits of one type of role, he pleads, is no acting at all, and it is not for him.

"I have passed up many opportunities to play characters in exaggerated makeup," he says, "because I do not want to lose my identity as an actor. Besides, heavy makeup is most uncomfortable."

DESPITE his horror assignments, Lugosi admits no interest whatever in spooks, magic or the occult.

"Funny thing," he recalls, "I used to be intrigued by such things, but after 1000 performances of 'Dracula' I lost interest. It was too much.

"That part on the stage was a real strain. Even though I knew it was all hokum—especially because I knew it—I had to throw all my force into playing it, and make myself believe it.

"That was the only way I could hold the audience. Whenever I let myself be mechanical in the role, I lost the audience and the performance was a failure."

Chopped green peppers and caviar spread on toasted crackers make delicate appetizers.

THUMBNAIL REVIEWS OF THE NEW MOTION PICTURES
By NIE

MISSOURI—One of the best crook pictures of several years called "Rome Express." Made in England with Esther Ralston and an almost all-British cast it is a dandy thriller of crime and some love on a fast train in Europe. Katharine Hepburn is very clever in "Christopher Strong," the story of another good man gone wrong, but the play is not worth her talents.

LOEWS—Gloria Swanson and Michael Farmer—who is the fourth, or maybe the fifth, Mr. Gloria Swanson—in "Perfect Understanding," a dull and talkie drama of married romances in England and the south of France. Miss Swanson does sing very prettily.

AMBASSADOR—"Grand Slam" is a lively little farce for bridge players which has Loretta Young looking as beautiful as ever and Paul Lukas doing his usual fine work in a snappy story of how cards can upset the best of families.

GRAND CENTRAL—"The Match King," which makes the late Mr. Ivar Kreuger, under the name of Paul Kroll, a ruthless financier and a red hot sugar daddy. Warren William is the melodramatic high flyer and no one could blame him much for forgetting business when Lily Damita was around but the drama bears evidences of having been thrown together in a hurry in order to cash in on the news. Not so very well thrown together, either.

FOX—A good old doctor and a wild young one, father and son, battle to uphold and to pull down the ethics of their profession in "Humanity" with the attractive Boots Mallory providing the love interest. Ralph Morgan is the on-the-level doc and Alexander Kirkland his son. With the Fanchon and Marco vaudeville on the stage is Dick Powell, former master of ceremonies here who has made good on the screen in a big way.

Scotty Tries to Escape the Worshipers but Fails—Sees Himself as a "Stuffed Shirt" as He Reads Speech at Testimonial Banquet.

SYNOPSIS.

When Scott McClenahan went down with a rammed submarine he shot his men to safety through an escape tube and waited for death. It was fine to do your duty; but Scotty didn't want to die. He wanted to quit the navy and marry Janet and go into some kind of business. The boat was raised and Scotty found that he was a hero. He revolted, but it was useless, and he was dragged off by a lot of men in silk hats to be made a spectacle in New York. A plausible gentleman named Chapin appeared with an assistant, Sutter, and they took charge of Scotty's affairs. He objected. Chapin handed him a pile of newspapers. "Read those," he ordered.

CHAPTER SIX.

THE next was a blurred and distorted photograph of Janet. Her mouth was open, and one eye had apparently been blacked. The caption read:

SCOTTY'S QUEEN OF HEARTS?

Then Mom, a better picture:

NATION'S HERO JUST "MY BABY" TO HER

There were a lot more:

"NO CRITICISM," SAYS McCLENAHAN, QUITTING NAVY

Denies He Will Bring Inefficiency Charges Against Naval Heads.

"Oh, look," said Scotty, "I've got to do something about this. I can't let them say things like that. Why, that's terrible!"

"I wired you," said Chapin, "you may remember, urging you to say nothing to the reporters. I did so because I had your best interests at heart. Publicity you will get; without proper handling of your relations with the papers, it will be publicity of this type. Still, if you feel competent to deal with the situation——"

"No," said Scotty. "No, I don't. I'm sorry I spoke the way I did. Really I am. I'd be grateful if you'd stick with me."

"All right, my boy, I'll be glad to." Chapin put out his hand, shook Scotty's hand briskly, firmly. "Now," he said, "Sutter will finish your first Inquirer article while you and I go on to the dinner. By the way, Sutter, you've finished the speech for McClenahan to use at the dinner?"

"Yes, sir," said Sutter. "I typed it and sent the copies to the A. P."

"I'd read that," said Chapin, handing it to Scotty. "It's safer to have a manuscript to go by."

"Yes, I will," said Scotty. "Thank you."

THE dinner was very much like the luncheon, but bigger, much bigger. A great ballroom crowded with little tables. People in evening dress. A burst of cheers and hand clapping when Scotty came in. Flash lights going off in acrid rings of powder smoke. An orchestra playing "The Star-Spangled Banner" while every one stood. Then a steady clatter of dishes and a noise like the sea, which was talk.

Just as Scotty was finishing his soup a waiter handed him a note. "Don't smoke. Will explain later. J. C. C." Why not? Well, maybe the woman next to him had asthma.

The speeches began. Scotty wondered whether he were really awake, because these speeches sounded just like the others, the Admiral's and the Mayor's and what those people had said at lunch.

Under the table cloth he read over Sutter's neatly typed words. It was pretty flowery, but at least it made some kind of sense, which was more than he could claim for the terrible things he'd said that morning. He might have been able to think up something himself if he hadn't been so tired. It was his turn. His hands went clammy and began to shake so he could hardly read Sutter's speech.

"It's hard for me to realize tonight that just three days ago I lay with a bad pain in my chest, wondering just where my next breath was coming from. I've had a lot of fun in my life. I was sorry to lose it. When the divers under Lieutenant-Commander Faber's marvelously efficient direction had raised the submarine, and I realized that the gift of life had been given back to me, I felt the profoundest gratitude of which a man is capable.

"But it is only today that I have learned how fine life really is. The wonderful reception which met me here in this great city of New York, the affection and good will I have found on every side have given life a greater value, have made me prize the precious gift of being alive more dearly than ever. From a full heart I thank New York."

The sound of clapping rose and rose until it shattered on the ceiling and echoed down again. Scotty, thinking of Sutter, who was now writing an article which would be signed with his name, felt a hard lump in his chest, which was embarrassment and rage and dislike for this public character he and Chapin and Sutter were trumping up.

The orchestra played "America," and there was a scraping of chairs on the floor as people got up. The gray-haired man who was president of the Chamber of Commerce, and the bald-headed man who published the Inquirer, and the sandy little man who was president of some bank or other, and the deep-voiced man with jowls who was a judge, and their wives—the dowdy woman without any chin, and the large executive woman with too much, and the woman with the pink-and-white, unlined face who looked as if her beauty had been frozen 20 years ago so it could never wither—all shook hands with Scotty and gave him menus to autograph.

CHAPIN was at his elbow. "We'll just have time to get to the theater for the end of the last act."

"Yes," said Scotty. "Why did you send me that note about smoking?" he asked on the way out. "Every one else was."

"Well, said Chapin, "I have several things in mind for you. There is a chain of boys' camps, for instance, which I happen to know is on the lookout for a young man whose name will be a drawing card to both the boys and their parents——"

"But I don't know anything about——"

"Of course the whole thing is nebulous now," said Chapin, "but I feel reasonably sure that if I hinted that you would be interested——"

"But I wouldn't be interested," said Scotty. "Anything in the scoutmaster-school teacher line would burn me up. I like kids, all right, but I wouldn't be in authority over them for a million dollars. You've got to cheat them. The parents and every one insist on it. You've got to pretend you're perfect yourself. Inhuman. And tell them to be the same. All the time they see through you. They know you're a stuffed shirt and that you're not coming clean with them. I've smoked since I was 12 except when I was in training, and I'm not going to stop now to get a nursemaid's job."

Chapin sighed. "Well, if you feel that way I suppose I can't stop you."

"You're darn right you can't!" said Scotty. Then a sudden fear seized him. "Look, I didn't mean that the way it sounded. I know I promised to play ball and I will, but you've got to let me smoke."

At the door of the hotel the sidewalk was jammed with people pushing against the policemen who had held them back, clinging to the shining fenders of the car like barnacles to a rock. As Scotty and Chapin hurried across the pavement the people cheered.

Suddenly his path to the car was blocked by a girl, a fattish girl with a pasty face and a thick, red mouth. Scotty dodged right, trying to pass her, but she dodged too.

"Get out of my way, will you?" he said, and suddenly her mouth was smeared against his chin.

Scotty put his hand against her soft, fat chest and pushed her away. A shout of laughter went up from the crowd. Scotty and Chapin climbed into the car. Scotty scrubbed his chin viciously with his handkerchief. He felt sick.

"CHERIE" was a blur to Scotty. He and Chapin were shown to a box as nearly on the stage as possible, immediately over the bass horn and the traps in the orchestra. His headache was back and the memory of that large moist mouth was still with him.

He sat rigidly, longing for darkness and silence and a mattress under his back—feeling eyes on him. Eyes on the audience. Eyes on the stage.

The stage was suddenly crowded. Hundreds of girls, dozens of men. The orchestra blared into "Daddy Says No," which was apparently the song hit of the show, and the curtain came down.

Then a swarthy man in a dinner coat and a fedora was in the box with them, pumping Scotty's hand, and Scotty was autographing six programs for the swarthy man's mommer, "That's my wife," and the kiddies, "Five of them, all girls, and as pretty as a picture. Shirley, that's the eldest, does an imitation of Chevalier that would, honest, Mr. McClenahan, keep you in stitches."

"That must be fine," said Scotty. "You have a great show. I enjoyed it." He looked at Chapin. "I'd better be getting that train," he said.

"Oh, now, Commander, you ain't going to run out on us like that? I thought maybe you'd just let us get a picture with Katie Day, the little lady you just saw. Did you ever see such talent, and a lovely girl, Mr. McClenahan, as clean a little lady as you'd ever want to meet in show business."

"No," said Scotty, trying to keep his voice pleasant. "No, I'm sorry, I've got to go. There's this train. It's—it's certainly a great show and thank you for asking me."

• • •

SCOTTY and Chapin drove to the station, the sirens on the motor cycles screaming all the way, opening a path for them through traffic.

"Look," said Scotty, "I haven't any pajamas or toothbrush. I'll have to have a clean shirt and some underwear."

"Sutter has taken care of that," said Chapin. "There will be a bag waiting for you on the train."

"Well, that's very nice of you," said Scotty, "but who's paying for all this? I haven't any money on me at all. There's some in the bank at home, but I haven't had a chance to get a check cashed."

"Oh, that's all right, my boy," said Chapin. "We'll keep a record of any expenses, and when you and I have our next chat we'll take that up. You'd better take $50 now. The merchants are very pleased to supply you with anything you may need—the hotels and railroads and —well, haberdashers and so on. Sutter will write them notes of thanks, and you can sign them when we meet next."

"You mean that uniform and the room at the hotel and all that doesn't cost me anything?"

"Not a cent," said Chapin. "Well, good night, my boy. Remember, nothing to the papers."

"Yes, I'll remember," said Scotty. "Oh, wait a minute." Chapin was leaving him at the stateroom door. "When do I get back from Washington?"

"You're flying back tomorrow afternoon."

"No!" said Scotty. "I mean—do I have to? I've done a little flying and it makes me sick."

"It makes you sick?" Chapin's face was frozen surprise.

"Yes," said Scotty. "They used to kid me about it."

"Well," said Chapin. "I suppose— You say it really makes you sick?"

"Yes," said Scotty. "Very. Always. Every time. So if I could come by train?"

"But, my dear boy, this is going to be very awkward."

"I'm sorry," said Scotty. "It's embarrassed the life out of me lots of times, but that's how it is."

"Well," said Chapin, "have you tried it lately?"

"Yes," said Scotty sharply. Why should he fly? Why didn't Chapin go away? He was so tired. Was there some crime about being airsick? "You can count flying out."

"But this expedition. It was to be largely by plane——"

"Expedition?" said Scotty. "What expedition? Hey, you'd better be getting off. The train's starting."

"Yes," said Chapin. "Well, this will require a bit of readjusting. Sutter and I will meet you tomorrow night. I'll wire you full instructions tomorrow."

At last Chapin was on the platform and the train was moving off. Before it reached the Jersey meadows Scotty was asleep.

THE EXOTIC TREND IN HATS

IF you see a perfectly good friend approaching garbed in strange headgear that smacks of foreign countries and masquerades, don't be alarmed. It's merely her new and correctly smart spring bonnet.

Six entirely different and novel versions of the newer hats are shown in the accompanying sketch. At the top, left, is an endearingly naive baby bonnet of silk, worn far back on the head with a tiny veil to cover the eyes. Top, right, is a version of the fez. It has a high back, accented with a pom-pon.

In the center, left, is a picturesque Congo turban of braided straw with net covering the top of the head. To the right of this is the Legionnaire, an amusing military cap of straw with a dashing red pom-pon at the front.

The tiny beret made entirely of flowers, at the lower left, is worn over one eye. Even the tricorne tries a comeback in the pert little hat at the lower right with a white pique bow.

STAMP NEWS

Next Special Issue.

A 1 AND 3 cent stamp has been formally approved by Postmaster-General James A. Farley for the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition, which opens June 1. They will appear early in May. The portrait of the Shah faces to the left and the words "POSTES PERSANES" appear beneath the portrait. The values in the lower corners are in English and in the upper corners they are in Persian.

MY BOY FRANKLIN

As Told to Isabel Leighton and Gabrielle Forbush

By MRS. JAMES ROOSEVELT

CHAPTER SIX.

ONE summer, I think it was when Franklin was 15, and Lathrop Brown was spending some weeks with us, the two of them set out for Grand Manan Island in a 21-foot knockabout we had given Franklin. They had managed to track down a rumor that somewhere on that island was buried the hidden treasure of the infamous Captain Kidd and they were bound they would unearth the pirate gold. Almost immediately they located the cave and set to work searching for the loot. They had dug only a little way when they struck a plank on which were carved the letters, W. K. Their excitement knew no bounds. They were certain that the booty of a hundred successful pillages was stowed away under their hobnailed shoes. All afternoon they tunneled their way through layer after layer of stubborn soil only to decide in the end that the lettering on the board must have been inscribed by some practical joker who thought that a couple of enterprising boys might be better for a little exercise.

I suppose that a good many mothers would have been nearly frantic with worry if supper time had come and gone and their boys had not been heard from. But I had no such qualms where Franklin was concerned. Even then he knew too much about the hazards that went with sailing to take foolish chances, and a delay could only mean that he thought it unwise to start off on schedule. Added to a natural bent for seamanship, in later years he acquired a profound knowledge of practical navigation, and although my grandchildren are skeptical whenever I make the following statement, I never, except on one occasion, knew what it was to have Franklin deviate so much as half an hour from the time he had set, though he frequently came from a great distance.

The one time that occurs to me was when he set out in fine weather only to run unexpectedly into one of the densest coastal fogs the neighborhood had experienced in years. He put into North-East Harbor where he had friends and telegraphed me of his predicament from there. He stayed a week, having a wonderful time, dancing, renewing acquaintances, and playing what was then considered a new-fangled game called golf.

SO impressed was he with this sport that he determined to introduce it on our little island. With zeal and hard labor worthy of a better cause, he charted out the first links ever built there and put them into the best shape possible, considering the limitations the lack of proper material imposed. Not content with building the course, he decided there must be an annual golf tournament to stimulate interest in the game. Those early matches for the island championship must have been weird to the point of making golf history, for the all-year-round inhabitants saw no reason for letting those lovely wide expanses of green go to waste; saw no point in keeping them sacred to the lunatics who trudged over them intermittently, hitting at little white balls as they went. So on what Franklin pleased to call the Campobello Golf Course grazed all the Campobello sheep! And as no call of "fore" penetrated their woolly skulls, the players simply had to aim well over their cropping heads, shut their eyes, and hope for the best. Franklin won the championship, but it is difficult now to remember whether the score was recorded in strokes or sheep.

If one can be said to have an attachment for a place, I really think Franklin had what amounted to a real affection for Campobello. So many of the exciting adventures that filled his early life were bound up in the tides and swells of that rocky coast. So many of the experiences he likes best to remember were enacted there. And some of them were fraught with real danger, although he scoffs at the mere suggestion of such a thing.

Once, during a summer he spent with us there, he went off in his boat, a larger one by this time, for a day or two of sailing. In the night a small schooner found its way into the cove in which his "Half Moon" lay at anchor, and the following morning Franklin, finding that he knew the skipper, boarded her to have a look around. Upon asking the captain — who turned out to be a rather reprehensible character—what sort of cargo he was carrying, Franklin was told potatoes.

"Potatoes from Grand Manan Island to Maine?" Franklin cross-questioned incredulously. "Isn't that the reverse of the usual procedure?"

"Yes," the captain told him, "but this year it is the other way round!"

"Where do you keep those potatoes?" Franklin went on.

"Down here in the hold," the captain explained, indicating a trap door that was held down with a small stick of wood.

"My mother," Franklin told him meaningly, with what I've always felt was a foolhardy bravery, "spent much of her life in China, and something tells me that cargo of yours is Chinese potatoes."

"You're too smart for your own good, young fellow," the captain commented, but not disagreeably enough to keep Franklin from saying:

"How many potatoes have you?"

"Eighteen," the captain admitted.

"And what do Chinese potatoes fetch this year?" Franklin questioned impudently.

"A hundred dollars apiece," the renegade captain sang out in the general direction of Franklin, who by this time had evidenced his willingness to return to the "Half Moon" and leave the captain to his business of smuggling Chinamen into the country.

Experiences such as these were a far cry from the well-ordered existence that was expected of a circumspect young Harvard student, but not as different as one might have thought if the stories of Franklin's escapades that have been told me by his schoolmates and that we have chuckled over, can be believed.

Whenever there was healthy mischief afoot, Franklin was certain to be part of the plot. He was no different in that respect than his uncle Warren Delano, who years earlier had outraged the Harvard faculty by dressing up a statue in a public square and causing both the police and fire departments to be called out to remove the offending articles of clothing.

Franklin, due either to better luck or better sense, never allowed his pranks to put him into conflict with the law, although, had I been the manager of the Boston Opera Company at the time my boy and his college chums disorganized his performance of "Tannhauser," I should have been seriously tempted to call in the authorities.

In those days it was customary for theatrical companies to hire, as they thought, well-behaved young men as "extras" in mob scenes, engaging as many as they needed in each city in which they played. On this particular occasion Franklin and a number of his friends applied for jobs as spearmen and, beautifully accoutered in costumes of the period, took up their positions on the stage. The hero, at this point, made his entrance, leading a magnificent white horse by a jeweled bridle and began the aria that during all previous performances had been the high light of the evening. Titters greeted his most dulcet tones, laughter drowned out his most sensational effort. Too late, the tenor discovered a collection of giggling spearmen engaged in prodding his snow-white charger with their tin lances. This episode, I am told, ended the practice of offering the opportunity of a musical education to the undergraduate body.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Sunday, April 9.

A GOOD day for those who are on the right track and headed in the right direction. The evening is good for calm, deliberate judgment; pay attention to old ideas and plans—see what they can do for you now.

Make Your Future.

Life is real. It is not a play you are dream-walking through. You are not called upon to speak certain lines, to do certain things, whether you want to do them or not. Every move you make, everything you do, everything you say, everything you write—all are your responsibilities. There is nothing in astrology that can give you a license to murder, or protect you if you have committed a crime. Man can make his own destiny. When you go to an astrologer, ask what you should do, not what is going to happen. Look at your future as something you are making yourself, not as something that a bunch of planets is making for you. The planets are moved by the greater forces of nature that brought you into being. Don't lean too much on them.

Your Year Ahead.

You who celebrate this anniversary have before you good prospects of being able to push ahead and make gains; there will be changes in your conditions, but these can be progressive. Sudden and unexpected happenings in connection with women. Push financial plans except Nov. 1-Dec. 22. Avoid danger and trouble Dec. 8-16, 1933, and March 29-April 8, 1934.

For Monday, April 10.

TAKE it easy in the morning and early afternoon; stick to the rut. Not wise to make changes or go into new propositions. Keep away from low emotions. Afternoon and evening can be made active and constructive. Be good.

Solving Crimes.

No astrologer can correctly tell you what you will do. If you were told that at a certain time, on a certain day, you would be hit by a street car, you could easily prevent it. All you would have to do would be to stay in the house all day—no street car would bother you then. Think. If anyone, by any means, whether by crystal gazing ball, astrology, chemistry, palmistry or anything else, could tell an event in connection with a person in the future, it could also be done in the past. Yet no one has solved some of the crimes on the police docket. If such information was to be had by any known method, all detectives could be fired and all criminals caught by the fortune tellers. Don't believe false claims and promises. Think!

Your Year Ahead.

If this is the anniversary of your birth, don't look for a year of easy following of habit ahead of you. Count on new starts, new ideas, changes of different kinds in many departments of your life. Women should avoid the wrong type of men this year. Hold back on plans involving money Nov. 6-Dec. 30, 1933. Avoid danger Dec. 9-15, 1933, and March 30-April 10, 1934.

Tomorrow.

A strong day; make it count for good. Be positive, for it could be bad.

Mint Jelly Salad

One package mint-flavored gelatin mixture.
Two cups boiling water.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup chopped celery.
One-fourth cup chopped pickles.
One-fourth cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives.

Pour water over gelatin mixture, stir until dissolved. Cool. Add rest of ingredients, pour into individual molds rinsed out of cold water. Set in a cold place to stiffen. Unmold on lettuce and surround with salad dressing. This dressing is very good with roasts.

It might help. But all in all, preserving masculinity seems to be women's work.

In fact, it has gotten to the point where masculinity is not a manly thing to cutlivate.

WHATTAMAN NO. 867564

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Lamar had a very interesting visitor Monday. He was Benjamin J. Gunn, of Girard. Mr. Gunn is probably the only man in the world who has been in every county in the United States. He says there are 3,076 counties in the forty-eight states. Not only has he been in every one of these subdivisions, but he can name them, tell you what the county seat is in every case, and give some facts about the county. It is safe to say that no other man in the world has been in every American county or has them every one at fingers' ends like Ben.

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—
Don't you think every girl should be taught how to behave when in a taxicab with a gentleman? Worried.

Ans.—
Auntie B. can't see any harm in it, Madame, if she is also taught that it probably won't get her anywhere.
—A. ("Facts and Figures") Bella.

Adam Scoffiaw's Djournal

Up and walk back and forth in my boudoir like an caged beastie, I having a kink in my neck, and each time I seek to turn my head I cry out like a wounded lion, and it please me to see how my yaney whimper whine for me to call the medical docktor, but I, being an strong, silent man, cry for her to stop yammering, and observe with what fortitude I bear pain, and be proud she is riveted to an iron man.

Looking for Dunkeldorff

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

THEY'RE looking for old Dunkeldorff, the beer taster.

Dunky ain't been mugged since 1919 when he vanished from the haunts of men and disappeared into the limbo of prohibition.

* * *

He was the East's supreme court of brewdom. The reason he was Such a splendid beer connoisseur was because he had three chins and one of those chins was bound to be right.

* * *

When he nodded his head like a proud hoss, the contents of the vat were okay. Dunky collected rare first editions.

When Dunky pointed his thumbs down, the beer was not fit for publication. They destroyed it.

We have heard of tea tasters and soup critics. But Dunky is America's only official beer referee.

We hope he is still alive. But we fear the worst. Way back in 1921 we heard that a man named Dunkeldorff strangled on a decimal point.
